POINCARE HITS GERMAN STAND

Says Nation is Trying to Dodge Penalty for War

Declares Blame for Crime Cannot be Escaped

Ten Years is Not Enough to Permit of Amnesty

Germany, and even less a word which implies or affirms the exclusive responsibility of the German nation.

According to Article 231: "The Allied and Associated governments affirm and Germany accepts the responsibility of Germany and her Allies for causing all the loss and damage to which the Allied and Associated governments and their nationals have been subjected as a consequence of the war imposed upon them by the aggresion of Germany and her allies."

Nothing else. That is all. The famous admission of responsibility is reduced to these few lines. Of the German people, of exclusive responsibility, there is nowhere a question.

NO NEED FOR DEFENSE

What then was the Germany of 1914? Was it a republican Germany? Was it a republican democratic Germany? It was a Germany which had surrendered all of its liberties into the hands of a prince, who, especially in external politics, had exorbitant powers and whose arrogant and sickly temperament is described in all his writings published after the war. Why is it that the Germany of today, which claims to be a democracy, wants to, at any cost, take the defense of imperal Germany?

France, when she was beaten by Germany in 1871, did not contest the fact that the responsibility for the war and defeat fell upon the shoulders of Napoleon III. France deposed her emperor, she sent him into exile, she broke off all moral ties with him, but she honestly stood the consequences of the mistake she made in trusting him and having to pay the indemnity of five milliard, which was demanded of her.

Today can the German government deny that the imperial Germany of 1914 was the one to declare war, first on Russia and then on France? A declaration of war, as a matter of fact, constitutes the essential and irreparable act among general facts which can determine the responsibilities for a war. As long as the declaration has not been made the harm still can be averted. It is the declaration of war which has set the horrible mechanism in motion.

INEXCUSABLE OUTRAGE

On the other hand, can Germany deny that, after having lit the fire herself, the imperial government committed further immorality? It deliberately violated Belgian neutrality, invading a little country which had not in any way provoked it and which was too small to defend itself. A crime all the more abominable since Germany — like England and France — was a guarantor of Belgian neutrality. Not only she attacked a smaller nation than herself, but she attacked it after solemnly promising to protect it. What excuse can Germany give for such an outrage?

Supposing that, as she claims today, Germany really did fear an armed intervention on the part of France. Supposing there were grounds for all the slanderous accusations which Germany has imagined and forged since the treaty. Would this have given her the right to stamp Belgium under her feet to enter into France more directly? Certainly not. She would have had but one right under the circumstances: that is, after having declared war on France, she could have sent all her efforts directly against the frontier which separated France from Germany.

Remember an incident which in itself is of a nature that reveals the plans followed by imperial Germany. Before she declared war on France she instructed Herr Von Shoen, her Ambassador in Paris, to ask M. Viviani, Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, if we would expect to remain neutral while Germany fought Russia, and Herr Von Schoen had received orders to add that if we promised this neutrality, and if at the same time we turned over to Germany as a pledge the fortresses of Toul and Verdun, we would not be molested.

RELIED ON HONOR

Admire this generosity. In order that war should not be declared on us, we would have had to say to the German army: "Come in, and make yourselves at home." Just for a moment, I will suppose that a free and sovereign nation might have, gladly accepted such a humiliation. If Germany and Austria together had beaten Russia, what hope would we have had that Toul and Verdun would have been returned to us? But this abominable transaction was suggested to Germany by the knowledge she possessed of the value of our Lorraine fortresses. As a matter of fact, during the war, Germany did not manage to take either Toul, Verdun or Epinal. She was up against our bastions in the east—that is to say, against a system of defense which we had long since established and which was sufficiently powerful to slacken for a long time and perhaps to entirely prevent an invasion of our neighbors. It was to get around this fortified area that the Germans entered Belgium, by following our northern frontier and by breaking through their weak points. She knew that on this side we were far less well protected, that we had naturally relied upon the neutrality of Belgium and the honor of its guarantors, and that our plans for the concentration and mobilization of troops were based mainly upon the idea of defending the east.

RESPONSIBILITY CLEAR

Therefore, what caused the invasion of France? It was the invasion of France? It was the invasion of the German armies through the north of France. If Germany, violating the rights of man, had not taken the roundabout way, she would not have laid hands upon the coal mines of the Nord and Pas-de-Calais departments, which supplied all of France with coal, she would not have flooded those mines and rendered them useless for many years, she would not have invaded our most industrial states, destroyed our textile factories, annihilated our sugar factories, annihilated our factories in the beet root districts. Germany is therefore responsible for the harm she did, not only because it was she who declared war, but because, after having declared war, she tried to find the easiest way of invading France, of entering our richest provinces without trouble and to accomplish acts of barbarism there by an attack on Belgium.

It is, by the by, this savage manner of undertaking and conducting the war, entirely disregarding The Hague conventions or even the most elementary morality, which fully justified Article 231 of the treaty. I shall always remember the horror which shook French people when we learned that for the first time the German armies had used clouds of asphyxiating gasses or a battlefield in Flanders. Certainly France would never have taken the initiative and given the example of such odious methods of fighting. Neither did anything compel Germany to send Zeppelins and airplanes to drop bombs on civilian populations, nor to ruin such beautiful cathedrals as the one in Rheims or even modest village churches, nor to destroy the humble homes, the attics and the barns of the peasants.

CRIMES AGAINST AMERICA

Incidentally, didn't Germany behave in the same manner toward your own United States a little later on? How can the Germany of today, which claims to be republican, excuse and fail to take over to her account the crimes which were committed in America in 1915 and in 1916 by German agents (most of them officers) the manufacture of incendiary bombs which were intended for ships transporting food or munitions to the Allies, the explosions set off in factories and plots of all kinds directed against private persons and property?

Yes or no, did four fires destroy four Delaware factories on the single day of October 19, 1915?

Yes or no, was Workshop No. 4, of the Bethlehem Steel Company annihilated? Yes or no, were Prussian Lieut. Robert Fay and his brother-in-law, the Bavarian noncommissioned officer, Walter Scholtz, arrested by the American police, prosecuted and sentenced, along with many other spies who fomented strikes or started fires?

Yes or no, did President Wilson insist upon the immediate departure of the military and naval attaches of the Germany embassy as soon as the trials were over?

Yes or no, didn't other attempts of the same sort take place, even at the capital in Washington and in the suburbs in New York?

And was it not this long series of unpardonable crimes which gradually brought the indignant United States "on the verge of war," to use Mr. Lansing's expression?

HISTORY IS WRITTEN

But the present government of the Reich and the orators, who the other day, attempted to falsify history have also forgotten the torpedoing and drowning of innocent passengers and all the abominations of submarine warfare. Nevertheless, was it not as early as February 4, 1915, that Germany announced her submarines would sink trade boats and civilian passenger ships in the entire part of large maritime zone, regardless of the nationality of the passengers or the crews?

We in France remember this frightful succession of defiance of justice and humanity: The William Frye, sunk by the auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel; the sinking of the Falaba, the Aguila, the Cushing, the Gulf Light, the sinking of the Lusitania, the Armenian, the Orduna; the sinking of the Arabic, the sinking of the American tankers Portland, Lama and Vico; Mrs. Cecile Greibe and other Americans shipwrecked without warning on the Ancona; Mr. MacNeely, United States Consul at Aden, drowned in the torpedoing of the Persia; Prof. James Mark Baldwin, his wife and daughter, traveling with about thirty other Americans on the Sussex, which also was the victim of a deadly torpedo; the explanations demanded of Secretary of State Von Jagow by the United States; the evasive and equivocal replies; Ambassador Gerard's step at Wilhelmstrasse; the famous note of April 20, containing these words:

"The list of Americans having lost their lives on ships attacked and destroyed in this manner has grown larger month by month till the sad number of victims has arisen into the hundreds."

AMERICA'S PATIENCE

We remember the patience of America and of President Wilson. We remember Germany's notification of February 1, 1917, regarding the extension of the submarine zone to all coasts of Europe, and the torpedoing of the California and the death of three American children in the disaster, and the further extinction of the American ships Lyman Law and Housatonic by a submarine, the commander of which watched the victims and delighted in their distress, and the death of Mrs. and Miss Hoy and of several other Americans. Isn't all this sufficient to prove Germany's responsibility and to justify the drawing up of Article CCXXXI.

It would, therefore, not be admissible that at this conference (of which the insufficiently prepared order of the day unfortunately leaves an opening for much of the unforeseen) Germany, called to London simply to confirm her agreement to the Dawes plan and to sign the final protocol, should abuse the invitation extended to her by taking the liberty either of disputing her obligations or of seeking to diminish them.

I am convinced that if Germany uses such tactics, France's representatives will know how to foil them, and that, if necessary, they will be helped in this by their Allies and associates. The conference sits ten years after the outbreak of the World War. It is time for this long period of suffering and misery to cease and for peace to be resumed. Happily, the experts' reports furnish us with the proper occasion to accomplish them. We must not let it go by.

Yes, ten years. It is ten years since Europe has not had a single hour of rest.

How could those who have felt the full effects of the storm bicer over them ever cease forgetting these horrible memories? My destiny would have it that in France during those ten years I should remain in the front row to witness the horrible show. Is this not sufficient that I, whom the Germans so willingly accuse of imperialism and militarism, should be, more than anyone else, determined to do all that is possible to prevent the return of war?

On June 2, 1914, the day of the Sarajevo outrage, the grand prix was being run at Longchamps. According to habit, I was in the Presidential tribune and I received a telegram announcing the fatal news. The Ambassador of Austria-Hungary, Count Zenza, who was next to me, had been informed of the death of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife at the same time as I had. We both left the races, he in mourning, I out of deference, and the diplomatic corps which surrounded me suddenly came under the impression that this disaster was one that might cause the most dangerous complications.

MODERATION URGED

During the days which followed, the Austro-Hungarian press and official circles violently demanded exemplary punishment and a military execution against Serbia. But at first the calls for moderation issued by the great powers seemed somewhat to quell this passion. In a letter which he sent to his ministers on July 4, Emperor Franz Josef stated that he did not feel like implicating an entire nation in a crime which he said was committed by a small number of misguided men who lost their Heads. He then returned to Ischl and there continued his cure which had been interrupted by the outrage.

On the other hand, on July 7, Emperor William II embarked at Kiel for his annual cruise to Norwegian waters. But while at the same time arousing pacific hopes, the Germans and Austro-Hungarian governments were preparing for war. They arranged between themselves that the ultimatum to Serbia should be drawn up in terms of the utmost brutality, that no one should become acquainted with these terms ahead of time and that it should explode like a thunderbolt amid the calmed skies.

They knew that already since January, 1913, the French government had agreed with the Russian government that during the month of July, I should pay to the czar the traditional visit which all of my predecessors paid to him. Austria secured advance information concerning the smallest detail of my trip so as to be sure that I had left Kronstadt with M. Viviani, the Prime Minister, before the ultimatum was presented to Belgrade. In this manner my departure was to take effect without my having any knowledge of this act of threat and intimidation.

STAGE SET FOR DRAMA

Thus at the most critical moment, I was to be out in mid-ocean with the head of the French government, unable to take a single step toward peace making, while Emperor William, in possession of advance information concerning all the evolution of the drama, was to return from Bergen upon the agreed day.

And so it was that, reassured by all appearances, on July 15 I embarked not only for Russia, but also for the three Scandinavian capitals, Stockholm, Copenhagen and Christiania. When I left St. Petersburg and Kronstadt, I still believed in the possibility of there being a war, but I sailed for Sweden and spent a day with the King, and when I left Stockholm I was so little and so badly informed of the secret designs of Germany and Austria that I still expected to go to Denmark, where the King expected me.

It was only when in sight of the Danish coast, that, informed at last of what was going on, by coded radio messages from Paris, I decided to notify Copenhagen and Christiania of my obligation to give up my plans and cancel the receptions which had been prepared in honor of France.

Yes, all this took place ten years ago, and now Germany dares to say that her Emperor did not want war. She allows the imperial heir to return to Germany, she welcomes him, she doesn't hesitate to side both with him and his father. Germany is heedless enough even to continue to assert her innocence and to leave the damages she caused unrepaired. Are ten years really sufficient for the granting of amnesty to the guilty and to extinguish all memories from the soul of humanity?

GLORIA AND HEIFETZ LINKED

Engagement of Miss Swanson and Violinist Rumored as Pair Arrive From Europe

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 22.—The hot winds of romance stirred the Leviathan as it winged its way homeward, arriving at its pier here at 9 o'clock last night. And now the engagement of Gloria Swanson, siren of the films, and Jascha Heifetz, violinist, is rumored.

Gloria and Heifetz were seen continually together, and one evening strains of music were heard that could come only from the fingers of a Heifetz. Heifetz had sprained his wrist. He was unable to play at the ship concert. And yet that haunting music! Nothing was admitted by either Gloria or Heifetz, although they dined together regularly.

Gloria herself was like a blare of music last night in her leopard gown of tawny velvet and burnt orange crepe. It was a gown to be worn by a princess. Tight short skirt, a band of duck feathers hemming it, buttressed in gold and garnets and black spotted. With this Miss Swanson wore Russian sables and rings of sapphire, rubies and emeralds. She brought a big English sheep dog to add to her already large canine family.

"I met Barrie in London," she said," commenting on the rumor that she was to play "Peter Pan." "But we only talked about books and things. I'm not the type for Peter at all. Barrie said he was going to write a play especially for me, though."

Gloria learned that she is to leave for France in September. There she will make "Madame Sans Gene" for Lasky. Before that she must make "The Wages of Virtue" at the Long Island studio.

Will Gloria's new romance fade away in the crude atmosphere of the studio or will the land of make-believe only fan it to a flame? In Hollywood Heifetz danced attendance on the exquisite Florence Vidor, but why speak of Hollywood?

Miss Swanson was accompanied by her literary adviser, Jane West, and her mother.

WORK BY DAY, JAIL BY NIGHT

Carpenter Who Gets Drunk May Help Family as He Serves Term

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LINCOLN (Neb.) July 22. Seventy-three nights in the City Jail, and in by 7 o'clock every evening, were the probationary terms inflicted by Police Judge Chappel on Ernie Eissler, 42 years of age, a carpenter, who just can't keep from getting drunk.

Eissler has a large family. The judge decided that if he jailed the defendant for the full time needed to serve out a $100 fine the family would receive greater punishment than would Eissler.

After a consultation Eissler agreed that he would keep faithfully at work, turn his earnings over to his wife, and show up each night to be locked up. In this way he will "pay out" the fine and at the same time conserve the family's financial resources.

PREDICTIONS ARE PUT OFF BY JOHNSON

Senator Declares He Will Rest Awhile First; Thanks Friends for Support

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, July 22.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson, returning to California today, declined to discuss national politics, declaring it is too early to predict or prognosticate on the issues of the campaign. He said he would give his views on national politics after a rest at his home in San Francisco.

The Senator announced his determination to fight for a progressive Legislature in California and said he was gratified to learn through Gov. Richardson that "there are no forest fires in California."

In a formal statement Senator Johnson expressed his gratitude to the people of Northern California "who, as a matter of sentiment, really, in the May primary voted for me."

"When a man in adversity receives the continued commendation and approval of those who have best and longest known him," the statement continued, "as those who knew me in a hopeless struggle testified anew their affection, results are of little ultimate consequence."

"In the days to come I'll fight for exactly the things I have fought for in the days gone by," the Senator said. "I'm home again to do what I can for California, the California I left of militant progressivism; the California that, while I was Governor, had a public service devoted to the people alone with a record of accomplishment greater than that of any other State."

"No Legislature responsive to the special interest," the statement said, naming the interests the Senator declared to be inimical, "should be elected."

"We must dedicate ourselves anew to doing again what once we did and preserve the results of our work," the statement continued. "Upon this I shall talk to the people of California during this year, for it is the most important matter before us and the one uppermost in my mind."

KELLOGG GIVEN MEDIATOR ROLE

action on the part of that nation and as long as this was possible, the basis for credit was not sound. He expressed the opinion that the difference was not a serious one and that a settlement would surely be worked out from the Kellogg plan, within a week.

In American official circles it is taken that the Kellogg proposal precludes separate action by France, but the same spokesman said that the details would have to be thoroughly worked out to satisfy the bankers. At the close of the afternoon conversations between the financial experts and the bankers, the French delegates reiterated that France was irrevocably committed to the Versailles Treaty and the interpretation regarding separate action with which France has made the whole world familiar through her invasion of the Ruhr, and that implication in Mr. Kellogg's alternative plan is as abhorrent to the French delegation as the Theunis proposal is to the financiers.

NATIONALISTS PLAN ATTACK ON HERRIOT

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, July 22.—The French Nationalists, under leadership of M. Poincare, and supported by the powerful daily press, including practically every newspaper with a large circulation, are mobilizing for a synchronized attack on Premier Herriot for the alleged "concessions and sacrifices" surrendered by him in London.

The press is concentrating on the popular sensational charge that the Premier is surrendering France's right under the Versailles Treaty, its opportunity to obtain reparations from Germany, and its whole fiscal sovereignty to a group of American and English bankers.

The Liberte sums up the general opposition press campaign with the following statement:

"The peace of the world is suspended at the command of two or three Wall street financiers, and it is stupefying to see these bankers manifest such suspicion of France and such absolute confidence in Germany."

After accusing the United States for the past five years of being responsible for all of Europe's woes because the Senate refused to ratify the Versailles Treaty, and loudly imploring a renewal of American participation in Europe's affairs, the opposition newspapers now are mobilizing most adverse criticism against the trans-Atlantic intrusion in their local continental questions, carefully pointing out the ignorance of the American public of European affairs, and stressing the fact that the United States, protected by 3000 miles of ocean, cannot realize the fact that France is only protected by the narrow, shallow Rhine from a hereditary enmity double its population and already preparing for a revenge war.

With T. W. Lamont, known as J. Pierpont Morgan's chief lieutenant, the press articles insist that Owen D. Young also is Mr. Morgan's henchman, and even insinuates that the American reparations observer, Col. James A. Logan, is tainted by Wall street and also infers that Secretary Hughes must bend an obedient ear to the dictates of the American banking syndicate.

DEAD IDENTIFIED IN SHIP'S CRASH

ately began to fill. Driscoll, Barrett and I jumped down among the women and discovered that the sea plugs had been removed. These we stuffed with clothing and the boat made the Swift Arrow safely."

First Mate W. D. Tod, of the Boston, praised the presence of mind of the passengers.

"It was almost miraculous," he said, "for so many people to keep their heads and to take their places without direction in the boats and to keep away from the ship in the blackness of the foggy night. A panic might have resulted in a terrible disaster."

COOLIDGE ASKS CLEAN-CUT FIGHT

our State chairman, and all associated in the campaign management, that I am particularly anxious they should encourage in every way the participation of the people in the actual campaign activities.

"The election belongs to the people. We are planning a campaign in which all can have a part. I have always had a feeling of concern over the great stay-at-home vote which persists through elections and wholly apart from our own success, I feel it should be a national undertaking to see that this stay-at-home vote is carried out of its apathy and made to function. I have no thought that all the new votes will be cast for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket, but as an American, I am ready to say that I feel even though they may not all vote with us this year their attendance at the polls will give me a feeling of satisfaction."

After pointing out that the Republican headquarters will be widespread geographically so that the Coolidge doctrines may reach everyone, Mr. Butler said:

"These offices are only required for the more efficient management of the campaign. They are not required by any political problem which we have of presenting our candidates in different phases to the voters of the country.

ALREADY KNOW HIM

"This is possible by reason of the fortunate fact that the American people as a whole have already achieved their own understanding of President Coolidge. His programs of economy, of tax reduction, of efficiency is nation-wide in its appeal. We do not have to shade or modify it to meet any sectional situation.

"As matters stand our friendly enemies desire to make this, as some of them have said, a campaign based on the personality of the candidates. We will be ready. If they desire to base the election on pledges or party records we will not be disturbed."

Arrangements for the speaking activities of Charles G. Dawes, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, have not been definitely made, but Mr. Butler left Washington late today for Chicago to confer with Mr. Dawes and to resume charge of the national headquarters of the party, which have been established in that city.

The chairman will not return to Washington until just before the notification ceremonies for Mr. Coolidge, but may visit the newly established eastern headquarters at New York in the meantime.

The location of the western headquarters had not been decided on when Mr. Butler left here. Announcement also was made that a speakers' bureau would be established in the eastern headquarters at New York to handle the speaking campaign in the Eastern states.

AUTO DEATH JURY FREES CAFE OWNER

L. G. Sanders Found Not Guilty in Connection With Double Tragedy

Leonard G. Sanders, Monrovia cafe man, accused of having run down and killed on December 1, 1923, Mrs. Mary Wiley, 72 years of age, and her daughter, Jessica Wiley, 43, was acquitted by a jury in Judge Avery's court last night of a charge of manslaughter brought in connection with the two deaths. The jury was out seven hours.

After the tragedy, which occurred in Pasadena, the car sped away, witnesses told the police. The car, a Marmon painted green, was traced to Monrovia by detectives. It was found in the rear of the Rainbow Cafe, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Sanders. The mother of Mrs. Sanders, who had been left in charge of the restaurant, stated to officers that her daughter and Sanders had left on the night of the accident and had not returned.

Mrs. Sanders surrendered to Chief of Police Kelley at Pasadena several days after she and her husband had been charged with manslaughter. At Mrs. Sanders's preliminary hearing she was exonerated and her husband was held to blame for the accident.

A nationwide search for Sanders ended in St. Louis on February 23, last and he was returned here for trial. He pleaded not guilty to the manslaughter charge.

The case was prosecuted by Chief Trial Deputy District Attorney Fricke and Deputy Joes. Sanders was represented by Attorney William J. Clarke.

POLICEMAN A PEST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BROOKLYN, July 22.—All John Zawidski was doing when the cop came in was beating his wife, and he didn't want to be disturbed. So he took the milk bottle and threw it at Officer Braulin. John was arraigned in Bridge Plaza Court, on a charge of felonious assault and held without bail.

TROOPS ARE ORDERED TO QUELL MOB

Illinois Governor Takes Charge; Crowd Threatens Jail on Accused Negroes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) July 22.—Gov. Small tonight ordered Company K, One Hundred and Thirteenth Infantry, of Cairo, to entrain immediately and proceed to Mound City.

MOUND CITY (Ill.) July 22.—Two negroes held here in connection with the murder early this morning at Villa Ridge, Ill., of Daisy Wilson, 18-year-old girl, taken from the Pulaski County Jail late tonight by Sheriff Hudson of Pulaski county, when crowds gathered about the jail threatened violence. It is believed the negroes will be taken to Murphysboro.

Stirred by repeated statements of J. C. Wilson, father of the murdered girl, that he positively knew the two negroes as the murderers, the crowd became hostile and made a rush for the jail. Several shots were fired, but no one was injured.

MURPHYSBORO (Ill.) July 22.—Sheriff Hudson of Pulaski county, accompanied by several deputies, arrived here about 10 o'clock tonight from Mound City, with two negroes arrested in connection with the murder of Daisy Wilson, 18-year-old Villa Ridge girl. The party left immediately for Cairo, Ill., on the advice of local authorities.

TROOPS ARE ORDERED TO QUELL MOB

Illinois Governor Acts as Crowd Threatens Attack on Accused Negroes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) July 22.—Gov. Small tonight ordered Company K, One Hundred and Thirteenth Infantry, of Cairo, to mobilize immediately and proceed to Mound City.

MOUND CITY (Ill.) July 22.—Two negroes held here in connection with the murder early this morning at Villa Ridge, Ill., of Daisy Wilson, 18-year-old girl, were taken from the Pulaski County Jail late tonight by Sheriff L. P. Hudson when crowds gathered about the jail threatened trouble. It is believed the negroes were taken to Murphysboro.

Stirred by repeated assertions of J. C. Wilson, father of the girl, that he positively identified the two negroes as the assailants, the crowd became hostile and made a rally for the jail. Several shots were fired, but no one was injured.

MURPHYSBORO (Ill.) July 22.—Sheriff Hudson of Pulaski county, accompanied by several deputies, arrived here about 10 o'clock tonight from Mound City, with two negroes arrested in connection with the murder of Daisy Wilson, 18-year-old Villa Ridge girl. The party left immediately for Mound City, Ill., on the advice of local authorities.

EL PASO UNITED FOR RAIL FIGHT

Texas City to Contest Espee Merger to Last

Joint Committee is Named to Attend Meeting Here

Co-operation of Los Angeles Will be Objective

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 22.—Merger of the El Paso and Southwestern with the Southern Pacific Railroad will be strenuously opposed by a united El Paso as a result of a decision of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon.

In a formal motion that was unanimously carried the directors approved all steps taken by the City Protest Committee, and a combined committee was named to attend the conference in Los Angeles on Friday to present the attitude of the city toward the proposed consolidation. The directors were guided in their decision by a referendum submitted to the chamber membership asking whether or not they favored the fight against the merger.

The following committee will leave tomorrow for Los Angeles to attend the merger meeting there: J. U. Sweeney, A. P. Coles, Sam Wilson, J. C. Peyton, James L. Marr, A. R. Grambling, A. B. Spears, Charles Bassett, Richard F. Burgess, James G. McNary, Charles H. Leavell and F. B. Fletcher.

The chamber has been undecided as to the stand to be taken in regard to fighting the proposed merger and it was only after considerable discussion that the decision was reached to co-operate with the city and fight the consolidation of the two roads.

Mayor Dudley stated this afternoon that every effort will be made to have the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce co-operate with El Paso in its fight to prevent the merger.

"Los Angeles will be harmed about as much as El Paso if the merger goes through," said Mayor Dudley, "as the elimination of competition in this section of the country has just as much bearing on Los Angeles as it has on El Paso."

Even though members of the City Protest Committee assert they have not been invited to attend the Los Angeles meeting they state that the Chamber of Commerce has received an invitation, and the city committee representatives and those of the chamber will co-operate in every question which will be submitted to the Los Angeles meeting.

With the report made public that the Chamber of Commerce here will fight the merger, information reaching here today indicated that the citizens of both Albuquerque and Santa Fe, N. M., are in favor of the consolidation.

REPLY KEPT SECRET

Just what answer was returned by heads of the Southern Pacific and the Southwestern to the request of the city committee that the roads withdraw their application to consolidate could not be learned as directors of the Chamber of Commerce declared the answer to the letter would not be made public until it was presented to the Los Angeles meeting for its consideration.

Raising of sufficient funds to employ attorneys to properly represent the city in the fight against the proposed merger probably will be the hardest question with which the committee will have to deal, it stated this afternoon. It is estimated that more than $5000 and perhaps $10,000 will be needed to properly conduct a systematic fight. While the city has decided to fight the consolidation railways officials are marking time pending the outcome of the meeting in Los Angeles, after which they expect to learn of the attitude of Southern California toward the plan.

Commitee members are inclined to dispute the recent statement made by William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific, that the terminal grounds in Los Angeles will not be affected in the event the merger is completed.

"Phoenix is favoring the merger on the promise that a main line will be constructed through the city. They do not have this promise in writing and the Southern Pacific is not noted for keeping promises," a member of the committee stated today.

Members of the El Paso Real Estate Board, at a meeting tonight, emphatically went on record as opposing the proposed merger. A decision was reached to have one member of the Real Estate Board attend the Los Angeles meeting. While no formal announcement has been made, it is said that the Kiwanis, Lions', Rotary and other organizations will assist in opposing the merger.

ROAD ATTORNEYS HERE PLEAD IGNORANCE

W. A. Hawkins and J. L. Stewart of general counsel for the El Paso and Southwestern system arrived in Los Angeles yesterday in connection with rate cases now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Asked for a statement regarding merger conditions, Mr. Stewart pleaded ignorance.

"We have been away from the El Paso office now for more than a month," he said. "During that time the merger, of which we have no knowledge outside of newspaper reports, was consummated. The legal end of it was handled by other attorneys in our office. We are here in the interest of several rate matters now pending; we are not scheduled to attend any meetings regarding the merger and, in fact, know nothing of it."

THEATER LENT TO TRY CASE IN

Rosetta Duncan and Brother Sue Cicero Officers

Merchant Offers to Furnish Orchestra to Play

Action Continued; Later to be Heard in Playhouse

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, July 22.—The New Evanston Theater today was lent to Justice of the Peace Henry Williams for the trial of the criminal action brought by Rosetta and Harold Duncan against four Cicero policemen for alleged assault on the actress's party on the 4th inst.

The four charged with assault with a deadly weapon and assault and battery are Chief Theodore L. Svoboda, Benjamin Delaney, Charles Speinke and Charles Widlock. The Duncans assert they were attacked when their car was taken to the Cicero police station for a minor traffic violation and they were joking about being arrested. Rosetta and Harold were given light fines in the Cicero Police Court the other day for the traffic violation. Rosetta and her sister Vivian are the stars of a musical comedy playing here.

FOOTLIGHTS FLASH

The footlights were turned on half an hour before the trial began. Justice Williams entered the theater with something akin to formality and apparently was pleased at the crowded house.

More than 1000 of the 1200 seats had been occupied before the Justice entered. The offer of an enterprising Evanston merchant to furnish an orchestra for the occasion was declined with thanks by counsel.

CASE CONTINUED

The State Attorney's office is very busy and could not find time to prosecute the asserted unruly policemen this week, a representative told the court in asking for the continuance.

Counsel for the officers protested against further delay but to no avail.

The theater manager proferred the house for the next session—which was accepted. Two big boxes of flowers addressed to the plaintiff were returned to an Evanston florist, unopened.

Undaunted by the first "flop" in his attempted production, Justice Williams decreed the next session would be held in the same theater.

STONE WILL FIGHT MOVE BY PACKERS

Declares Any Effort to Modify Consent Decree Will be Opposed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Atty. Gen. Stone has given instructions that any effort to modify the consent decree taken during the Wilson administration against the "big five" Chicago packers should be "vigorously resisted."

This was made known today in a statement which denied that he Attorney-General had refused to make known his views on the subject to a recent correspondent. The Department of Justice has observed, hints, it was indicated, that counsel for some of the packing companies planned an "onslaught" on the consent decree entered in the District of Columbia Supreme Court by which the packing business was divorced from all other lines of effort in which the packers were engaged.

With this knowledge, Mr. Stone immediately ordered his subordinates to be prepared to fight "and to hold onto the ground gained" unless the court reverses the government's contention. He has told department officials that the government's position is "perfectly obvious" and believes that the public interest requires that the department fight any attempt to reopen the proceedings.

Information in the hands of the department appeared to indicate, it was said, that some of the packers proposed to asked modification of the consent decree on the ground that they had not admitted culpability in agreeing to the decree and the court, therefore, was without jurisdiction in the case when the facts had not been adjudicated.

ROCKEFELLER'S OLD HOME IS FIRE-SWEPT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

AUBURN (N. Y.) July 22.—The old John D. Rockefeller home on the Auburn Road, four miles north of Noravia, was burned after a futile battle in which convicts from Auburn prison tried to save the building. Mr. Rockefeller held the place in deep sentimental regard, faithfully visiting it every year. It was here as a boy of 9 years of age, that he engaged in his first business venture—the raising of a flock of turkeys.

PITTSBURG PLUS SYSTEM BANNED

Method of Fixing Steel Prices Held Unfair

Upbuilding of Small Centers Seen as One Result

Reduction in Costs to West Cited as Another

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The Federal Trade Commission today ordered the United States Steel Corporation to abandon the Pittsburg plus system of determining the price of steel.

The commission held to be an unfair method of competition the system by which the corporation and its subsidiaries quote prices on rolled steel products manufactured by and shipped from their plants outside Pittsburg at a Pittsburg base price plus an amount equivalent to what the freight charges would be from that city. The practice thus was found to be a violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act and further to constitute a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton Act.

The commission held specifically that the system is contrary to the public interest, but based on the law of supply and demand is a price-fixing system succeeding the old steel "pools," "Gary dinners" and other methods, and that it is made possible by the alleged domination of the steel industry by the United States Steel Corporation.

ADDS COSTS TO WEST

It also held that the Pittsburg plus system lessens and eliminates competition, retards business in all steel centers except Pittsburg and adds greatly to the cost of steel products. It adds $340,000,000 a year to the cost of steel to farmers in eleven Western States, the commission declared.

Commissioner Gaskill filed a dissenting opinion in which he held the commission to be without authority to prohibit the steel corporation, operating its several plants within the law, from maintaining the same price at all its plants. While not specifically disagreeing with the commission's findings as to the effect of the Pittsburg plus system, he declared the "law does not require absolute freedom of competition" nor does "the law enjoin the observance of sound economic principles."

Summarizing in the announcement of its order what it believed would be the effect of abandonment of the system, the commission said it would build up all steel producing and consuming sections outside of Pittsburg; return to the western and southern steel users the natural advantage of their location; decentralize the steel industry and industry using steel products; force price competition among the steel producers, and eliminate other alleged evils in the industry.

ORDER'S REQUIREMENTS

The commission in its order forbade the United States Steel Corporation or its subsidiaries, from quoting any steel price without listing separately the price of the steel and the transportation charge.

The United States Steel Corporation in the hearings and arguments before the commission, contended that the Pittsburg plus system was the result of competition in the steel industry and that it was created by free operation of the law of supply and demand.

The fight over Pittsburg plus has been one of the most bitter ever waged before the Federal Trade Commission. The entire proceeding was brought on the commission's own investigation and hearings were held at virtually all steel producing points. Later, the fight was centralized here, with attorneys for the United States Steel Corporation lined up against the commission's attorneys, and attorneys for thirty-two associated Middle Western States and western steel consumers, who joined in the move against the system.

DEATH PENALTY ASKED FOR ROBBER IN FRANCE

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, July 22.—Alphonse Gabriel Mourey, valet in the home of Albert R. Shattuck, New York banker, accused of having participated in the robbery of the Shattuck home in 1922, when the family was imprisoned in the cellar, today was placed on trial for his life. Mr. Shattuck was a witness. Mourey admitted the crime. The public prosecutor, under French law, which makes theft with arms a capital offense, demanded the death sentence.

KILLING ORGY HITS CHICAGO

Crime Commission Asks Law Enforcement Bodies to Unite to Stem Record Tide of Murders

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 22.—With six persons killed in a twelve-hour period Sunday and a 3-year-old girl shot to death by her brother today, the Chicago Crime Commission has issued a warning that this city is well on its way toward establishing a new high record for murder this year.

Characterizing the situation as "appalling," the commission calls upon the Police Department, the Sheriff's office, the Coroner, the State's Attorney, and the judges of the Criminal Court to co-operate at once in an effective campaign to stem the rising tide of homicide.

The report points out the fact that there was a murder a day last month. Of 177 persons slain during the half-year ending June 30, last, the cases of forty-one were still unsolved.

"The trend in murder is upward," the commission states. "There were more murders in January (thirty-five) than in any January for five years preceding. The February record (twenty-six) was proportionately the same. March (twenty-four) was surpassed only by the record of 1919. April (thirty-three) again saw all previous records for that month exceeded.

"In May the murder rate (twenty-seven) was higher than for the same month in four years. Chicago's murder rate in June (thirty) was the highest for any June in six years—not excepting 1919 when conditions were so bad that necessity compelled the organization of the Crime Commission."

SHAVER TAKES OVER CONTROL

New Democratic Chairman on Job at Capital

Active Campaign Will Wait Until Next Month

Davis in First Conference at Resort in Maine

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Control of the affairs and activities of the Democratic National Committee was assumed late today by Clem L. Shaver, who has been selected as the new committee chairman, on his arrival late today from his West Virginia home. He immediately went into conference with Cordell Hull of Tennessee, the retiring chairman, but had no announcement to make concerning his plans.

Mr. Shaver in general, however, will in the next three weeks devote his attention to gaining an intimate acquaintance with the organization of the committee and plans for setting the machinery in full motion as soon as John W. Davis, the Democratic Presidential candidate has been formally notified of his nomination August 11, and Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska has been notified of his nomination for the Vice-Presidency one week later.

Mr. Hull will leave Washington tomorrow for a complete rest and is not expected to renew his political work until after the notification ceremonies, when he will take up the fight in behalf of the Davis-Bryan ticket in his own State.

NOMINEE CONFERS WITH HOMER CUMMINGS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DARK HARBOR, ISLESBORO (Me.) July 22.—John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential nominee, had his first political conference today since he became a guest at the summer home of Charles Dana Gibson on Seven Hundred Acre Island. It was with Homer S. Cummings, Democratic national committeeman of Connecticut and chairman of the platform committee of the New York national convention.

The nominee and Mr. Cummings talked over the acceptance speech which Mr. Davis is to deliver at Clarksburg on August 11 and campaign plans generally.

Mr. Cummings's view is that the entry of Senator Robert M. La Follette into the Presidential race has put an entirely new aspect on the whole political situation and that a reassessment is necessary in the laying of final campaign plans.

NEED OF WATER ECONOMY SHOWN

State Railroad Commission Issues Statement

Danger Seen if Rainfall in 1925 is Light

Bay City Reservoirs Said Lower Than Ever Before

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—That hundreds of thousands of water consumers throughout the State of California have had strict water conservation forced on them due to extreme drought conditions prevailing in the State, was set forth in a statement issued here today by the hydraulic department of the State Railroad Commission.

Six water companies, supplying more than 1,000,000 persons, have informed the Railroad Commission that the situation is acute, and stringent methods must be adopted lest the supply fail entirely.

The Spring Valley Water Company, supplying San Francisco, has less water in its reservoirs than ever before, since the completion of the storage system and the East Bay Water Company is in a similar position. Both will be able to furnish a full supply this year, but if rainfall is deficient in 1925 a serious water famine will result unless drastic measures are taken.

NO WATER FOR CONSUMERS

The Yolo Water and Power Company is at this time virtually unable to furnish any water to its consumers, and the Sutter Butte Canal Company has had to refuse service to 4000 acres of rice and has installed sixteen pumping plants to recover water from ditches. Virtually no stored water is had by the San Jose Water Works Company and the water level of wells, upon which the company relies, is rapidly falling. The Kern Island Canal Company, which irrigates land near Bakersfield, has been forced to prorate its supply much earlier than ever before.

Favorable conditions exist, however, in the San Joaquin Valley and unless there is a reduction in the quantity of electric power used in operating pumps, a full supply will be furnished.

SITUATION COMPLICATED

Similar conditions exist in Southern California, but the situation is complicated by the shortage of power and has made it necessary that consumers be greatly restricted in their use of electricity.

The Kings, Trinity, San Joaquin, Sacramento and Mokelumne Rivers have fallen away below all previous low water marks, according to railroad commission's report, and at the gauging station on the San Diego River, east of the Mission, no water has flowed during the present season. Water companies, however, in San Diego county are experiencing no difficulties and most have a supply sufficient for two years.

Herdman, World Authority on Sea Research, Dead

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, July 22.—Sir William Herdman, scientists, died last night suddenly in a small London hotel in tragic circumstances.

Sir William, who had come from Liverpool, where he was a professor of natural history at Liverpool University, to attend his daughter's marriage today, took a room at the Euston Hotel and went out for dinner. A few hours later the police were notified that he was dead in a small hotel in a side street. The body was identified by papers.

Sir William was the greatest living authority on deep-sea research. He was one of the world's greatest authorities on fisheries.

MRS. MURPHY RECOVERING

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, July 22.—Mrs. Ruby Murphy, 209 Center street, Venice, is recovering according to attaches of the St. Catherin hospital after an unsuccessful attempt to end her life Saturday night by drinking lysol. Physicians who attended the woman Saturday held little hope for her recovery, believing that the shock upon her system would prove fatal. It is believed today she will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Government Forces Take Several Positions from Brazilian Rebels

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

SANTOS (Brasil) July 22.—Reliable information received today from Sao Paulo is to the effect that the government forces have recaptured several outlying sections of the city from the rebels and are bringing up heavy artillery and placing it at strategic points commanding rebel strongholds.

Monday night there was a brisk artillery duel between the Federals and the rebels which lasted twelve hours. The rebels failed to dislodge the government forces, who are now surrounding the city on three sides, leaving the rebels only the west for retreat.

It is claimed that the effective marksmanship of the government gunners, who are landing shells on the barracks of the rebels, is beginning to break the morale of the rebels.

Aminius T. Haeberle, the American Consul, is sticking to his post in Sao Paulo. He reports that there have been no American casualties.

Miramontes to be Chihuahua's Next Governor

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL PASO (Tex.) July 22.—Jose Dolores Miramontes, Chihuahua merchant, will be the next Governor of Chihuahua, according to information received here today. The following tabulation of the vote for Governor in the State election of last Sunday was as follows: Miramontes 4918, F. Moye, 2816; Antonio Almeida, 2701, and Jesus Lugo, 1088.

Juarez had an election scandal which will probably result in the death of Seferino Rodriguez who was brutally assaulted and left bound with a heavy wire in his home in the eastern part of the city early yesterday. Rodriguez declares political enemies are responsible for his condition.

CANTON FLOODS ARE REPORTED SUBSIDING

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Three Committees Will Study Problems of Roads

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Engineers, educators, railway officials, city planning experts, police officials and other students of traffic problems, representatives of fleets of motor trucks and of insurance companies, and officials of national organizations which are cooperating with Secretary of Commerce Hoover in an effort to reduce the annual toll of deaths and accidents on streets and highways, will gather for a series of committee meetings on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City.

Some twenty States and the District of Columbia, together with the Federal government, are represented in the efforts of the committees, which were formed at Secretary Hoover's invitation to study various problems which enter into the present traffic crisis.

The committees which will meet this week include those on city planning, traffic control and education. F. A. Delano, chairman of the Washington Fidelity Company, is chairman of the city planning committee.

The committee on traffic control is headed by Maj. Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, and includes railway experts, police and traffic authorities of a number of the biggest cities in the country, motor vehicle commissioners and representatives of the automotive industry and safety organizations.

A. W. Whitney of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, is chairman of the committee on education.

VANCOUVER FANS ARE UP IN ARMS

Declarng that H. W. Lane, owner of the Salt Lake Bees, agreed to bring his club to Vancouver between July 22 and August 3, and then decided not to, R. E. Brown, Vancouver sportsman, threatened yesterday to take the matter up before the national commission. Brown stated that Lane agreed in a telegraphic dispatch to bring the Bees to Vancouver and that the Vancouver Chamber of Commerce and baseball fans raised a guarantee for Lane.

Brown said Vancouver fans are enthusiastic over the chance to be a member of the Coast League and that he would take measures to secure the Bees or at least hold Lane good for his agreement. Harry A. Williams, president of the Coast League had not make any statement up to late last night.

LEONARD, WALKER GO SANCTIONED

Scrappers Will Tangle in Boyle's Thirty Acres Ring on August 21

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 22.—Newton A. K. Bugbee, boxing commissioner of New Jersey, has sanctioned the Benny Leonard-Mickey Walker fight scheduled to take place at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, August 21. Asked today at Trenton if the attitude of the New York Commission would interfere with the bout in Jersey, Bugbee said:

"Leonard and Walker have been given permission to fight in New Jersey and both are in good standing so far as New Jersey is concerned."

LUCILLE JOY PULLS OFF SWIM STUNT

Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian swimmer has nothing on Lucille Joy, better known to her many friends as "Lucille." Miss Joy undertook to show some of her friends that a woman can play "fish" as well as anything else, with results that the pretty Turkish Village hostess swam across Los Angeles Harbor from the mainland to the end of the breakwater. Lucille was formerly a crack aquatic contender in eastern college circles.

TENNIS BOOMING

The present council of the German Lawn Tennis Association predicts a new "boom" in tennis for next season and to further promote its growth, they have allowed a sum of 15,000 marks (gold) for the development of junior tennis.

ANGELS ANNEX OPENING GAME

Spencer's Double Defeats Invading Indians

Seattle Loses to Seraphs by 4-to-3 Score

Payne Bests Sutherland in Neat Mound Duel

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Tub Spencer, who has driven in many a winning run during his long and varied baseball career, drove in one for Los Angeles yesterday and gave the Angels a 4-to-3 victory over Red Dog Killefer's Indians from Seattle.

George Payne also profited by Spencer's hit, for it gave him the decision over Suds Sutherland after the two had hooked up in a neat mound duel. Payne outpitched Sutherland, but was given bad support by Cedric Durst, Angel first-sacker, who couldn't seem to get organized a-tall. Payne allowed but seven hits and two of those were infield taps to McAuley that went as singles because Durst failed to cover first. The locals got eight hits of Sutherland.

Wally Hood, who was "beaned" by Walter Mails in the second game of Sunday's double-header, was back in his old stand in left field and none the worse for his injury. In fact, Wally played a little bit better than usual, getting two hits and making a couple of nice catches.

WELSH TO BLAME

When all the evidence is sifted the blame for the Indian's defeat can be traced to Jimmy Welsh, Seattle first-sacker. With one out and Durst on second and Jacobs on first in the eighth, Whaley hit to Crane and a double play seemed certain. But Welsh dropped Brady's throw and Durst continued right on home with the run that tied the score. Whaley then stole second and continued on the rest of the way with the winning run when Spencer clouted a double against the score board.

The Angels took the lead in the second inning by bunching three hits off Sutherland for two runs. Wally Hood started things by singling over second. Jacobs popped to Welsh in a vain attempt to sacrifice, but Walt Cruise came through with a single to right,

Why Girls Don't Leave Home

Stanislaus Zbyszko, the terrible looking gentleman below, is sufficient reason for keeping young maidens housed at all times. "Zibby" looks tough and is—with his wrestling opponents. The guy in the cowboy outfit is Joe (Toots) Mondt, a tosser of cows, and a grappler of much ability. They meet at the Philharmonic Auditorium tonight.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER
BILL HENRY

Wrestling seems to be getting another baptism of fire in our fair city with Lou Daro at the helm. Tonight he stages Stanislaus Zbysko and Toots Mondt and likewise Yussif Hussane and Sonsa Kozak. Mr. Daro, the promoter, used to be a wrestler himself and can take a lot of punishment, thanks to his early training. However, you have to give him credit for giving Los Angeles a real show if anything in the line of wrestling can be construed as a real show. Zbysko is without question the best-known wrestler in the world. He is likewise one of the most capable.

The manly art of mangling the human frame has been tried in Los Angeles a dozen times without much success. Fifteen years ago some of the top-notchers were here, and ever since there have been periodic outbreaks of wresting. Dick Donald, Puss Halbriter and numerous other brave men have tried to do something with it—even the L.A.A.C. tried it—but none of them seemed to be able to make it stick.

The best attempt ever made was just before the war, when the Athletic Club had Strangler Lewis, Bill Demetral, Gus Karveras, Romonoff, Ad Santel and similar talent, occasionally tossing in a little variety by matching one of the wrestlers with either Prof. Ito or Taro Miyake in a bone-twisting contest. Whether or not Mr. Daro succeeds in getting away with it, you at least have to give him credit for being a game guy.

The rise of Ray Casey as a tennis player is being watched with interest by a lot of persons who see in him wonderful possibilities. It is safe to say that no player in the country has made as remarkable a step forward in the past two years as Casey. Two years ago he wasn't even considered good. Today he ranks just below Bill Johnston on the Coast, quite on a par with the Kinseys, Griffin, Snodgrass and the rest of the top-notchers. He has a remarkable service and a splendid all-around game.

During the past two weeks Casey has won the Oregon and the Washington championships without losing more than two games in any one set. This week and next week he is having his first experience on grass. If his game is as effective on grass as on hard courts they'll have to look out for the big fellow in the East next year. He was invited east this year, but couldn't get away to make the trip.

Casey weighs about 220 pounds and is left-handed. He has steadied down until he is as steady as the best of them, despite the blinding speed of his shots. If he can "do his stuff" on the grass of British Columbia the only question remaining is his ability to carry his 220 pounds through the smothering heat of the East and still survive.

Incidentally, it is too bad that Casey will not be in this part of the country to meet Bill Tilden. They have never met, but Casey is at his very best on fast hard courts and would unquestionably cause Tilden some trouble. As things lie at the present time, Tilden's chief opposition is likely to come from young Chapin, the latest acquisition to his traveling troupe.

Chief bearers of local hope will be Tom Ferrandini and Harold Godshall, who were runners-up to the Kinsey brothers in the Pacific Coast doubles. If Ferrandini's wrist has completely recovered he should be able to put up an argument. Possibly some of the San Franciscans will make the trip south to add a little to the gayety of the occasion.

The great Pacific Northwest seems to be living up to the hopes and expectations of the baseball magnates at last. Both Portland and Seattle turned out in unprecedented force a couple of weeks ago when San Francisco was invading that territory. The Seals succeeded in bringing back from their northern trip more money than any other ball club had ever been able to take out of the region.

The fans in Portland nearly went crazy when the Beavers were able to win something like seven out of eight from the league leaders. Huge crowds turned out every day, and Sunday they jammed the park. They had good attendance the next week also, when the Ducks showed a complete reversals of form and dropped six out of seven to the lowly Angels. Seattle and San Francisco drew enormous crowds, more than 5000 persons squatting in the outfield during the Sabbath double-header.

Another thing about the Northwest is the way they think their scrappers are just about the best in the world. Dode Bercot was a good deal

ZBYSZKO MEETS MONDT

Rival Heavyweight Wrestlers Clash in Main Event at Philharmonic Auditorium This Evening

BY BRAVEN DYER

Gentlemen who make a business of twisting limbs, massaging ears, making malicious faces and warping each other out of shape generally will gather at the Philharmonic Auditorium this evening to take part in Lou Daro's second big wrestling show of the month. Joe (Toots) Mondt and Stanislaus Zbyszko, who through diligent training and the possession of over-size biceps, have become notorious as leading lights of their profession, are to be seen in the main event of the night, with four lesser luminaries appearing in other struggles.

The two grapplers, although they look something alike (pardon us, Mondt,) are totally different along physical lines. Zbyszko is the oldest wrestler in the game today, having been on the card when Daniel disposed of several big beasts in the lions' den. He is built like a fortress and, when occasion demands, which is quite frequently, can pull in his neck with startling effectiveness.

The Pole is educated almost to the point of perfection, being a graduate of several European institutions of learning. He plays the piano and peruses the philosophy books diligently. Whether this helps his wrestling is another question, but the fact remains that Zibby once held the heavyweight title. His expression at all times is ferocious.

Mondt, on the other hand, is young but hardly handsome. He got his start at punching cows in Colorado, which ought to be good training for tossing mere men about the ring. The cowboy doesn't claim to be a student of academic subjects, but is a golfer of no mean ability. Dressed in the regulation togs he looks almost human, and when decked out in his cowboy outfit has been known to set feminine hearts a-flutter. It is doubtful if Mondt will bring his horse and lariat into the ring, but he does plan to do not a little riding at Zbysko's expense and discomfort.

From the standpoint of weight the two men are about evenly matched. Mondt has put on considerable poundage since wrestling here two years ago, and Zbyszko will not have an easy time kicking him around the mat. Also Toots is the proud inventor of the jackknife scissors, a hold that has startled more than one opponent. The Pole may escape it, but Mondt will be trying to clamp it on his rival throughout the scrap.

There are two other bouts on the program. Yussif Hussane, without whom a local show would be as dead as the Democratic convention without William Jennings Bryan, has been selected to oppose Sonsa Kozak, an Armenian of no mean ability. Hussane being a Turk rather makes the affair a grudge battle and the police will be called into play should a massacre seem imminent.

Joe Bonomo, an actor at Universal, but more recently a strong man of great achievements, will have his work cut out for him in attempting to down Emil Maupa, holder of the French crown or whatever it is they bestow upon a champion wrestler. The first match starts at 8:30 o'clock.

Firpo Signs Up for Bout With Mistah Wills

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 22.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, today signed a contract for his bout with Harry Wills. Firpo closed the agreement after a conference with Tex Rickard, who said that the date of the match would be announced tomorrow. Wills has already been signed.

The contract provides that the fight shall not be held before August 30, and that Firpo must meet no other fighter until he boxes Wills. Firpo said he was considering White Sulphur Springs at Saratoga and Summit, N. J., as sites for his training camp.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 22.—The business of making and losing millions in Wall street was temporarily interrupted by Luis Firpo, the "wild bull of the Pampas," when he proved to be the center of attraction upon appearing in the district.

Firpo, first recognized at Wall street and Broadway, was quickly surrounded by 200 or 300. From then on he was able to make but small progress in his stroll through the financial district.

LEON DURAY TO RACE AT VENTURA SUNDAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VENTURA, July 22.—Leon Duray, dirt track champion, and many other noted auto racing pilots will participate in a series of races over the Ventura fair grounds track next Sunday.

Duray will drive his 1925 Miller super-charger which he used when dethroning Ralph DePalma at Ascot a few weeks ago.

The track, pronounced by Barney Oldfield to be the best half mile course in the West is being prepared for the autoists.

LEADS ABE ESPINAOSA BY ONE STROKE AT FINISH

Winning Total is 291 for 72 Holes of Play; Von Elm Third in Spite of Tough Luck

BY CHARLES WEST

Maintaining with consistent golf the lead he obtained early in the tournament, Hutt Martin finished one stroke ahead of his nearest opponent and won his fourth title as Southern California's open golf champion yesterday, when the final thirty-six holes of the titular tournament were played on the north course of the Los Angeles Country Club. Martin's total for the four rounds was 291, Abe Espinosa of San Francisco following with 292, George Von Elm, Rancho amateur, third with 294, and Dick Linares and Mel Smith tieing for fourth place with 295 each. Martin scored 71, 73, 74, 73—191.

MARTIN IS IN FRONT AT RANCHO

Leads Early Qualifiers in Invitation Tourney With Round of 76

Homer Martin of La Cumbre stepped to the front in the first day of qualifying for the Rancho Golf Club's annual invitation tournament yesterday, scoring a 76 which was two better than his closest competitors could do. Frank Tatum, Dr. T. E. Seddon, and Harry Atwater are in a tie for second place at present with a 78 each, while Tom Kennedy, the Hollywood Legion Stadium's golfing representative, scored a brilliant 79 along with Harley Moore, completing the list of players who have cracked 80 to date.

Over 165 players qualified yesterday, according to Dan Loveridge, who is handling the tournament, and an additional 150 are expected to compete today. George Von Elm, and Willie Hunter will make determined efforts to keep the Rancho Flight trophy at home, while Harlow Hurley of Annandale, Jack Tarrant of Hollywood, Jack Neville, former state champion, now playing from the Los Angeles Country Club, and other players of low handicap are to play their medal round today. Match play opens tomorrow, provision having been made for twelve flights, for which a hand-

Hutt's three former titles were all won with a burst of speed in the final round of play, his present championship resulting from his first attempt to jump into the lead and stay there. Martin's 71 on the first round put him at the top of the list, and although he was twice tied, he was never headed, averaging slightly better than 73 for every round.

REAL ABILITY

The victory of Martin is all the more remarkable when it is taken into consideration that he lacks the opportunity for practice that almost every other professional enjoys. Hutt is golf instructor at Bullock's golf shop, and seldom plays more than once or twice a week. He first won the title in 1914, repeated in 1918, and regained the championship in 1921.

The tournament was not without its dramatic moments. At the end of fifty-four holes Martin was in a tie with Dick Linares, Long Beach municipal links professional, for the lead at 218, with George Von Elm pressing him hard with 219 as the result of his dazzling 68 in yesterday's morning round. Tom Stevens of California was next with 220, and Abe Espinosa followed with 221, only three strokes separating the five leaders when they teed off for the final round.

With Von Elm shooting his head off in the morning, he naturally drew a large portion of the gallery for the final eighteen holes, while Hutt Martin and Dick Linares each had their followers. Tom Stevens even had a few gallery golfers trailing him, and only Abe Espinosa of the leaders played unseen.

Espinosa broke par by a stroke on his final trip around the links, and was the first to finish, his total of 292 amazing the public. Hutt Martin took the turn even with par, in spite of three putts on the teen holes tomorrow morning, twenty-one, including the defending champion, Chick Evans, are Chicagoans. St. Louis qualified five men. Five southern golfers finished well up in the list.

Aside from Chicago, St. Louis and the South, the only other qualifier was Jimmy Johnston of St. Paul.

In the team contest for the Olympic cup the southern quartet carried off the trophy with a total of 600 strokes for the four players over 36 holes. The score for this team follows:

Wenzler, 75-74—149.
Osburn, 75-76—151.
Dyer, 72-71—143.
Cornish, 74-83—157.
Totals, 296-304-600.

Second place went to the St. Louis team with 608. The Chicago team with 610 finished third. The Missouri State and the Oklahoma teams withdrew.

Edwin H. Dyer, 24 years old, who is used frequently by the St. Louis Cardinals as a pinch hitter, pinch runner, and substitute in the infield, is an all-round athlete. His regular position is in the pitcher's box.

'EVANS, WHAT A GOLFER!

BY FEG MURRAY

WILL HE WIN THE WESTERN AMATEUR FOR THE NINTH TIME?

Will Chick Evans do what no other golfer has ever done, and win a golf classic for the ninth time? Last year when Chick beat Jesse Sweetser and then Hamilton Gardner at Cleveland he scored his eighth victory in the western amateur championship. It was also his fourth straight win. Evans goes into the tournament this year for the first time without the trouble of playing in the qualifying rounds. That will help him. Also, he is in much better health than he was last year, when he weighed only about 125, due to worry over financial difficulties.

Very few golfers have a record equal to that possessed by the popular Chick. He was national amateur champion twice and open champion once, being the only man ever to win both tournaments in the same year. He has been French open champion and western open champion. He has been a most prominent figure in American golf for eighteen years. Chick has long been considered as the stylist par excellence among the amateurs. Here it is interesting to note that he never takes a full swing on his wood shots. Only his putting has been criticised, and now and then he dumfounds his critics by winning important tournaments by the wizardry of his unorthodox putter.

Colonel Pick Bats in Koehler With Winning Run in Ninth

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, July 22.—Bryan, the Texas League rookie hurler, picked up by the Tigers, met with his first defeat in the five games that he has pitched for the Vernon outfit here today, 8 to 7.

Hughes had but little, and soon lost his three-run lead when he walked in two men in the third. R. Murphy evened things up for the visitors in the fifth with a double, scoring three men. Pick, pinch-hitting for Mollwitz in the ninth, scored Koehler with the winning run on a single. Score:

He played cautiously, being short with his second, running up his approach with care, and sinking his second putt.

Linares went stale on his final round, finishing his first nine four strokes behind Martin, and making matters worse with a six on the par-four tenth. Stevens also slipped, and was the last of the six to break 300 with 297. Von Elm, with a wonderful chance to win the title, took an eight on the Canyon Hole, and almost perfect golf for the

LOCAL LAUGHS

Each week The Times produces a film entitled "Local Laughs," consisting of the fifteen best jokes submitted by local people. Weekly prizes are paid of $5, $2, $1, and twelve of $1 each. A list of theaters showing the film, together with rules for submitting jokes are given daily in a coupon in The Times. Prize-winning jokes, and names and addresses of winners, appear only on the screen. Jokes receiving honorable mention will be given a place of honor on The Times' comic page each week-day, and each of these contributors will receive a souvenir of acknowledgement.

LA FOLLETTE IS DENOUNCED

Wisconsin Republicans Call Senator Usurper

"Wolf in Sheep's Clothing" in Party Ranks

Coolidge-Dawes Supporters Organize Club

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MILWAUKEE, July 22.—Senator La Follette was denounced as a usurper of the name Republican and as a "wolf in sheep's clothing" in the Republican party at a meeting last night, at which Republican leaders met to organize a State Coolidge-Dawes club, and to make a determined fight on the insurgent Senator.

Despite suffocating heat and a driving rain there was a good attendance at this first meeting.

The denunciation of Wisconsin's favorite son came in the form of resolutions read by Edward Yockey, former District Attorney. The resolutions were an effort to define "what is a Republican?" and this is what they said:

DEFINITION OF WORD

"Whereas, the name of Republican has been usurped by enemies of the Republican party who in its name have been plotting against the Republican party, now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that this group of Republicans do maintain and define that the word Republican, as applied to individuals or candidates and to platforms, means that the person or candidate to whom it is applied is one who supports the national platform adopted by the delegates of all the States in national convention assembled; that all persons who do not support and maintain the said platform and advocate the election of Calvin Coolidge to the Presidency and Charles G. Dawes to the Vice-Presidency, are not Republicans, and are not entitled to the use of that name. And be it further

PERPETRATING FRAUD

"Resolved, that any candidate for public office who styles himself a Republican and does not support such platform, or fails to openly advocate the election of said candidates for President and Vice-President, is a wolf in sheep's clothing, and is perpetrating a fraud upon the voters."

Other Republican leaders in the meeting with Yockey were Lyman G. Wheeler, for many years a fighter on the Republican firing line in the State and a consistent enemy of the radical La Follette, Walter Drew, former deputy attorney-general of the State; Peter J. Koehler, Thomas Callahan, John Corrigan, T. P. Abel and H. A. Verges, chairman of the Republican committee.

LA FOLLETTE FAILS TO COMPLETE COMMITTEE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and his advisers failed today to reach a final agreement on the personnel of the committee which will have charge of his Presidential campaign. The make-up of the committee, however, has been virtually determined, only one or two of the eleven places remaining to be filled.

Difficulty is being encountered, it is understood, in making selections that are certain to meet with the approval of the varied groups enlisted in the La Follette-for-President movement. In addition, steps are being taken to ascertain, before any announcement of personnel is made, whether those selected will be inclined to serve and will be able to devote their time during the campaign almost exclusively to committee work.

Agreement has been reached that Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, who is in charge of the campaign, with headquarters in Chicago, is to become chairman. Of the other ten members Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler of Montana, his running-mate, are choosing five, and the Conference for Progressive Political Action a like number. It was predicted today that two members probably would be women.

Mr. Nelson has signified his intention of returning to Washington for a conference with committee members as soon as they can assemble.

One of the pressing problems confronting it is the determination of a financial program.

"HUMAN NEWSPAPER" DIES

Nebraskan Passes With Reputation for Digging Up More Stories Than Any Reporter in Town

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FREMONT (Neb.) July 22.—John Hauser, who played the role of town crier and human newspaper, died the other day, mourned by hundreds of citizens. For many years Hauser ran a book and stationery store. He had no particular interest in making money, and his shop never was a serious competitor in that field.

Newspaper men say that he was the best digger of news they ever ran across. His business was never brisk enough to take all of his time, and being a friendly old chap, he was able, in the course of a day, to unearth more good news than any reporter in town.

What he found he wrote out laboriously in longhand on sheets of print paper or wrappings and hung in his windows. He faithfully chronicled all deaths, marriages, visitors, accidents and the like, and in a short time his store became the Mecca for every curious-minded citizen.

Many of his news stories were so well gathered that it became a part of the reporters' duties to drop in on John during the day. For them he was a prolific source of tips, and many a big piece of news "broke" because John Hauser had some unknown pipe line that he could work to get information through.

No one apparently ever found out where Hauser got his various hunches. He didn't tell, and people were not very curious about it anyway. He became an indispensable man in the community, and he was kindly and courteous to everybody.

He was long ago dubbed the "Town Crier," but he used no bell nor did he cry aloud his wares, but he divided interest for years with the daily newspapers as a source of real news.

GOVERNOR'S PARDON NOT RECOGNIZED

New Mexico's Militia Chief Asks Troops to Release Editor

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

EAST LAS VEGAS (N. M.) July 22.—At 9 o'clock tonight Carl C. Magee, Albuquerque editor, still was in the San Miguel County Jail despite notification of a pardon by Gov. Hinkle on Sheriff Delgado. Notification of the pardon was made by Adjt.-Gen. Skipwith of the New Mexico National Guard, who made an automobile trip from Santa Fe to obtain the release of Magee, who today was sentenced to three months in the County Jail by District Judge D. J. Leahy on contempt of court charges.

Sheriff Delgado resisted the release of Magee on the ground that the Governor had no power to pardon in the case of direct contempt.

Following Sheriff Delgado's refusal to release Magee, Gen. Skipwith immediately got into communication with the Governor's office by long distance telephone seeking to call upon the Twelfth Engineers of the National Guard, near here in summer encampment for assistance to release the editor.

Should the Governor refuse permission to call the guard company, it will be necessary to obtain a writ of habeas corpus to secure Magee's release.

Magee sympathizers picketing the County Jail were dispersed tonight by Col. Lowe, commanding the encampment of National Guardsmen after Sheriff Delgado had refused to release Magee on the delivery of pardon papers from Gov. Hinkle.

The papers were delivered by Adjt.-Gen. Skipwith. The Adjutant-General said at 11 o'clock tonight that no further effort would be made to secure Magee's release tonight and that the case would probably have to be taken to the Supreme Court for a ruling on the Governor's pardoning power.

SANTA FE (N. M.) July 22.—Gov. Hinkle late today issued a pardon to Carl C. Magee, editor of the Albuquerque State Tribune, who earlier in the day, had been found guilty of contempt of court by District Judge D. J. Leahy at Las Vegas, N. M., and sentenced to three months in jail.

The Governor had stated before his action that he would grant a pardon if Magee asked for it. He was advised from Las Vegas that the editor had signed a written application for pardon and dispatched Adjt.-Gen. Skipwith of the New Mexico National Guard, and Lieut. A. E. Barnes to the latter city with the pardon.

When asked what might ensue if the Sheriff at Las Vegas refused to honor the pardon, Gov. Hinkle said the next step would depend on Magee's counsel. The Governor said he had heard rumors of high feeling in Las Vegas and of rumored plans proposing to liberate the editor by force if necessary.

Magee was found guilty on three citations, the third being filed today. All were based on an editorial in Magee's newspaper in which Magee is asserted to have made derogatory remarks concerning his chances in Las Vegas courts.

Announcement!

To all home-owners and home-builders—
To architects and building-contractors—
To carpenters and roofers!

TODAY, for the first time, Barrett Roofings can be secured on the Pacific Coast without delay—ordered with definite certainty of prompt delivery.

Leading architects specify Barrett Shingles for expensive homes—thrifty men roof snug cottages with them. They're artistic, fire-resistant and lastingly weather-tight. If it's a roof for a garage or a shed, use Barrett Ball Roofing.

For 66 years The Barrett Company has rendered a definite service to American building owners. During all this period of time it has made only good roofings. Barrett's recognized leadership in the roofing field is solidly founded on that service.

Lumber, hardware, or building supply merchants will gladly show you Barrett Roofings. If your dealer has none in stock, write to us. We will promptly send you descriptive booklets and tell you where to see these quality roofings.

Barrett Liquid Elastigum
A fibre roof-coating for making old worn-out roofing of any kind lastingly watertight. Its heavy waterproof body and asbestos fibres provide a thick, durable coat. Ready for use. Easy to apply. Low in cost.

Barrett Plastic Elastigum
The "waterproof cement of a hundred uses" stops roof-leaks, repairs flashings, gutters, cisterns, etc. Acid-resisting, waterproof, and sticks tenaciously. Ready for use, low in price.

Barrett Everjet Paint
Seal all metal surfaces against rust with an elastic film of Everjet Paint. Highly resistant to acids and alkalies, it never cracks, rubs, peels, or scales. Easy to apply, low in cost.

Hydronon
Keep your cellar dry and healthful! Hydronon—a permanent damp-proofing paint—prevents moisture on interiors of brick, stone or concrete cellar walls. Easy to apply. Low in cost.

There is a Barrett Roofing for every type of building, whether dwelling, garage, office or industrial plant. It pays to be sure that the roofing you buy bears the Barrett label.

Everyone can afford Dentistry

NO longer need dental work be postponed because the anticipated cost exceeds the limits of the family budget.

The E. R. Parker System now operating in twenty-six cities throughout the West has removed the necessity for waiting, by introducing business methods and economies that have effectively reduced dental costs.

But lowered cost is only one of the advantages afforded by this great system. It also affects a great saving of time for the patient and what is more important insures the highest type of dental service. For Parker dentists are relieved of all executive duties, enabling each one to specialize in some particular branch of dentistry, resulting in a greater degree of professional skill.

Wherever the Parker Shield is displayed, you will find this type of dental service. You will find dentists and nurses competent to give you the treatment you require; painlessly and in the minimum time consistent with first-class workmanship.

This service is rendered in Los Angeles by three groups of registered dentists and qualified nurses using the

TAXICABS AT WAR IN NEW YORK

Rate Cutting by Larger Lines Causes Independents to Follow Suit

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 22.—One of the liveliest taxicab rate wars in New York City history is in full swing following the action of the Twentieth Century and Brown and White Taxicab Association in cutting fares 33 1-3 per cent to 20 cents a mile.

Several of the small companies and thousands of independent taxi owners proceeded to meet the rate cut, and such was the the stampede for the new low rate cabs that practically general reduction of rates was predicted. The Twentieth Century cabs are bright red and wholesale repainting of cabs in imitation of those initiating the fare cut was foreseen.

Until recently but few cabs here charged less than 40 cents for the first mile. To add to the rate war, one thousand new taxis of the newly formed United States Cab Corporation took to the streets today charging 25 cents for the first mile and 20 cents per mile thereafter.

TON OF SACKS STOLEN

MITCHELL (S. D.) July 22.—Seventeen hundred empty cement sacks worth approximately $170 and weighing nearly a ton, have vanished from the bridge construction site along the Omaha railway. It is believed that the thieves waited until the sacks were balled and then drove to the spot at night and loaded them onto an automobile truck.

PORCUPINE INVADES GARAGE

HIBBING (Minn.) July 22.—Dropping from a car belonging to a summer tourist or else chased into town by dogs, a large porcupine invaded the office of the Security Garage here. The "porky" was captured and presented to the park zoo. It is one of the largest seen in Hibbing.

STOCK DISEASE IS CHECKMATED

Washington Reports Fight is Now Waiting Game

No New Infections Found in Last Five Days

Constant Vigilance, However, Urged by Workers

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The suppression of foot-and-mouth disease in California has assumed a condition of watchful waiting, the United States Department of Agriculture announced in a statement just issued.

No new infections have appeared within the past five days, but the State and Federal veterinarians are making inspections constantly and are ready to cope with any new flare-up that may occur. The last two cases of foot-and-mouth disease occurred among cattle in Tuolumne county, which is a rough, mountainous region. The diseased cattle were killed promptly and others running on the same range, and therefore exposed, are rapidly being gathered up by range riders for slaughter.

In Los Angeles county, where the disease at one time took a heavy toll and also invaded the public stockyards, no new infection has occurred for thirteen days. In the other fourteen counties included in the original quarantined area, Federal veterinarians believe that suppression is complete. No new cases of infected animals have been found in these counties for thirty days or more. Surrounding States have relaxed their restrictions affecting the number of live stock from California, and the entire situation is one of constant improvement.

The United States Department of Agriculture again points out, however, that constant vigilance is needed and any animals showing symptoms resembling foot-and-mouth disease should receive prompt inspection by veterinarians experienced in the work. Owners are earnestly requested to report all suspicious cases. It is probable, the department adds, that a force of experienced veterinarians will remain in Tuolumne county to inspect cattle that are now in mountain pastures on the forest reserves and which will be brought down in the fall.

SAMUELL STAND HITS GOV. HUNT

Dispels Rumor He is Only "Back-fire" Candidate

Flays Executive's Colorado River Attitude

Attacks Even More Bitter Than Republicans

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, July 22.—Any suspicion that E. W. Samuell, former secretary of the board of directors of State institutions and director of the State Highway Department, might be a "back-fire" candidate in Gov. Hunt's interest has been swept away by Mr. Samuell, who is hot on the trail of the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. He is talking more harshly about the Hunt administration than the Republicans ever did.

It is known that for many months after the Democratic administration came into power a monthly assessment of 2 per cent was levied on officers and employees of the State. Much of the money so collected went to the repayment of the Babbit estate for advances made for campaign expenses. Some "selvage" is understood to have been left. Now, according to Mr. Samuell, a straight levy of 5 per cent is being made on the State's employees to provide funds for the campaign in which it is hoped to return Hunt to the Governor's office for the fifth term.

VETERAN DISCHARGED

Instance was given of the discharge of Snell Daggett, a disabled war veteran, who was said by Mr. Samuell to have been discharged from the highway department because he felt himself unable to donate $3.75 a month to the Hunt campaign fund, for a wife and child were to be considered. The speaker referred to such actions as punishable under Section 71 of the Arizona penal code.

He holds that less than 40 cents on the dollar used now is being expended by the highway department on the roads, the balance eaten up in overhead expenses. He also charged that employees of the highway department lately spent a week of the State's time in circulation of petitions which would give Mr. Samuell's successor, C. M. Zander, $100,000 to spend as he sees fit in gaining additional information concerning the manner in which Arizona might benefit in the diversion or use of the waters of the Colorado River.

Personal opinion, or prophecy, was added to the effect that the speaker believed that Hunt wants the $100,000 "to use as a campaign fund with which to defeat any opponent he may have in his race for the United States Senate, two years hence."

STAND ON RIVER PACT

The anti-administration candidate doesn't believe in the Colorado River compact, as it was offered the Legislature. He thinks the Gila and Salt rivers should be eliminated from consideration, for their waters already are appropriated. He added: "Los Angeles is experiencing a shortage of electricity, due to scarcity of water development, and I warn you now that unless steps are taken at once to decide this very important matter of the allocation of the waters, we will be forced to stand back and see the old law of priority rights exercised by California, and then we will have no heritage to make to our children. Arizona is not entitled to all the water in the Colorado—neither is California nor any other State, but if we get together and tell each other what we want, we will have formed a basis of speedy settlement."

He referred to a meeting held in Gov. Hunt's office several months ago, the gathering including every man whom the governor might suspect was a candidate for governor. "Their statements," presumably on the compact, "are in the possession of Gov. Hunt and, what I would like to know, has anyone anywhere ever heard of anything that happened after that assembly was held, or what became of the record?"

The State Industrial school, according to Mr. Samuell, is a vice breeder, "and the wrecking of that institution I charge directly to George W. P. Hunt, who has personally instilled into those children disrespect of the officers."

From all of which there has been deduction that Mr. Samuell is not acting as a stalking horse in the Democratic primary for the administration now in power.

ONE-TIME GREAT POST NO MORE

Two Surviving Civil War Veterans Vote to Yield Charter

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONG ISLAND CITY, July 22.—Ranks of the Civil War veterans who were members of Benjamin Ringgold Post No. 283, G.A.R., of Long Island City, have so thinned that there are only two survivors, Dr. R. F. MacFarland and Joseph M. Zarman, both of Astoria.

The post, formerly the largest on Long Island, met in the Queens County Courthouse. The two veterans are no longer able to make the journey, so they met at the Zarman home for the final meeting of the post.

They decided to surrender their charter and to affiliate with the George Huntsman post in Flushing. Ringgold Post was chartered August 5, 1882.

HOPI INDIANS TO AID GOVERNMENT

FEDERATION FORMED OF MEN WHO WERE EDUCATED AT FEDERAL EXPENSE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HOLBROOK (Ariz.) July 22.—Young Indian men who have received schooling in the government and denominational schools outside of the reservation have formed "The Federation of Hopi Indians." The officers are: Byron R. Adams, president; Otto Lomavitu, vice-president; Albert Yava, secretary-treasurer and John C. Makewa, sergeant at arms. It is proposed to work for the advancement and protection of the Hopi tribe.

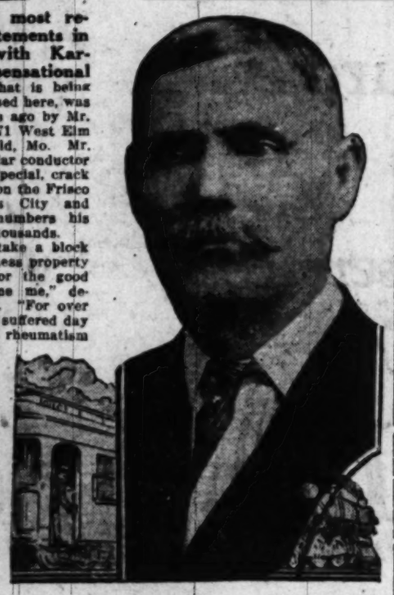
Membership is being solicited as an appreciation of the efforts put forth by the government in behalf of the Indians, with declaration that "the Federal government, at whose expense most of us have been educated, expects, or should expect, some return from the economic investment it has in every educated Indian. We are going to work in harmony with Washington and try to show to government officials that every returned student is not a fighter of the government. The Hopi has no grudge against Washington. He may not understand, and it is to effect a thorough understanding on all questions that the Federation has been formed."

PROPAGANDIST FREED IN ST. LOUIS HEARING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—A charge of using the mails to incite assassination, made against John C. Meyers, German propagandist, has been dismissed following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Atkins. Meyers was charged with having suggested the assassination of former Premier Poincare of France in an article asserted to have been written by him for Der Staats-buerger, a local German-American publication. The paragraph on which the charge was based read: "The German patriots made the mistake of eliminating Rathenau instead of Maximilian Harden. It is probable that a German Charlotte Corday will eliminate Poincare." Counsel for Meyers asserted the word eliminate was used in a political sense, and not with any idea of murder.

Conductor Sims Free of Nineteen Years Trouble



One of the most remarkable statements in connection with Karnak, the sensational new medicine that is being so widely discussed here, was made a few days ago by Mr. William Sims, 771 West Elm Street, Springfield, Mo. Mr. Sims is the popular conductor on the Florida Special, crack passenger train on the Frisco between Kansas City and Memphis, and numbers his friends by the thousands.

"I would not take a block of the best business property in Springfield for the good Karnak has done me," declared Mr. Sims. "For over nineteen years I suffered day and night from rheumatism and although I spent a small fortune on treatments and faithfully took the baths at Hot Springs nothing helped me. I finally got so I could not even walk or stand on my feet and of course I had to give up my run. It looked like my usefulness was about ended.

"But Karnak has knocked my rheumatism sky high and built me up to where I feel as fit as a fiddle. The medicine has simply been a godsend to me, and if anybody wants this statement verified let them write me or call me."

The statement of Mr. Sims is typical of the hundreds being made every day by those who have experienced the remarkable health-restoring qualities of this sensational new medicine.

Karnak is sold by all Owl and Sun Drug stores.—[Advertisement.

VOL. I LOS ANGELES, WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1924 NO. 17

Now Comes the August Furniture Sale to Simplify the Matter of Making the "Home Delightful" More So

Few Words About Many Values

$422.50 Bedroom suites, 7 pieces, $297.50 Beautiful with the simplicity that is only possible when fine woods are used in the hands of fine craftsmen. Finished in English brown mahogany. Full size bow-foot bed, $55. $100 dresser, $75. Other pieces priced accordingly. They may be purchased separately if you like.

$18.75 Double Deck Springs, $13.75—these will fit either straight or bow-end bed — are helical tied for perfect resiliency and stoutly edged to prevent the sag an unwisely chosen spring usually develops.

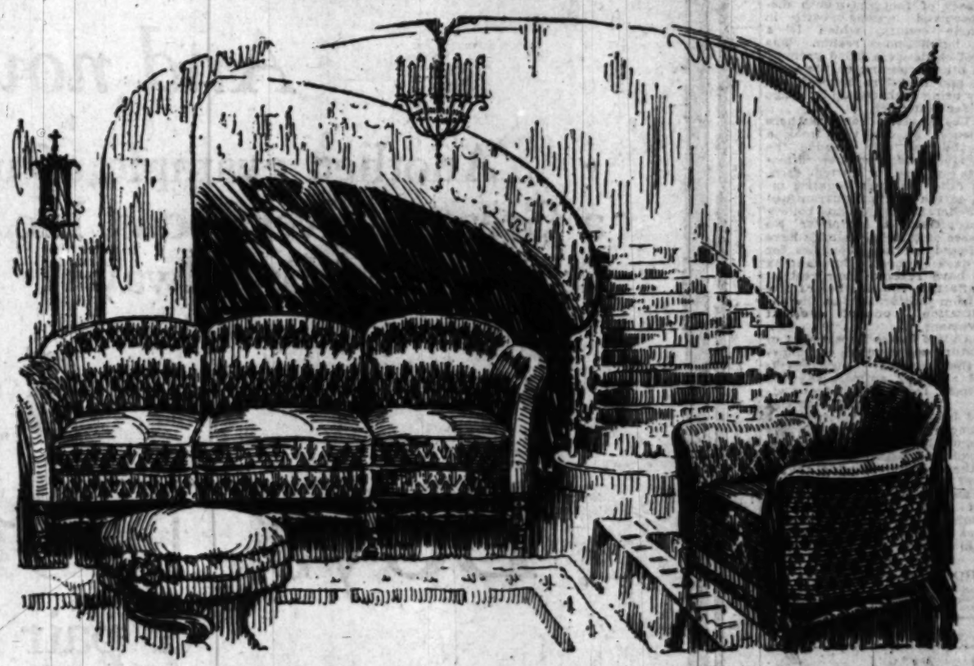
$16.50 Felted Cotton Mattresses, $12.50 — strongly tufted, covered with excellent art ticking and weighing 50 pounds. You'll get many a good night's sleep on this cmfortable mattress.

$102.50 Bedroom Suite, $79 — consists of bed, dresser, chiffonier and night stand. Gray or enamel finish, bow-end bed. A value to take away your breath.

$265 Dining Room Suite, $190 — 8 pieces, mind you, in the dignified Italian design so befitting a dining room. Finished in French walnut—the exquisite beauty of the grain showing in table top and panels.

$425 Dining Room Suite, $320 — massive, well proportioned, each piece distinctively beautiful. It was one of the show suites of the Grand Rapids market, where our buyer selected it.

$375 Dining Room Suite, $275 — another distinctive suite — built on massive lines, yet quite suitable for the smaller dining room. 8 pieces — buffet, extension table, five side chairs and one arm chair. French walnut finish. Chair seats are tapestry covered.



We Give First Consideration to the Living Room and This $395.00 Suite for $295.00

A cool hundred saved! And a living room made comfortable for years. Deep cushioned comfort in the davenport and chair which comprise this suite. And the same comfort in an odd occasional high back chair with matching cover. This last, $65. Truly a suite you love to live with.

It may be you want this as a nucleus for your living room—it may be the additional pieces to round out the living room which has already been lived in. In either case we take a particularly keen satisfaction in knowing that we have had some part in making yours a more livable living room.

An Amazing Amount of Comfort Is Built Into This Suite, $155.00

After all, its comfortableness is the thing that sets apart the really fine pieces of living room furniture. And, comfort must be built in. Carefully built in by men who are real craftsmen, men who have spent perhaps a lifetime carefully designing, fitting and otherwise doing their share in producing the comfortable furniture that plays a major role in preserving the well being of the entire family.

This suite is covered with Baker cut velour. If your prefer just two matching pieces or even a single piece it is priced, for the davenport, $77.50, arm chair or rocker, $37.50 and high back chair, $40.

(Hamburger's—Fifth Floor)

A $55 Davenport Table is Priced, $32.50

No davenport which takes the center of the room, or any position away from the wall, is quite complete without such a table.

It gives that finishing touch, forms the connecting link that prevents the davenport seeming to be a thing apart. It rounds out a principal living room group and adds a certain slender beauty no other piece of furniture affords.

This particular table of Tudor mahogany finish comes in a handsome Italian design. Top 60x20.

An Intimate Little Tea Wagon Is Only $

A very superior first cousin to the tea wagon with which you are most familiar! A tea wagon which does not stay in the living or dining room, but flits to any sunny spot where one might choose to have breakfast, a two-some dinner or linger for a chatty half hour and cup o' tea.

Combination walnut — has four small swivel wheels which permit it being turned any direction, has two large drop leaves, which open to 28x43 inches or, when dropped, make it small enough to go through a 30-inch door. Worth $37.50.

Bay City is Held No Wetter Than Other Seaports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Liquor is plentiful and easily obtainable in San Francisco, but the city is no wetter than any other seaport in the country, according to Sylvester R. Rush, Special Assistant United States District Attorney. Mr. Rush was sent by Atty.-Gen. Harlan Stone to this city to assist U. S. Dist.-Atty. Sterling Carr, who was recently appointed to office.

"One can get liquor easily in San Francisco," Rush said, "but it also is easily obtained in other seaports, and San Francisco is no wetter than any other port."

A NEW LOAF
HOLSUM

TODAY, HOLSUM Twin-Loaf—the newest member of the HOLSUM family—makes its initial bow to the people of Southern California.

HOLSUM Twin-Loaf is a double loaf—two in one—so cuts into many slices; slices that are just right for dainty sandwiches—that fit your toaster without trimming—a point which every housewife will appreciate.

The completion of the new HOLSUM bakery at Beverly Hills makes it possible for us to offer you this twin loaf. Up to this time, the HOLSUM bakeries have been working to capacity day and night to supply the demand for the regular HOLSUM loaf. Now, however, with our capacity greatly enlarged by the opening of one of the largest bakeries in the country, we offer HOLSUM Twin-Loaf.

Try this new loaf today. It is rich in milk and shortening, high in food value and of delicious flavor—in a word, fine eating bread, in a loaf that gives you more slices. Your grocer has it.

"My Rheumatism is gone—"

"THERE are thousands of you men and women, just like I once was—slaves to rheumatism, muscle pains, joint pains, and horrible stiffness. I had the wrong idea about rheumatism for years. I didn't realize that increasing blood-cells had the effect of completely knocking out rheumatic impurities from the system. That is why I began using S. S. S.! Today I have the strength I used to have years ago! I don't use my crutches any more." S. S. S. makes people talk about themselves the way it builds up their strength. Start S. S. S. today for that rheumatism. You'll feel the difference shortly.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

One Friend Tells Another

The fame of a successful remedy is often spread far and wide by women telling one another of its merits, as is evidenced by a letter written by Mrs. Delbert Bush of Masena, N. Y. She writes: "I was in such a bad condition I could hardly walk, a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with excellent results advised me to try it. It has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough." There are women everywhere who have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and gladly tell their friends and neighbors about it.—[Advertisement.

The Affair at Othman's

BY WILL PAYNE

Welbasky gravely contemplated his companion a moment and asked soberly, "How old are you?"

"Twenty-six," Kendall replied.

Quite as soberly Welbasky observed: "Old enough to know better. Don't you see, you're just romancing about it—making up a story? If and if and if—and then, with half a dozen more ifs, your story might have some interest for me. I've got to have things a court will listen to. Your story's fine, only there are no jewels and Jenks is out of it. I'm going to give you the squarest deal there is in the shop. On my word, I want you to win. I don't want to hurt that young lady, any more than you do. But I can't tell the newspapers fairy stories. I've got to produce something pretty soon."

Kendall realized that he must look youthful and romantic and foolish to this capable policeman. He almost looked so to himself. All the same, he stuck to his ground, saying apologetically:

"Well, I know it sounds like a pipe dream to you. I haven't got anything yet; but I want to search the house."

With some impatience Welbasky replied: "I've been searching the house ever since 8 o'clock last night. Principally I'm looking for the gun. But if you want to search, go to it. I'll give you a good man—name's O'Rourke; he's up there now."

"Thank you," said Kendall, sincerely and with humility. "And one more thing. I'd like every servant that goes out of the house searched for jewels."

Welbasky grinned helplessly, at such persistence, but made no objection: "I'll see to it. Remember, not one of 'em has left the house yet. Not one of 'em will till I give the word. So whatever was in the house when Othman was shot is there yet."

When Kendall left the office it was Welbasky's opinion that some pointless conversation was all he would get out of this new ally whom Roger Muldoon had wished on him. But within an hour he was by way of revising that opinion.

The murder of Frederic Othman was a crime that tingled even New York's crime-jaded nerves. His great wealth, the air of mystery about him, the stories of scandalous living, the unnamed young woman who had been with him at the time he was shot, or immediately before, combined in a dramatic appeal to all the grosser curiosities. The town sat up, opened-mouthed. The case was talked of everywhere that morning. Any detail, even a matter so insignificant in itself as the visit to police headquarters of the man who helped Jenks to his feet after the fall on the sidewalk, brought an avalanche of extra editions. The same dramatic pull brought other men, and some women, to the police with information or suggestions.

One such visitor, arriving half an hour after Kendall left, was the architect who designed Othman's house. He came with information that there was a secret safe built in the wall of Othman's bedroom. Welbasky pricked up his ears at that. It suggested that his young ally's notion of a quantity of rare jewels might not have been so bad a guess after all. It was sufficiently important, at any rate, to be taken in hand personally. He drove up to Othman's house.

Kendall was already there, and from the time of their arrival, the evening before, the house had been completely in the possession of the police. Although Othman's death had been published to all America at breakfast that morning, not a person had put in a claim to represent him, through relationship or even through friendship. No kith or kin was known to any of his business associates in New York. His body had been removed to an undertaking establishment by order of the police without a single unofficial attendant. There at this hour it still lay solitary, derelict, unclaimed by a tie of blood or affection. Downtown, to be sure, there was an eager gossiping and speculating as to what disposition he had made of his wealth, where his will was, who his executors might be.

The assassin's shot had destroyed him in more than a physical sense. Alive, he had been much feared, much sought after for profit; but he had gone his own way, with few friends and no real intimates, his pleasures mainly of an unsocial or antisocial sort. Nobody feared him now; there was no more profit to be had from him; the flood of scandal which his death unloosed made conservative gentlemen chary of claiming friendship with him. For the moment everybody stood back from him, startled—or alarmed for their own vulnerable reputations. In a back room at an undertaker's he lay alone. It was not until that afternoon that one Jacobs, in London, began bombarding official and unofficial persons in New York with cablegrams to the effect that he was Othman's first cousin and nearest living relative—and was coming to New York by first boat to claim the estate. Meanwhile there was no one to disturb the police in their possession of the house, and two uniformed officers outside kept the curious crowds moving.

At the house Welbasky called Kendall and Detective O'Rourke into Othman's bedroom. The reporter had first seen this room on the preceding Tuesday, when Jenks drove him through it to the bathroom at the point of a pistol. It was long and narrow, with a broad window in the north end, taking up two-thirds of the wall space and overlooking the little garden at the rear of the house. A wainscoting of beautiful, polished and paneled rosewood came up four feet from the floor. Above that the wall was painted with a formal, ornamental design of geometrical scrolls divided into panels four feet wide and six feet high, a bright colored framed print hanging in the center of each panel. A carved rosewood bed with a silken spread stood at the south end of the room near the door to the bathroom which had been Kendall's prison.

The police had already searched the room for the weapon with which Othman had been killed. Welbasky now asked his two companions if they could see any sign of a secret safe in the wall.

"Have to sound all the panels," said stout, phlegmatic O'Rourke, pointing to the polished wainscot.

"Well, fetch Jenks and Willitts down; see what they know about it," Welbasky directed—for the servants were more or less marooned on the top floor.

When the lank-faced valet and the respectable butler were brought in, Welbasky questioned them in turn regarding their dead master's jewelry. Jenks showed, at the dressing table, where studs, cuff buttons, stick pins and the like were kept. He remembered once having seen some more precious jewelry—a large ornament for a woman's hair, set with fine diamonds, and a pair of bracelets containing precious stones. Mr. Othman had exhibited them to a lady caller. But Jenks had seen them only that once; no doubt Mr. Othman kept them in a safe deposit box somewhere. The butler had never seen even that much jewelry in the house, unless that case of rare coins down in the library could be called jewelry. Both butler and valet were positive they had never heard of any such thing as a secret safe in the master's bedroom.

By that time the architect and two expert workmen for whom he had waited reached the house. The architect, trim, brisk, with glittering eyeglasses and a perfectly-pointed grizzled beard, stepped over to the east wall of the room and laid the point of his slim walking stick on a spot eighteen inches above the wainscot. There were five painted panels on that wall. In the center one, where the architect pointed, the geometrical design piled up in a complicated scroll. All the spectators now saw that the point of the architect's stick rested on a tiny keyhole. It was like one of those puzzle pictures at which one stares in vain until the hidden design is pointed out; then it is as plain as the nose on a face; looking a second time one sees it at a glance. Any one might have looked at this painted scroll a thousand times and noticed nothing unusual in it. But when it was pointed out, one saw easily that there was a tiny keyhole in that dot of black paint. Both Jenks and Willitts stared at it now with a sort of incredulity.

Jenks collected his master's keys—all that he knew of—but not one would fit the thin hole in the wall. The rug was moved, a cloth spread to save the polished floor, and the expert workmen attacked the wall. The safe itself readily yielded to their drills and was open within three-quarters of an hour. Evidently it had not been designed to resist burglars, but only for concealment—a simple box of half-inch steel, two feet high, a foot and a half wide, and a foot deep divided in half by metal shelf.

It contained a glittering tiara to be worn on a woman's head, and nothing else. The ornament was a large one, rather suggesting the stage or a court pageant. Its workmanship was a masterpiece of the jewler's art, and it sparkled with diamonds. But a second glance showed that all of the stones except the three central ones were quite small, and those three were by no means extraordinary in size or quality. In fine, a showy thing, and valuable on account of the workmanship; but after looking it over a minute Kendall doubted that it would fetch a hundred thousand dollars at auction.

To be sure, a hundred thousand dollars was much money to a servant, and if Othman had been killed for robbery why hadn't this been taken? Moreover, if Jenks knew of his safe in the wall, he had played the role of ignorance convincingly. Welbasky, at least appeared to be convinced, for he remarked dryly to the reporter:

"Well, that don't help much."

They had gone out into Daphne's room together and the policeman added, with a sober significance, "Looks like a wild goose chase. Chasing wild geese won't answer long."

Kendall understood. It was only by an unusual indulgence that Welbasky had permitted Flora to stay at home last night, and kept her name from the newspapers. A word high up from Roger Muldoon had powerfully strengthened her defenses. But it could not last long. All New York, all the country, was agog over this murder. It put the police on trial. Probably by this evening, but certainly by tomorrow morning, impatient criticism would be heard. Why weren't the police doing something effective? Above all, why were they shielding that mysterious young woman who was with Othman almost at the moment he was shot? Kendall was sensible enough to admit that the circumstances fairly justified the police in publicly laying hands upon her. As he looked upon it, arresting her would be merely tossing her to the hungry wolves. But the pressure to do that would soon be irresistible. Yet it mustn't happen; he felt it to be almost as unendurable as an actual tossing to the wolves.

"See here, captain, I know you are square with me. I appreciate it. But listen for a minute. That thing we've just seen is worth, maybe, $100,000. I doubt it would fetch that much. That's small change for Othman. Why, the newspapers said his collection of rare coins was worth near a hundred thousand; exaggerated, maybe; but it's worth a lot of money. And it's down there in the library in a glass case that anybody could break into with a kick. He wouldn't have gone to the bother of a safe in the wall just to hide $100,000 worth of jewelry. Jenks has been his valet over ten years, close to him, going in and out of that bedroom ever since this house was built. You can see at a glance that he's an inquisitive, prying sort of a rat. He knew that safe was there. It couldn't have escaped him. He knew there was more in it that what we've just seen. Look at his lank jaws and piggy eyes and chalky face!"

He was going on; but Welbasky interrupted him with some irritation: "Haven't you got it through you nut yet that I can't charge a man with murder on his mug? Haven't I shown you that Jenks is out of it? For Pete's sake, man, take a bromide; you've got a bug in your bean." The captain, in fact, was starting for the door.

But Kendall laid a hand on his arm, with: "Well, say I have got a bug about that. Here's something different. I'll show you what Nelson Barlow was after in this room."

He was loath to do it. There was even some flavor of treachery in it. But Nelson Barlow hadn't told him the truth. He'd said that he knew Flora was coming to this house and had followed her to protect her. But Flora had said Nelson did not know she was coming to the house, and to Kendall her word was conclusive. So Nelson had lied to him on that point. Finally, if Jenks didn't shoot Othman the conclusion that Nelson Barlow did was almost inescapable. The frail dam which held the torrent back from Flora could not stand long without reinforcement. If somebody had to be thrown to the wolves let it be Nelson Barlow. So the affair stood in Kendall's mind when Welbasky contemptuously rejected his fantastic suspicion of the valet.

The policeman caught the suggestion with a "Now you're saying something."

Kendall led him over to the richly carved chest with a scarlet cloth upon it near the bedroom door, and in a moment found the shallow drawer which Barlow had mentioned. Four pieces of pale-blue paper still lay in it. The detectives had already found that drawer and looked at the papers, which, however, appeared to be business documents of no especial significance.

"That's what he was after," said Kendall. "I went to see him this morning, hoping he'd know about some rare gems here. I told him I was going to take a hand in searching the house. He asked me to get these for him—slip 'em in my pocket without saying anything to anybody. He said they meant nothing in particular—just some vouchers that he'd brought up from the office for Othman to see and wished to return to the office files. That sounded fishy to me. You see, they're vouchers from the office of the cartridge company. Probably you can find out what they mean down there. They're important enough that he was willing to take a risk to get hold of them. If somebody's got to be tied to the stake let it be him."

"Sure!" Welbasky assented. "I'm with you there. This is something worth talking about." He was examining the papers with interest.

"But you won't forget to have Jenks searched if he leaves the house," Kendall reminded him. "And I'd like to search his room now."

Welbasky laughed helplessly. "All right, Nutt. If you want to amuse yourself that way I'll give you O'Rourke. There's no better man."

New Live-Stock Rates Will Save Shippers Money

Holding Company Plans Long Beach Building

San Francisco Man Joins Up in Los Angeles

California shippers of live stock will save $100,000 a year as the result of new rates authorized by the Railroad Commission.

Carload shipments of live stock moving between points within the State of California are assessed charges based either on specific commodity rates or on the Class B rates. The Class B rates are used only between points where no commodity rates are in effect, and, generally, are higher than the commodity rates.

This adjustment, for a number of years past, has proved unsatisfactory and the cause of more or less dissatisfaction on the part of shippers between points where no specific commodity rates have been in effect.

The Railroad Commission has authorized F. W. Gomph, publication agent for carriers, to issue tariffs effective at the earliest possible date, putting into effect a schedule of distance rates applying to horses, mules, burros, donkeys, jacks, cattle, sheep, goats and hogs. This mileage schedule will reduce materially many of the rates, and it is estimated that the total freight charges against live stock will be reduced by approximately $100,000 per annum within the State of California.

HOLDING COMPANY

Organization of the Marine Holding Corporation with a capitalization of $1,000,000 by Los Angeles and Long Beach bankers was announced yesterday. The new corporation assumes the interests of the Long Beach Holding Company which was originally organized by Irving H. Hellman, vice-president of the Hellman Commercial Trust and Savings Bank; E. J. Wightman, president of the Marine Bank of Long Beach, and I. Eisner, president of the Sun Realty Company.

The Marine Holding Corporation will build, as its initial enterprise, an eight-story building for the Marine Trust and Savings Bank at the northwest corner of Pine avenue and Broadway. Officers of the company are E. J. Wightman, president; Irving H. Hellman, vice-president; Max R. Wallace, secretary; Julius Blum, treasurer; Claude C. Lewis, Charles Malcom, David M. Smith and Roland G. Swaffield, directors.

PERSONAL MENTION

John P. Martin, formerly assistant sales manager of the Anglo-California Trust Company of San Francisco, has joined the organization of Metsler & Co. of California. Mr. Martin has had considerable experience in the bond business, both on the Pacific Coast and in New York, having been associated in the latter city with the Bankers' Trust Company and the Old Colony International Corporation.

EARLY ADVANCES LOST IN COTTON CONTRACTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 22.—The rising movement in the cotton futures market was resumed today under heavy buying in early session but was not sustained. Large realizing sales developed but were readily absorbed. Sentiment continued distinctly bullish and nervousness was apparent among the remaining short element in the old crop month. Prices in that option were forced up more than $1 a bale early by short covering. Values in mid-session were carried sharply under the early high level by heavy realising and professional selling on reports of heavy rains in Western Texas, but slightly under the previous closing level good support was encountered which steadied the list. July closed but 5 points under the day's best and 57 points up from the previous closing, but other months were 2.3 points net lower.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Bright Spots on the Business Horizon; Market Opinion; Bad Investment Losses

The upturn in wheat, corn and cotton is getting a prompt reaction from the districts devoted to these crops with the business outlook correspondingly improved. Another bright spot, according to the Oakland Bank Review, is the increasing strength of the security markets, and still another is the soundness of the railroad situation.

The roads have been quietly working themselves out of the demoralized condition in which they had been left at the termination of government control, into a situation where their relations with labor are amicable, their facilities and service to the public adequate, and their securities in demand with the investing public.

The current reaction in business seems to be another of those periodical adjustments that in the long run prove a real benefit. Overproduction in certain lines, high cost of construction, high cost of living, and agricultural depression, all required correctives. There can be nothing fundamentally wrong with a country that, with only one-fifteenth of the population of the world, can command more than one-half its gold, its railroads, its developed water power, its automobiles, its telephones and its production of basic commodities as coal, iron, oil and copper; which has the most scientific methods of production and distribution; a country that easily feeds itself; and one that the entire world now looks to for political, industrial and financial leadership. To maintain its leadership it only requires industrial balance and political poise.

Viewed as a whole the returns upon this season's agricultural output from California promise to be satisfactory. Due to drought conditions, losses will be recorded undoubtedly by a considerable number, but on the other hand, crop shortages will be largely compensated for by good prices and the net result will be as good or better than if abundant crops and low prices were experienced as was the case last year.

A factor of prime importance to the grower is the plentiful supply of labor available for this season's harvest. Reports from everywhere in the State indicate an easier condition in this respect than has existed for some years past, and no difficulty is expected this year in harvesting crops at a reasonable cost.

MARKET OPINION

S. F. Balantine, head of Balantine & Co., investment bankers, Lowe State Building, said yesterday in commenting upon present trends that in his opinion the current condition of Los Angeles investment is not a speculative one, for it is paying dividends sufficient to warrant its exchange quotation of around $3.50.

The bullish tone which peryades the market may be attributed in part to the favorable foreign outlook, including the Dawes plan of rehabilitation in Germany, while the activity of cotton resulting from the unexpected government estimate has had an effect reaching beyond the ordinary market limitations.

In Los Angeles money is plentiful and more liberal terms are said to be available for well based building operations. The city, as a whole, is in better case than other Coast or eastern centers. Call loans in New York are at low ebb, indicating that the public is not indulging in speculative experiments that are not soundly rooted. The general business trend has changed from a pessimistic to an optimistic tone.

Thousands of tourists are now enjoying the delights of a Southern California summer and other thousands are on their way. This will stimulate retail trading.

A MORNING THOUGHT

Los Angeles is the largest city on the Pacific Coast; the fifth city in the United States in population; the eighth city in industries, and the ninth city in wealth.

BUYING BLUE SKY

Losses through fraudulent stock sales and exchange of Liberty Bonds for worthless securites "are estimated to have risen from $250,000,000 in 1914 to $1,000,000,000 a year at the present time," according to Andrew Ten Eyck, member of the New York bar, in the opening article of the July issue of the Harvard Business Review, soon to be published, the official quarterly of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, which recently received $5,000,000 from George F. Baker.

Mr. Ten Eyck has been making a study of the question of popular investments. He says that the loss of $1,000,000,000 "is not only an inroad into the working capital of the nation, but also a source of unrest on the part of thousands of victims of security swindles. It is recognized everywhere as a legitimate concern of the State." Mr. Ten Eyck says that "when American business has recovered its sense of direction and proportion, there is still likely to be a reflection in the leading security markets of one permanent consequence of the war, which is the increase in the number of investors from about 3,000,000 to well over 20,000,000.

PURCHASING DECLINE

The Credit Clearinghouse weekly report shows a slight decrease in purchasing, equal to 1.6 per cent below the preceding week for the country as a whole. This decrease is fairly evenly distributed over the six sections, varying from a decrease of 2.6 per cent in the mountain section to a decrease of 0.6 on the Pacific Coast.

As compared with the corresponding week in July, 1923, the present week shows a decrease of 3.0 per cent for the country as a whole, varying from a decrease of 4.2 in the south agricultural section and a decrease of 3.0 on the Pacific Coast, to a decrease of 2.2 in the east section, and a decrease of 1.4 in the north agricultural section.

Payments are slightly slower throughout the country except on the Pacific Coast.

In the Pacific Coast section, California and Washington decreased purchasing, with a slight increase in Oregon over the week before.

TALES OF THE DOLLAR

This is one of a series of articles written for The Times by Thomas N. Dysart, a member of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, which he calls "Tales of the Dollar." They are told for the purpose of pointing out some of the pitfalls into which the unwary may fall, and to show the average man or woman how to invest safely and soundly. In the next stallment the author will discuss "The Reproductive Power of the Dollar."—Editor.]

BY THOMAS N. DYSART

In the preceding article I gave a brief inventory of the colossal wealth-producing enterprises of this country. I said that every American should for his own good and for the upbuilding of his country have at least a few dollars invested in these sound enterprises. How, then, can the inexperienced know how to discriminate between the many that are good and the few that are bad?

The best answer I have found to that question in almost a lifetime in the investment business is an incident I saw in an investment banking house in a large Ohio city. A widow, about 35 years old, inexperienced in business, wished to invest $32,000 of life insurance, which, with household goods and an automobile was all her husband had left to her and her two little daughters.

"Oh, I don't know what to do," the woman said, tearfully. "Some say this is good and that is bad. Others say that is good and this is bad."

"We won't take anything on hearsay," replied the Ohio investment banker. "You are going to invest your money safely and you are going to know you are investing it safely. First, promise me you won't invest or lend a penny for two weeks. Keep it in the bank. Next, you must inquire thoroughly if this firm is honest. Above everything else, you must know that the persons you deal with are honest and experienced. I want you to take two weeks doing that. The worth while investments aren't going to melt. You don't have to snap up anything. You must go slowly."

"But what will I ask about you?" the widow interrupted. "Whom will I ack?" I don't know any banks or what to—"

"Write, then," said my friend, "to the six largest banks in the city. Ask if this firm is honest, experienced; how long it has been in business. Ask the same questions of your minister, your doctor, lawyer, dentist, your late husband's employer, and of every reliable man you know. Meanwhile I want you to read carefully the financial pages of a morning and afternoon newspaper every day."

He named two newspapers. The woman was amazed.

"You probably never have read financial news," my friend explained. "Most women and a great many men have not. The stories you have read of robbery, theft and fraud are not financial news. They are information on crimes. For every fraudulent security offered there are a thousand honest securities offered. For one investor swindled thousands invest safely. But it is not news if a thousand persons invest safely while it is news if one man is robbed. I want you to read financial papers, the news of honest business, not the news of crime. You needn't bother about reading the daily market quotations unless you wish. Price fluctuations do not concern you. You are looking for values, not prices. Now, don't worry, don't lend a penny to kinfolks or anyone, and when you are satisfied this firm is honest come back and we'll talk it over."

Later I learned that my friend invested the widow's $32,000 in sixteen different bonds. Safe? Absolutely. But the big thing I'm driving at is that for any person who wishes to accumulate who can get together $100 or more to invest, the advice that Ohio man gave the widow is pure gold.

Liberal Selling Finds Grains in Weak Situation

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, July 22.—Free selling of wheat and corn based on improvement in crop prospects disclosed a weak technical position in all grains today. While there was a good class of buying of wheat early on the better political situation abroad and an advance in sterling to around 4.41, the price dropped sharply and at the inside showed 4¼@4½c off for wheat and 4¼@3c for corn as compared with the high on Monday. The close was at net losses of 2@2¾c on wheat, 3¼@4c on corn, ¾@1¼c on oats and 1¾@3¼c on rye.

A belief that the Dawes plan would be adopted by Germany and other countries was responsible for free buying early by some of the local professionals who have been bearish of late.

The weak technical position as much as the news was responsible for the decline, as the market acted over-bought and has for some days, and stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Around 1.32 for September aggressive commission house and local buying developed which checked the decline. July finished at 1.25, September at 1.23¾@1.23¾. December at 1.26¾@1.26¾, and May at 1.31¾. Winnipeg was off 1¾@3¼c with October there 3¼ cents over Chicago September.

Unfavorable crop comments continue to come from the Canadian Northwest, but the news from that country seems to have gone stale as a market influence, while the foreign situation is coming to the fore. Export demand continues slow, although 125,000 bushels was sold to exporters by local handlers during the day. Kansas City and the three leading interior Kansas points had 693 cars of wheat. About 60 per cent of the arrivals at Kansas City are on through billing, suggesting heavy buying by mills in the interior. France will put into effect a higher import duty on wheat on August 1.

Continued favorable weather for the new corn crop induced many scattered country longs to sell freely and the market lacked aggressive support a good part of the day. July was 1.05, September, 1.01¾; December, 89¾, and May 91 at the last.

Cash corn was off 1@3c for the day, and the break has checked country offerings. Receipts, 143 cars. There was 10,000 bushels sold to go to store.

Oats were influenced by the break in wheat and the excellent crop reports and declined readily, closing about the bottom. Cutting is getting well under way in parts of the West, and the test weight of the grain is reported as high. Receipts were forty-seven cars.

Rye declined with wheat and on reports that 500,000 bushels were loading at Duluth for shipment to Chicago. This represents grain recently sold to this market, July led the decline, as large deliveries on contracts are anticipated.

Arrivals—Wheat, 12; barley, 7; corn, 6; oats, 3; mill mixed, 1; flour, 4; bran, 1; cottonseed cake, 1; miscellaneous, 31; total, 62. May, 13.

...hat is Sound Investment?

SOUND investment demands, first of all, security of sufficient marketable value to insure beyond question the payment of principal and interest in full at maturity, or in the event of default.

Secondly, it demands a fair and reasonable interest return on the capital invested, and convincing evidence that interest payments will be made promptly on due dates.

Thirdly, it demands stability, and the assurance of satisfactory liquidation value in the event of emergency.

The Guaranteed First Mortgage Certificates of the Mortgage Guarantee Company conform in all respects to the highest standards of sound investment—plus.

Each series of these Certificates is secured by a diversified group of improved and income-producing properties, desirably located, and conservatively appraised at a value in excess of 200 per cent of the total issue of Certificates.

They yield 6% and are free from all California State taxes.

They are also guaranteed, as to both principal and interest, by this institution with its resources of $30,000,000.

They are non-fluctuating, and free from the influences of market speculation.

They are issued in convenient denominations and constitute an ideal investment for the individual as well as the institution. There are no coupons to clip, as interest payments are mailed promptly on due dates.

These Certificates, representing the highest degree of safety, are especially attractive in these days of plentiful money and low interest rates.

AIR LINE WOULD BE BIG SAVER

Los Angeles Bankers Much Interested in Project

Figure Two Day Time Cut to be Worth $100,000

Safety Devices Necessary for Success of Plan

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Realization of the significance of a Los Angeles-Salt Lake City air mail service to the expediting of banking and commercial transactions between this city, New York and Chicago is stirring the business community as the plans progress for the establishment of a municipal air port in Griffith Park. Shortening the time between Los Angeles and New York from five days to three or possibly two will effect an annual saving of approximately $100,000 in interest on collection items to nine of the major Los Angeles banks, according to statistics gathered by The Times.

Banks in this city are now losing five days' interest on the huge volume of checks and other items now leaving daily for New York and Chicago. The amount coming westward is negligible compared to the outgoing mail and is generally of such a character that the local banks would not be seriously inconvenienced by the necessity of crediting the eastern accounts sooner if the air mail were used on the East-to-West business. The approximate saving, on this basis, if the time between this city and New York and Chicago were decreased even two days is over $10,000 for each of the nine banks from which data were obtained, and is sufficiently large to encourage the banks to seriously consider the use of the air mail if a Los Angeles-Salt Lake City route is inaugurater. This line would tap the transcontinental service at the latter city.

In the quickening of commercial turnover, the saving would be enormous, but is impossible to estimate. During the fall shipping season when bills of lading and other documentary mail matter are sent from here in tremendous volume, the reduction in the time of transportation would prove a boon to the fruit industry. A large amount of business communication that is now done by night telegraph letter could be conducted adequately on a two-day air mail basis, according to the transit manager of one of the banks, thus affecting another saving to business.

BIG INTEREST SAVING

Recently it was estimated by an assistant postmaster-general in an address before the Illinois Bankers' Association that the Chicago banks can save over $800,000 annually in interest by the reduction of one day in the Chicago-New York mail service.

Various obstacles must be overcome by the government before the air mail will be used freely by banks and business men in the opinion of those who have studied the matter. The element of risk is paramount and one wreck would completely wipe out the savings of several months of successful trips. The utilization of fire-proof and wreck-proof containers is generally expected, but as far as is known here, this equipment is not at present in service on the mail airplanes.

For bank mail, a systematic and rapid method of distribution at the terminals must be in operation if the air mail is to reach the clearinghouse in time for credit on the day of arrival. Some readjustment might also be expected in postage charges and in insurance cost.

Discussion of the use of the air mail by business interests is becoming more animated in the last few days as the efforts of civic organizations to properly equip the proposed municipal air port gather headway, and as the assurance of Congressmen Fredericks and Lineberger indicate that the next Congress will authorize the Postmaster-General to establish a Los Angeles-Salt Lake route. The present transcontinental route is definitely fixed by Act of Congress, and although the Southern California representative worked persistently in the last session for the authorization of a division of the mail at Salt Lake, they were unable to obtain a vote because of priority of other legislation.

MAKING READY

The Congressional approval of the proposed route is understood to have the sanction of the Postmaster-General, principally because of the foresight of local civic organizations in taking steps for the establishment of a municipal air port. The City Council has deeded an ideal site in Griffith Park for the use of commercial aviation, and through the recent creation of a federalized National Guard air unit for Los Angeles, the United States government has donated the use of $250,000 in airplane equipment which is to be used on the Griffith Park grounds where the National Guard unit will train.

The acceptance of the government equipment for the municipal port involves the raising of $10,000 for the transportation and assembling of the various parts after arrival. Because of the importance of having the proper facilities on the local field, the City Council will be asked to appropriate this money. Considerable work also has to be done in grading and preparing the field for the use of the new government air-mail service ships.

Confidence in Public Utility Securities—

During the past 5 years Public Utility Securities have been accepted as a field for safe investments. The services rendered by these Companies are acknowledged as necessary to the further development of industry and agriculture, and the comforts of the American home.

Banks in the U. S. have invested approximately $2,000,000,000 in Public Utility Securities—Life Insurance Companies $1,650,000,000. Two Insurance Companies alone have placed approximately $38,000,000 in these securities.

There are 2,000,000 stock and bondholders in the U. S. and the number of shares outstanding is in excess of 2,500,000.

The present gross earnings of all Electric Power and Light Companies in the country are about $1,300,000,000. Service is furnished to over 13,710,000 customers.

These statistics present only a few of the facts indicating the stability of Public Utility Securities.

We recommend the following conservative bonds for investment:

DIVIDEND DAY

Nicholls Grain and Milling Company Present Stockholders With Checks at Annual Meeting

Probably the most enthusiastic stockholders meeting ever held in Los Angeles was the annual meeting of Nicholls Grain and Milling Company on July 10th at the general offices of the company, 2505 Santa Fe avenue.

Several hundred stockholders were present in person to receive their seventeenth consecutive dividend and partake of a delicious supper provided by the company. The offices were gayly decorated for the occasion and a small portion of those present are shown holding up their dividend checks in enthusiastic approval of the policy and

BOND QUOTATIONS

Strong Buying

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 22. — Bond prices surged upward today under the impetus of a broad buying movement which embraced foreign government, traction, copper and second grade railroad issues. America's promise to assist in the economic rehabilitation of Europe, coupled with the progress made in the inter-Allied conference, strengthened the foreign issues in the face of the hesitancy of bankers to approve the security back of the proposed German loan. Belgium 7½s, French 8s and Netherland 6s advanced a point each and smaller gains were general throughout the European list.

Several new 1924 high records were established by speculative rail favorites including the Seaboard adjustment 5s, which touched a new top price at 66½.

With copper and zinc prices advancing, bonds of the copper companies kept pace with stocks in a vigorous forward movement.

United States government obligations were slightly more active and higher today on reports that the next treasury financing would call for a better yield basis than the last issue sold.

Following are closing quotations on bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange, furnished by Logan & Bryan, 634 South Spring street:

CRUDE RUBBER MARKET

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, July 22.—With the exception of early trading the local rubber market continued dull today. A few buyers made their appearance in the early business session but the sale of several small fournage prices advanced about ¼c in various grades of rubber. Spot ribbed smoked sheets and fine superior para showed the greatest strength. None of the large tire companies apparent in the market and after early trading the market turned dull.

Spot ribbed smoked sheets crude rubber, was quoted at 22 1-4c per pound; brown crepe in thin clean sheets at 21c; amber No. 2 at 21c and fine up-river para sold at 22 1-4c.

NEW YORK CURB

Traders Puzzled

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, July 22.—Petroleum issues on the market today acted strangely in the opinion of traders, as these stocks advanced in the face of further reductions in the price of petroleum products. Prairie Oil and Gas, which made the latest substantial cut, held the most prominent position. It continued its rally from the low level of 194 last week and made a further advance on lively trading to above 209. Standard Oil of Indiana, Vacuum Oil and many other producing refining stocks reflected accumulation, but some of the pipe-line issues were in supply for a time, but later recovered their losses. Lago Petroleum was again active and strong and Mutual and Mountain Producers also were in demand.

Radio issues stood out in the industrial group.

LOS ANGELES DAILY LIVESTOCK MARKET SUMMARY

Cattle—Moderate receipts encountered narrow demand at values 25 to 50c lower for the week. Offerings were mostly common and medium grades. Bulk steers sold from $5.75@$7.00, a few on the cutter order selling downward to $5.75. Fat she stock suffered a 25 to 50c decline for this week, most fat cows clearing from $4.25@$5.25, odd lots however, sold upward to $6.00 while common kinds went over downward to $3.50. Canners and cutters were weak, bulk turning from $1.75@$3.00. Bulls held steady, bolognas clearing largely from $3.00 @$4.00.

Calves—No choice vealers were offered, bulk being common and medium handyweights that sold largely from $6.75@$7.25, with a few less desirable kinds downward to $4.50, a load medium 360-pound calves turned for $5.50. Packers seem to be well supplied with calves and a weak undertone prevails.

Hogs—Small receipts locally and sharp advances of the Middle Western markets has forced prices unevenly higher, mostly 50c. Only two loads butchers were offered for sale, these being good and choice 220-pound averages at $10.00. Few packing sows made $8.50.

Sheep—Small receipts of lambs met rather slow trading, however, ewes sold readily at values around 25c higher. Two decks good and choice 108 to 110-pound ewes turned for $5.00 without a sort.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BOND SALE

Clearinghouse Head in an Appeal to Investors Urges Co-operation

An appeal to the Southern California investing public to buy the Chamber of Commerce Building first mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds, and thereby help build an everlasting monument to the city's progress which was fostered largely by the Chamber of Commerce itself, is made by J. A. Graves, president of the Los Angeles Clearinghouse Association, in a letter made public yesterday.

"The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is one of the oldest organizations in this city," declares Mr. Graves in his communication. "It has 13,396 members. It has labored, day in and day out, for the good of California. It has brought to the attention of the entire world, by systematic advertisement and propaganda, the advantages of Southern California. Thereby it has induced thousands of people to migrate to this section, and has held out to them a helping hand when they arrived here. It has been instrumental in securing capital for our varied industries.

"The Chamber is now erecting a building in keeping with its standing and the architectural development of this city. It has issued first mortgage 6 per cent gold bonds to the extent of $2,000,000, which are first lien upon the lot owned by it and the building in course of erection. Its members have loyally supported this undertaking, receiving for the money advanced by them a second lien on the property.

"In order to complete this building, it is necessary for the Chamber to sell these bonds at par. If they are sold, the building will be finished and turned over to the Chamber of Commerce without a deficit, or any overhanging charges.

"The bonds are as safe an investment as anyone could desire. I earnestly appeal to all the loyal citizens of Southern California who have funds to invest, to subscribe for these bonds in such amount as they feel justified in taking. These bonds must be sold, and I am satisfied that the people of Southern California will willingly invest in them. The Los Angeles Chamber has set an example to every community in Southern California, and there is not a city of any size in the territory south of the Tehachapi, which hasn't its Chamber of Commerce fashioned upon the same lines as the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

"Let us put these bonds over with a rush, and by so doing, honor ourselves while assisting an enterprise which will ever be a monument to this great city."

The bonds are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce offices and at all the principals banks of Los Angeles and the surrounding communities.

INSURANCE NOTES

DEPARTMENT STORE LOSSES

Department and retail dry goods store fire losses on contents only during 1919, 1920 and 1921, have been tabulated by the Board of Fire Underwriters. The figures show that, excepting exposure, matches, smoking, stoves and furnaces caused the greatest loss in these establishments. Losses for the three years on contents in department stores totaled $18,999,-491. On contents in retail dry goods stores, losses amounted to $16,714,818.

"These losses cost every man, woman and child in the United States 41½ cents apiece, since the fire losses are added into the sales prices paid for these commodities by the public.

Let everyone be a fire-preventionist. We can increase the bank deposits of the country to the extent of $500,000,000 annually by reducing the fire waste one-half.

REMEMBER

Waste of natural resources through preventable fires is not only an offense against the present generation, it is a crime which will endanger posterity and which merits the strongest denunciation.

LIABILITY INSURANCE

Liability insurance started in this country thirty-eight years ago this month. The first circular describing this form of coverage pictured a court scene:

Lawyer for defense (summing up:) "Hannigan, you have shown the court the greatest height to which you can raise your arm by reason of the injury for which you ask $5000. Now show the judge and jury how high you could raise it before the accident."

Claimant (throwing his arm high above his head:) "Begorra, I could put it up like that, sor."

PRODUCE MARKET IN SAN FRANCISCO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The supply of eatables for marketing the demand today and forced prices to a lower level. Canned, fruits and vegetables suffered declines on account of increased receipts on the local market. Peaches, plums and pears were firm and fairly sized prodding on them is expected. Some red cherries [illegible] were offered at 2.50@2.75 per crate.

Berries: Strawberries, 60@80; raspberries, 50@85; blackberries, 50@75 per crate.

Cantaloupes: Crates, Imperial, standard, Turlock, green, mostly standards, 1.75@2.25; ripes, 1.25@1.50; soft stock less; flats, 45@75; pink Persians, standard, 2.50@2.75; flats, 85@1.00.

Casaba: Yellow, good; better ones, 1.50@1.75 standard crate.

Citrus: Unchanged.

Peaches: 1.00@1.50 large basket. Plums, 90@1.25 flat; St. Johns, Albertas and strawberry 1.00@1.25 flat; Satsuma, 1.50@2.25 lug.

Berries: Unchanged.

Persians, 3½@4c pound.

Watermelons: Klondykes and Angelenos, 1½@2c per pound.

There was an oversupply of cucumbers on the market and dealers were sharing their prices as an inducement to move stock. Good lettuce is very scarce and prices are advancing. Tomatoes were lower again today, large lugs selling from 2.25 to 2.50 each. Green corn is selling from 1.00 to 4.50 per sack.

Artichokes: Kings, Wonders, 40@; garden and Blue Lake, 50@; limas, 8@10.

Corn: Alameda, 2.00@4.50 sack. Cucumbers, southern, 50@60 large lug; local, 75@1.00 large lug.

Onions: Green, 1.50@1.75 apple box. Dry: Yellows, brown, best 75@90; reds, new, 1.50@1.75; yellows, 1.75@2.00 cwt. Prices to retailers 25@35 higher.

Tomatoes: Local, 1.50@2.25 large lug; 2.25@3.00 large lug.

Seeds: Beans, Pinto, 5020 quarter sacks; wheat, 5330 centals; corn, 1600 centals; potatoes, 1350 sacks; onions, 1150 sacks; hay, 12 tons; hides, 1000; beans and onions, 400 bunch; live stock, 20 head. Hay and grain unchanged.

MARRIAGE BLISS SHORT

The schoolday romance of Eilena Tayiki Wilson Kimball and Heber C. Kimball, formerly of Salt Lake City, went to smash four months after their marriage, Mrs. Kimball testified yesterday in Judge Hollser's court, where she got a divorce. She caught him, she declared, caressing a Salt Lake belle and when she chided him he called her a fool.

DISAGREED ON CITIES

L. Roeder likes Los Angeles and Ellen Roeder likes San Francisco, so they couldn't get along together, Roeder told Judge Thompson yesterday and was granted a decree. They had no trouble on any other subject. With a final declaration that she was through with Los Angeles Mrs. Roeder boarded a train for the Bay City and refused to come back, Roeder said.

Varicose Ulcers

HEALED BY NEW METHOD

WHILE YOU WORK AND WALK AS USUAL

Sores on the leg that will not heal in a few days with medicines are usually Varicose Ulcers. Such conditions, whether of short or long duration, require a treatment for the circulatory system of the leg in addition to medicines. The Vissco Method includes an ingenious method of forcing the circulation while you work and walk and in painless. The sore you now suffer is soon relieved. The sores actually heal in a few weeks. You can keep them healed. Call or write for full information given free without obligation, or phone DUnkirk 8082.

The Los Angeles Times

XLIII. WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 23, 1924.—PART II. 20 PAGES. POPULATION (By the Federal Census—(1920)— By the City Directory—(1924)—

BUMPITY-BUMP!

Los Angeles has the largest number of automobiles in proportion to population of any city in the world. Immense sums have been expended in telling the world of the joys of motoring in Southern California. Our combination of year-'round outdoor climate, scenic beauties and paved highways has brought us uncounted thousands of visitors and permanent residents.

It is unfortunate that so much of this advantage should be negatived by the condition of the streets of Los Angeles itself.

It is not for lack of willingness on the part of property owners to pay for the work. Petitions are now on file at the City Hall for street work to be done this year exceeding $50,000,000 in value—all of it to be paid by assessments against the property to be benefited. Millions have been spent every year for years past for paved streets.

Yet today there are approximately 8000 places in the city where paved streets have been dug up for service installations of various kinds and never resurfaced. These "cuts," as they are called, do not include chuck-holes, which are past counting. Most of the "cuts" are made by public and private utilities in order to connect street mains with private residences.

About the only people who make no complaint about the city's methods in street maintenance are the garage men who replace broken automobile springs.

Every day or so some optimist sends a bill for such repairs to the Council, in the fatuous belief that even if the Council will not pay they will take steps to see that the street is fixed.

The bill is ordered "filed," which means put in the waste basket, and the street continues to get worse.

Yesterday The Times drew attention to the city's habit of paving streets at the expense of property owners and then tearing up the pavement to lay mains, drains and conduit which should have been laid before the pavement went down. Even where such work is unavoidable the delay in repairing the damage is past the comprehension of the luckless public that pays the bills.

Under an ancient ordinance, the city is supposed to repair the "cuts" in the streets caused by service installations. It is literally years behind in the work. The situation caused by these thousands of holes in the street grew so intolerable that the public utility corporations joined with the Municipal Bureau of Power and Light and the Bureau of Waterworks and Supply in a petition to the Council to repeal the ordinance and pass another requiring the company opening a street for a service connection to fill up the hole and resurface it. Under this plan the companies undertook to hire men enough to make the repairs at once. The companies have to pay the city the cost of the work anyway and, unlike the city government, they think it is good business to have it done with the least possible delay.

Did the Council adopt the suggestion?

It did not.

Unofficially the somewhat curious excuse was advanced that to do so would throw a lot of city employees out of work—notwithstanding that in the same breath the plea was made that the city cannot afford to hire men to get the work done expeditiously.

But there are some 15,000 city employees altogether and they have an organization which enables them to act more or less as a unit. Fifteen thousand subordinates, dependent on their jobs, represent, with their families and friends, a voting power at election time which no Councilman can afford to sneeze at. So the Council gave ear to the protest of the City Employees' Association and the public could go hang.

But, as many residents know to their cost, there are worse things than paved streets mutilated by unfilled "cuts." Due to the shortage of help, property owners wait for months and years for the privilege of paying from their own pockets for any kind of paving on their streets. Slight repairs to such important traffic arteries as Wilshire Boulevard and West First street send motorists for weeks through the dust and rocks of detours. The Second-street tunnel, which was to afford much relief to downtown motor congestion, has been a joke so long that it isn't funny any more.

It would be unjust to the general manager and the board of directors—otherwise the Mayor and Council—of our great municipal corporation to say that they never pay any attention to such trifles as the service of the public.

As a matter of fact, they do—for a few weeks just before each municipal election.

UNDERWRITERS OPEN SESSIONS

California Welcome Starts Convention With Whoop

Business Insurance is Topic of Morning Program

Impromptu Address Pleads for Normal Strides

ROBINSON ON KHJ

Station KHJ, The Times, will broadcast the address by Henry M. Robinson, local banker and member of the Dawes Reparations Commission in Europe, to be given at 8:45 p.m. tomorrow at the banquet of the National Association of Life Underwriters at the Biltmore. Mr. Robinson's subject will be "Problems of Our Foreign Relations." It will be the first time he discussed the work of the commission publicly where it was available for radio purposes.

Extending a welcome to the 3000 delegates to the thirty-fifth annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters assembled at their first session at the Biltmore Theater yesterday, George W. Ayars, president of the local branch, observed jocularly that he believed they would find Los Angeles possessed of so many advantages that they might conclude it out to be made the only insurance center on the map, barring, perhaps, New York.

Ayars's remarks were applauded and their effect was to put the entire delegation in good spirits. There was no deviation in the program that had been planned.

Members of the nominating committee met in executive session at midnight in Room A at the Biltmore to select candidates for office for the new term. No announcement will be made until the names of those nominated have been placed before the delegates on the convention floor, it was stated. It is expected the names of the nominees will be brought of the attention of the delegates today.

BUSINESS INSURANCE

The topic of yesterday's discussion was business insurance, on which subject, a number of speakers expressed themselves, the principal address being that of Dr. S. S. Huebner of the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance of the University of Pennsylvania, who spoke on "The Human Value in Business Compared with the Property Value." After the formal addresses there was a general discussion.

The session, which was called to order at 9:30 a.m. by Will G. Farrell of Los Angeles, who acted as chairman, was opened with singing by the entire assembly, led by Sol J. Vogel of San Francisco, after which Rev. Bob Shuler, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church of Los Angeles, pronounced the invocation.

The most entertaining feature of the morning's program was the impromptu address of Job E. Hedges of New York, general counsel for the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. The subject of Hedges's speech was "The Real America," but instead of adhering rigidly to his theme, the attorney gave a rambling talk full of nuggets of good, hard sense combined with a running fire of facetious comment.

"The rarest thing in the world today is a perfectly normal man," said Hedges. "The average specimen of humanity today is scared stiff that he will do or say something undignified. Cut loose from your dignity. Don't worry about

PROF. FISHER LAUDS LEAGUE

Yale Economist, Before University Club, Scores Senators; Covenant Misrepresentation

Only by virtue of persistent misrepresentation, and largely by the personal hatred and partisan rancor of eleven bitter-enders, has it come to be generally accepted, Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist, told the University Club yesterday, that a majority of the United States Senate repudiated the Covenant of the League of Nations and that the people indorsed the Senate in the general election following with a majority of 4,000,000 votes.

This little band of irreconcilables—Hiram Johnson was the only one singled out by name—now stand disavowed and exposed, he said, by President Coolidge. "Coolidge," he declared, "has isolated the isolationists."

What, asked the speaker, had been the real sentiment of the Senate, as recorded in its vote on the League?

"The final vote in the Senate," he answered, "was overwhelmingly in favor of joining the League, with reservations, but unfortunately it lacked the necessary two-thirds. The count stood 57 to 37. If there had been six more men in the Senate like Taft, Root and Hoover, or if you prefer the other way, if our President had yielded a little more than he did, we should be in the league today.

QUESTION OF CREDIT

"The real opposition centered then and continues now in a little group of about a dozen men—now eleven—the irreconcilables. What actuated them? I cannot presume to say, but I know what one of them told me. These little men reasoned in their littleness that if this greatest thing in all history were permitted to come to pass, who would get the credit for it?

"'Woodrow Wilson,' answered my informant, 'and his party. And I hate Woodrow Wilson too much to give him that glory.'

"These same men," continued Prof. Fisher, "those of them, that are Republicans—I am not indicting the rank and file of the Republican party, and there are irreconcilables in both parties—are now trying to oppose their own party on the question of the World Court, and now, since President Coolidge has repudiated them, they stand exposed as representing only themselves. Coolidge has isolated the isolationists."

BUSINESS INTELLIGENCE

Prof. Fisher's subject was, "America's Interest in World Peace and Monetary Stabilization." In the last analysis, he said, determination of the nation's policies rested on the business intelligence of the country. Why was busi-

ADVENTISTS TO OPEN SESSIONS TOMORROW

The biennial session of the Southern California Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists will be in the Civic Auditorium at Long Beach, the 24th and 25th insts. Among officials who will be present are: Rev. A. G. Daniells, field secretary; Rev. O. Montgomery, vice-president for North America; Rev. J. L. McElhany, president of the Pacific Union Conference, and Rev. W. M. Adams, president of the Southern California Conference. On the following Saturday a union meeting of all the denominational churches in the conference will be held in the Trinity Auditorium, Los Angeles.

COURT ORDERS CLARKE HELD

Love-Pirate Seer and Housekeeper to Have Hearing on 31st Inst. for Crime Against Girl

"Rev." John Bertrum Clarke, pastor of the Church of Cosmic Truth, and "the man of a thousand loves," was arraigned before Judge Archbald of the Juvenile Court yesterday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 15-year-old girl—Clara Tautrim of 346 Grattan street.

At the same time, Clarke's elderly housekeeper, secretary and asserted accomplice in his philanderings, Mrs. Clara I. Berry, was arraigned. The preliminary hearing for both was set for the 31st inst., at 10 a.m. Bail for each was fixed at $5000.

The love mystic was brought into the court with Mrs. Berry by Detectives Berenzweig, Harris and Hoskins. His white flannel suit was grimy, his collar wilted, his tie soiled and his once white shoes were covered with dirt and grease. His face was covered with four days' growth of beard.

The complaint against Clarke was read by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Joos. To his questions scribbled by Joos, Clarke replied in a mumbled undertone that he had not obtained the services of an attorney, but would do so. He added in a voice so low that it was not audible to anyone but Joos that he intended the girl—Clara Tautrim—no harm and that he had expected to marry her.

Mrs. Berry asked for the services of the public defender when the complaint against her was read. She shook her head vigorously when she listened to the charges against her and exclaimed "No[no!"

According to the complaint against her, Mrs. Berry made an appointment with the Tautrim girl for Clarke and told her over the telephone that photographers from a motion-picture company were waiting at Clarke's office to take a picture of her preparatory to her appearance in their company.

Shortly after the love-pirate-spiritualist was transferred to the County Jail following his arraignment, Lieut. Littel and Detectives Berenzweig, Hoskins and Harris of the vice division began a search for persons who can tell them something about Edna Christensen, who is said to have been Clarke's housekeeper and is re-

DUNLAP OFFERS DIARY AS ALIBI

Says Hotel Bill Receipts Prove Whereabouts

Police Plan Thorough Check of Suspect's Data

Asserts He Was in Pittsburg on Day of Murder

Declaring that his innocence can be proven from a lengthy diary he has kept and receipted hotel bills in his possession showing his whereabouts for more than a year, Harry J. Dunlap, badge bandit, was lodged in solitary confinement at the County Jail yesterday awaiting his arraignment in court tomorrow morning.

Wearing heavy leg irons and constantly under the watchful eye of his guards, Sheriff Traeger and Deputy Sheriff Dewar, Dunlap freely talked of everything except the crimes charged against him here. These are one of murder, one of attempted criminal assault and four of robbery.

"I never killed anyone in Los Angeles or any place else, and there's a lot of them going to be surprised when they find out what I got," Dunlap declared as the train approached the city. Asked if he was guilty of any of the other crimes for which he was indicted, the badge bandit replied.

"If I did pull any of those jobs I'd be crazy to admit it, wouldn't I."

TELLS OF DIARY

After he had gone through the identification bureau at the County Jail, Dunlap told a Times reporter that he had kept a complete diary of his movements since he first learned he was accused of robbery and making attacks on women. In addition to that he said he had taken receipts from every hotel that he had stayed in since July 4, 1923, and had those receipts to prove his whereabouts.

All of Dunlap's effects, which include the diary and hotel bills, are to be turned over to Dist.-Atty. Keyes today by Sheriff Traeger, and they will not be made public until they have been examined by the officials.

The badge bandit, however, has carefully memorized every hotel and city at which he claims to have been since July 4, 1923, and gave the dates when he was there.

Officers familiar with the crimes laid to Dunlap declared that his proferred alibi will not weaken their case and that all his assertions concerning his whereabouts for the last year will be carefully investigated.

The most serious crime of which Dunlap was indicted, that of the murder of William Jacobson, 78, of 338 East Orange Grove avenue, Pasadena, during a hold-up of Jacobson and Miss Ethel Todd, his companion, was committed January 3, last. On this date Dunlap declares he was in Pittsburg, and claims to have a receipt from the Fort Pitt Hotel of that city showing his presence there on that date.

DATES COMPARED

A comparison of the dates of Dunlap's statements with the dates of the commission of the other crimes charged to him show that he was in or near Los Angeles at the time.

On September 19 or 20, 1923, the badge bandit said he left here for Oakland, after spending the intervening time from July 4 at various local hotels under the aliases of Harry Grodon and H. J. Kelly. After four days at the Marks Hotel, Oakland, under the name of M. A. Moore, the badge bandit claims to have gone to San Francisco, where he registered at the New Grand Hotel under the name of M. J. Dailey. On September 23 he boarded the S.S. Cuba for Portland, occupying stateroom 131. Dunlap said he then spent some time going back and forth between Seattle and Portland, finally leaving the latter city for Denver on REGISTER!

FOUR DAYS REMAIN in which to register for the primary election on August 26. Candidates for county, State and national offices, including the judiciary, Congress, the State Legislature and the Board of Supervisors, are seeking preferment and the Bureau of Power and Light will submit a bond issue of $16,000,000.

Every public office to be filled at the primary or at the November election directly concerns the welfare of the entire citizenship. Men who are to make our laws and those charged with the duty of enforcing the law are to be indorsed. Likewise those empowered to levy taxes and disburse huge public funds must be selected. Self-interest as much as a due regard for civic responsibilities should prompt every eligible voter to register.

"BOW-WOW" MEANS LIQUOR

Playful Pups Pester Prohibition Team Till Their Trail Traverses Anti-Volstead Aura

Driving in leisurely fashion down Van Ness street yesterday, two Federal prohibition officers found their rights on the public highway suddenly contested by two playful pups that insisted on trying to chew the right front tire off the automobile.

"Sic 'em," said one of the officers, and "Go to it, pups," said the other.

"Bow, wow wow," said the pups.

Lacking in discretion, the pups persisted in displaying their exuberant spirit by bounding madly back and forth in front of the car. That made the officers nervous and they drew up to the curb and stopped.

THIS WAY, MEN

Then ensued friendly advances. But the pups would have none of that, and away they went to try their luck at the heels of a man who was at that moment departing from 4821 Van Ness street. The officers watched the man dodge the pups as best he could until finally he placed a suit case with great care in an automobile and drove away.

Being interested in suit cases quite as much as in pups, the officers followed the stranger until they were able quietly and firmly to request information as to the contents of the suit case.

"Who wants to know?" the man queried.

"We do," explained the officers.

The investigation, according to the report of the officers, disclosed twelve bottles of Scotch whisky in the suit case. Thereupon the officers arrested the driver of the car, who gave his name as Roy Shellington, 425 West Second street, and placed the car in storage.

Returning to 4821 Van Ness street, the officers were again met by the sportive pups.

"Shut up, you cuss," commanded a man who opened the door of the house toward which the officers were walking. "You men looking for some one?"

"We just came from Shellington," the officers explained as they stepped into the house.

"Shellington? Who's he?"

"We don't know who he is, but we are Federal men and we want to look around."

AND THEY DO

When the officers got through looking around they reported they carried away an assortment of intoxicating liquor, together with labels and other evidence of anti-Volstead sentiment.

Also they arrested their unwilling host, John Keough, and placed him in jail.

HUSBAND WINS DECREE

Accuses Wife of Coming Home From Dances "Stewed"

Lillian G. Smith spent her afternoons dancing with "cakies" in downtown dancing places, according to the testimony of Harlan A. Smith before Judge Thompson yesterday during trial of his suit for divorce.

"She'd park the baby with a neighbor for the afternoon," Smith said. "I'd come home from work, get the baby and cook my own dinner. Along about half-past seven or eight she'd come tottering in, a little stewed."

One of Mrs. Smith's neighbors testified that she would "go out and get drunk with anyone who would invite her."

Smith was given a decree.

DUNLAP OFFERS DIARY AS ALIBI

Says Hotel Bill Receipts Prove Whereabouts

Tells of System Followed More Than Year

December 9. He registered at the Hall Hotel, Denver, December 11, under the name of M. J. Kelly. Dunlap declared he then traveled under this alias until he was captured.

From Denver, the badge bandit said, he went to Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Toledo, Cleveland and Pittsburg, arriving there January 1 of this year and remaining until January 4. In all of these cities Dunlap gave the dates of his arrival and departure and named the hotels at which he stopped. Generally they were the leading hotels of the town.

"Only a fool would put up at the cheap hotels," he declared.

VISITED MANY CITIES

From Pittsburg, Dunlap went in the order named to Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Providence and then back to New York.

"It was while I was in New York that I read in a paper about how I tried to dynamite the home of Douglas Fairbanks. He just wanted a lot of publicity at my expense. A short while later I read that Fairbanks and Mary Pickford were stopping at the Ambassador Hotel in New York, so I went over there for dinner. I sat just two tables from them throughout the meal. I wonder what Fairbanks would have said if I had walked over and told them I was Dunlap, the badge bandit?"

About the middle of April, Dunlap declared that he went to Philadelphia, then Pittsburg, Cleveland, Chicago, and finally to the city that meant his capture—Detroit.

"That was a bum move," Dunlap said with his characteristic tone inflection of disgust. "I had been in Detroit years before, and knew the town well. I just happened to try and put over a bum check on one of those erratic women and she called the cops. They were all so excited, I don't see how they caught me at that."

"He is one of the toughest men we have had to deal with in a long time," Sheriff Traeger said at the end of the long journey. "However, he had no chance to make any trouble, and didn't give us any during the whole trip."

MET AT POMONA

The officers and the badge bandit were met at Pomona by Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Undersheriff Biscailuz, and a party of newspaper men and photographers.

Dressed in a neat blue serge suit, Dunlap's linen was spotless, his shoes shined and he lived up in every way to his reputation of being "a neat dresser." In talking he makes no attempt to hide his almost complete set of gold teeth, from which so many of his alleged victims have identified him as their assailant.

From almost the first of the conversation he launched into a verbal attack upon his wife, Mrs. Maude Dunlap, who is now suing for an annulment of her marriage. Between curses he blamed her for all of his troubles in California, claiming that she "double-crossed" him and was the one that first put the officers on his trail.

As the train approached the city Dunlap inquired as to where they were. When told they were near the Foothill Boulevard, the badge bandit remarked:

RECALLS FOOTHILL BANDIT

"Oh, that's where that guy the Foothill Bandit operated."

Dunlap has long been characterized as the Foothill Bandit because of the charge that his activities have been in that district in robbing automobile parties parked along the roadside.

He handed the porter a 75 cent tip, as the colored gentleman returned his brushed hat. Then as the train pulled into the station, he was handcuffed to Deputy Sheriff Dewar for the trip to the waiting automobiles and the County Jail.

Cursing under his breath at the waiting crowd at the station, Dunlap hurried the officers in the walk to the machines, refusing to stop for photographers to get in their work.

He was taken immediately to the County Jail. There he was put through the identification bureau by Key E. Billings, in charge. As he emerged from his bath and change into prison clothes, he was met by his attorney, John Richardson. They were in conference for nearly an hour.

PUT IN SOLITARY

As Richardson left his client, Jailer Croushorn was heard to remark:

"One in the dark in one."

Translated, this means that the badge bandit will occupy the solitary cell in tank number one, in this cell, which has formerly held such famous criminals as Herb Wilson and Tuffy Reid, he will always be under the watchful eye of a jailer who guards a near-by door.

Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Wright, Capt. Bright of the homicide squad, and Deputy Sheriffs Dewar and Modie will start today bringing in the victims of the badge bandit to make the necessary positive identifications. Dist.-Atty. Keyes will superintend the preparation of the evidence for the legal fight, the first step of which will commence tomorrow with the arraignment in Judge Crail's department of the Superior Court.

In addition to the Jacobson murder, Dunlap was indicted for an attempted criminal assault on Miss Hattie Zellner of Lankershim, when she and Ray Durke, now residing in Taft, were held up and robbed on the night of July 15, 1923, near Sunland.

The robbery victims named in the indictment against the badge bandit were Mrs. Elizabeth Hazel Whapies, 803 South Westlake avenue, robbed of jewelry, valued at $500, and $38 in money on the night of August 5, 1923; Mrs. Zilla Grace Howell, relieved of $125 in jewelry and $10 in cash; Noah W. Fisher, 808 West Seventh street, who lost a diamond ring valued at $300 on April 1, 1923, and Dewey Raymond, 1733 Martinez avenue, Torrance, robbed of $33 in cash the night of September 13, 1923.

LONE GUNMAN GETS $400

Whistles "I Want What I Want When I Want It" As He Walks Leisurely to Auto and Freedom

(Illustration on Picture Page)

The vacation period for bank robbers ended at noon yesterday when one gunman, without the assistance of confederates, entered the Seventh-and-Union branch of the Security Trust and Savings Bank and robbed the cashier of $400. The bank robbery is the first one committed in Los Angeles in several months.

Stanley Stevers, assistant cashier, was alone in the bank during the noon hour. Joseph Kreuter, the manager, had gone out for lunch. Nor were there any customers in the institution.

A gray touring car, with one occupant, stopped in front of the bank door. The occupant left the car, strolled into the bank and reached for an inside coat pocket. Cashier Stevers expected to see a roll of money, to be deposited, drawn from the stranger's pocket. Business was picking up. Instead, Stevers saw the barrel of a revolver.

"Fork it over," said the stranger.

Stevers shoved $400 in currency across the counter. The stranger tucked it into his pocket, whistled "I Want What I Want When I Want It" as he passed through the door, then leisurely climbed back into the automobile and drove west on Seventh street. The victim told the officers that $40365 was the license number of the automobile, but a dozen auto-loads of detectives failed to find it.

TOY IS IN SOUTHLAND INSPECTING HIGHWAYS

Harvey M. Toy of San Francisco, chairman of the State Highway Commission, has been in Southern California for the past week taking up questions of construction and maintenance with division engineers concerning the eight southern counties. He also has been spending a few days with Commissioner Edwards. Monday Mr. Toy was in Redlands, San Bernardino and Riverside and yesterday went over the beach highways. He also visited Santa Ana and other places.

LEGION POST TO BE HOST

Hollywood Post, American Legion, will be host tonight to more than fifty motion-picture people at a dinner meeting at Greenwich Village Cafe. More than 100 Legion members are expected to be present in addition to the film leaders. A special program of entertainment has been arranged. Tom Kennedy, matchmaker at the Legion Stadium, will act as toastmaster.

CANDIDACIES INDORSED BY COMMITTEE

Nineteen County Men Get Approval for Legislature by Citizens' Group

Indorsements of candidates for the Assembly in fourteen of the Assembly Districts of Los Angeles county and of five candidates for the State Senate have been announced by the Citizens' Committee of Ten Thousand.

Those indorsed are: Assembly Districts: Sixty-first, Frank C. Weller; Sixty-second, Walter J. Little; Sixty-third, Sidney T. Graves; Sixty-fourth, Harry Lyons; Sixty-fifth, Thomas L. Dodge; Sixty-sixth, M. T. Poling; Sixty-eighth, Harry Sewell; Sixty-ninth, Samuel M. Dudley; Seventieth, Frank P. Merriam; Seventy-first, Henry E. Carter; Seventy-second, Willard E. Badham; Seventy-third, Howard W. Davis; Seventy-fifth, Mark A. Pierce. Senatorial Districts: Twenty-ninth, Joseph L. Pedrotti; Thirty-first, Harry A. Chamberlain; Thirty-third, Cadet Taylor; Thirty-fifth, Herbert J. Evans; Thirty-seventh, Newton M. Allen.

A. C. Denman, Jr., chairman of the Citizens' Committee of Ten Thousand's legislative committee, which for the past several months has been making a survey of prospective candidacies in the Assembly and Senatorial districts of the county, in announcing the committee's indorsements, says: "In conformity with the principles and purposes of the Citizens' Committee of Ten Thousand, we have indorsed those candidates whom we believe will administer their respective duties in the State Assembly and Senate in a most capable and efficient manner to the end that our State, county and municipality may have a responsible, honest and fearless government."

A vigorous campaign is being waged from the committee's headquarters at 1066 South Broadway in behalf of the candidates indorsed.

MEET IN CEMETERY

Funeral Directors Plan Study of Hollywood Burial Place

When the Southern California Funeral Directors' Association holds it annual convention here next month one session will be conducted in the Hollywood Cemetery in order to study what has been called by mortuary magazines one of the most beautiful memorial parks in the country. This was the announcement by P. W. Bresee of the convention executive committee.

The morticians will convene August 26, 27, 28 and 29, with official headquarters at the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena. The general reception will be held on the night of August 26. J. M. Brunner is president.

Secretary Frank Heron of the Hollywood Cemetery Association has made arrangements to receive the visiting undertakers at the Hollywood Cemetery.

CHAPLIN DENIES LASKY RUMOR

Comedian Has no Intention of Uniting With Other Forces, He Says

Charlie Chaplin has no intention of aligning himself with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, he announced yesterday. The comedian also declared that so far as he knew, neither Mary Pickford or her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, were contemplating such a move.

The denial was issued by Chaplin following the publication of rumors to the effect that the three stars had decided to cast their lot with Famous Players, and that the combine would mean the absorption of the United Artists by the corporation.

whether your collar is on straight or your shoes shined."

ADVISES FUN HERE

He advised his audience to have fun while they are in California. "If you don't believe you're in California, it's because you haven't heard the speeches of welcome from the natives," he added.

He said prayer and its sincerity is the greatest motive behind every human undertaking and that every great project is based on moral and emotional impulse.

"Emotions of humanity and of great men as leaders of humanity run the world today and always have," he went on. "Supporting the moral and emotional impulse is the economic business fundamental, which makes it possible for great minds to carry out their visions."

He concluded by stating that he likes to come to California and that he would come to every convention in this State, "as long as somebody pays my expenses out here. But my business keeps me on the job so much I can't attend all the conventions I'd like to. I have sometimes to tell the Senate what it wants to know about life insurance and there are a lot of other things that keep me busy."

LIFE VALUES

Dr. Huebner in his address on human values in business, stated that were he called upon to make an estimate of life values in the United States based on the current earning capacity of the adult population, capitalized at an ordinary rate of interest, he would place the total valuation at not less than six to eight times the aggregate of the nation's material wealth.

In discussing the value of life insurance, generally, Dr. Huebner said that life insurance is as necessary as property insurance to protect property values.

In the concluding portion of his address, the speaker called attention to the fact that when the fundamental economic needs of the working masses were appreciated by the overwhelming majority, the wage level had to undergo an adjustment to raise the standard of living.

LIVING STANDARDS

"A similar situation will be produced when the economic value of human life becomes understood and appreciated by our population generally," he declared. "Adequate life insurance will then become an essential item in the family budget. It will be regarded as an essential factor in the standard of living."

Herbert D. Ivey, vice-president of the Citizens' National Bank of Los Angeles, delivered a brief address on "Brians, Indemnity and Banks," pointing out the part played by banks in the maintenance of business prosperity. He stressed particularly the point that the bank reflects the general business conditions of the community where it operates and that the responsibility for bank failures often rests with customers whose unwise financial moves or fits of panic hamper the bank and render it incapable of exerting the stabilizing influence which is its true function in the community.

The morning session of the convention adjourned at 1 p.m. During the afternoon the delegates devoted themselves to recreational activities.

A brilliant reception and Spanish program last night in the ballroom of the Biltmore closed yesterday's activities. Four dancers from the Mission Play presented several numbers, assisted by Mrs. Tyrone Power.

TWO SESSIONS TODAY

Today's program provides for two business sessions, the first beginning at 9:30 a.m. and continuing until 12:30 and the second beginning at 6 p.m. and lasting until 11 p.m.

During the morning session life income insurance will be the subject of discussion. The session will be conducted as an agency morning at which different delegates will express themselves in brief informal talks on various phases of life income insurance. At the evening session the convention will discuss the development of the supervision of agents.

Delegates to the convention are able to keep closely in touch with the gathering through the publication of "The Insurance Field" daily during the convention. The first issue, under this plan, was circulated here yesterday. Incidentally this is the twenty-first anniversary of the origin of daily newspaper service covering the national conventions. Through a ruling from the Third Assistant Postmaster General the editors are enabled to print the newspaper in the convention city and mail the copies to subscribers at second class mail rates.

DIV FOLO E UNDERWRITERS INSURANCE MEN WILL SEE CHRIST PLAY

Tonight at the "Pilgrimage Play" will be National Association of Life Underwriters' night and the occasion will be marked by the attendance of several hundred delegates to the convention in session in Los Angeles.

The "Pilgrimage Play, Life of the Christ," is given the official indorsement of the convention committee and through the offices of Charles E. Bent, chairman of the entertainment committee, arrangements have been made toward reserving a special section of seats at the big open-air theater for the insurance men, their wives and women friends.

For the accommodation of the delegates and their friends a special block of seats, reserved for the play tonight, has been placed on sale at the registration bureau of the National Life Underwriters in the Biltmore Hotel.

The production opens promptly at 8 o'clock. Special car service to the "Pilgrimage Play" grounds direct is provided via the station on Hill street between Fourth and Fifth streets. Motorists will find an easy route to the theater via Hollywood Boulevard to Cahuenga, thence north to the junction of Cahuenga and Highland avenues.

commissioners if they did not think as he did. Allen maintained in his attitude that his "private investigation" should precede any of the board, with Kibbele waiting for his cue from Allen. And so the action was deferred.

CHURCH PROTESTS

Another protest of the Harbor Commission's dismissal of Harbor Engineer Ludlow was made public yesterday in a set of resolutions passed Monday night at the monthly business meeting of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of San Pedro. The pastor of the church, Rev. Thomas Grice, criticised the board's action from the pulpit Sunday evening.

The resolutions, addressed to Mayor Cryer, follow:

Whereas, Harbor Engineer J. W. Ludlow has rendered faithful and efficient service in the discharge of his duties as chief engineer and has conducted himself as a public servant in a highly commendable and an irreproachable manner; and whereas, his recent dismissal from his office by the Harbor Commission was apparently without due and proper investigation of his conduct; now, therefore, the congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of San Pedro, California, through its official board in monthly regular business meeting assembled, does express its disapproval of the action of the Harbor Commission in dismissing the harbor engineer without proper investigation and preferment of charges, and does hereby demand his immediate reinstatement as chief engineer of the Harbor Department.

CLARKE IS HELD FOR GIRL CRIME

ported to them as having been found dead in Westlake Park in May, 1921.

According to the information given to Lieut. Littel and Officers Sorensweig and Hoskins, Miss Christiensen's body was found in the lake. The puzzling phase of the case, however, is that search of the records in the office of the Coroner and at the Health Department failed to disclose any record of her death.

That the reputed victim's real name was not Christiensen and that following the discovery of the body her real name was entered on the records, is the belief of the police. Christiensen, the officers say, may have been the name used by the woman in her employment.

A new check will be made by the officers today of the mass of correspondence taken in the raid on Clarke's apartment. There are a number of letters—short notes written him because he cannot hear—by a woman who must have been one of the man's housekeeper's and a close study of these may produce some clew, the detectives say. The notes are half of the conversations and seem to do with affairs at the Clarke house and his complaints against certain conditions. There are repeated appeals to Clarke to let the writer go home and leave his employ.

'Indian Giver' is Wife's Divorce Plaint on Mate

Jean Charles DeDeck was an "Indian giver," according to the divorce complaint of Kathleen Elizabeth DeDeck, who had him cited before Judge Guerin yesterday for arrears in temporary alimony.

He gave her a personal allowance of $1 every two weeks, she said. After having bestowed this sum upon her he frequently would turn right around and take it away from her by force, according to her complaint. The small amount of her allowance, according to her story, was the outcome of pique engendered by unjust suspicions that she was still the recipient of the attentions from a former suitor, one Dick Reynolds, whom she said she had not seen since her marriage.

DeDeck in his answer retorted that his wife also entertained unjust suspicions of him. He said she would attend spiritualist sessions and come back home to accuse him of carrying on with other women.

Judge Guerin yesterday ordered DeDeck to make up his $100 arrears in alimony immediately.

NATION OPENS DRUG SURVEY

Capt. Hobson Reports Federal Departments Aiding Association in Narcotic Education

A narcotic survey of the nation has been started by the Treasury Department, and narcotic education service soon will be available through the Interior Department, it is reported by Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, president of the International Narcotic Education Association, who returned yesterday from Washington and to the two major political conventions at Cleveland and New York.

These were two of the objectives of Capt. Hobson's trip, another being to have both the Republican and Democratic parties place narcotic education planks in their platforms. The Democratic platform contains such a plank, and Capt. Hobson feels that virtually the same result was obtained from the Republicans through assurances of the sympathy and support of President Coolidge and of Secretaries Mellon and Works, whose departments are already co-operating in the association's program.

Capt. Hobson arrived in Washington in time to be heard by the Congressional committee considering the antiheroin bill, and had the satisfaction of seeing it speedily enacted. In Cleveland he found such interest in the work of narcotic education that, as a result of his visit, it is proposed to have the narcotic education program given to both schools and homes, the Community Chest to finance the work.

"I found great interest in Los Angeles throughout the East," Capt. Hobson said, "and was asked most frequently why the association established its international headquarters here. My explanation was that Los Angeles is more truly the racial center of the world than any other American city."

LEAGUE LAUDED BY PROF. FISHER

ness uneasy and the farmer "sore" today?

There were two reasons, he answered—violent successions of inflation and deflation and an uneasy consciousness that the most important question in the world, America's relation with the rest of the world, economically and politically, remained undetermined.

Inflation had beguiled the farmer into assuming obligation which he found remained undiminished after deflation had scaled down prices for everything he had to sell. Often deflation was spoken of as a necessary concomitant of inflation. In reality, he said, the two were twin evils. They always bred the hatred of bankers and the money lender. The long deflation of the last nineteen had begotten Bryan. Now we have La Follette.

Unrest, a vague feeling of discontent, a sense of groping toward something left undone, would persist, the speaker predicted, until the American people had been given an opportunity to express their deep-held, but inarticulate sentiment toward the League.

BESET BY CONFUSION

"Why is it," he asked, "that this confusion persists? Because when we have considered the League, perforce we have considered it confused with a number of other subjects with which, in truth, it had no concern. Among these he listed the episode of Fiume, the Versailles Treaty, the reparations question, and the personality of the President. In the other column he put what he said were the actual accomplishments of the League—six wars forestalled, Austria rehabilitated, many international humanitarian activities inaugurated, such as concerted action against typhus fever, restraint of the traffic in habit-forming drugs, and the enslavement of women for immoral purposes.

Finally, he argued that if courts of law had been able to abolish war between individuals, which was the code duello; war between families and villages, which was the feud or the vendetta; and interstate wars, such as the Supreme Court of the United States had ended, there was no logical reason to doubt that an international court could abolish war between the nations.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

lution attacking Gov. Richardson. The new resolution was minus the attack on the Governor. The clerk called the roll. All of the Councilmen were too tired to answer their names. As none said "No," the resolution was declared adopted.

The Council was informed by the clerk that there is to be an election on August 26. He asked if there was to be any other city proposition on the ballot except the $16,000,000 power bonds. Councilman Criswell said "No." Councilman Sanborn again pillowed his head on his desk.

A letter was read from a man who wanted to sell watermelons from a wagon parked on a street. The letter was filed.

The clerk announced at 10:50 that the desk was clear, so the Councilmen came to life. Some one made an almost enthusiastic motion that the Council do now adjourn.

It did.

NOTHING DOING

Olympus must have been a dull place until America was discovered.

AMONG HOBBIES

It is well enough for every man to ride a hobby, but it isn't necessary to enter it in every race or to parade it on the lawn.

STEPPING OUT

Pavlowa is said to be making about $10,000 a week under her present contract, but they make her dance for her money.

THE PURITY LEAGUE

Massachusetts now prohibits the sale of magazines printing racy stories. The Bay State has a Puritan background and is going to keep it in the front. Even Truth may not go naked in Boston.

A BAD CROWD

If La Follette is willing to associate with some of the moral and mental malefactors who are giving vociferous support to his Presidential aspirations he is hardly to be trusted by the rest of the nation.

SCIENCE AND WAR

The scientists are urged to go on a strike to end war. Modern war depends on industry and invention and if the scientific men refuse to lend their talents to a destructive program it would make a vast difference. Such is the contention of John Galsworthy, the novelist. But the trouble is that the geniuses behave like other patriots when the crisis comes. Even a brainy pacifist will give his talents to his country if he feels that it is threatened.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

During the first six months of the year there was financing of light and power projects and extensions in this country to the tune of more than $457,000,000. This is $60,000,000 in excess of kindred investments in the same period of the previous year. Ultimately no man will suffer for his ration of light or power. Moreover, there are still projects ahead that challenge the imagination in their magnificence. When man says "Let there be light" it is a notable echo of the divine decree.

SPREADING SKIRTS

The women are duly active in politics, even if they are not gathering the spoils. In the Democratic convention there were 184 women delegates, while 292 of the alternates were of the gentle sex. Here is a collection of nearly 500 women, which would make an impressive convention of itself. In the Republican gathering the showing was almost as winsome. The parties are taking their better halves into full fellowship and the national committees are made up with equal representation on the part of the women. If the men grow aweary of politics the women are expected to show better form than the men.

THE SOUTH DIVIDED

Arkansas was the first State to ratify the child-labor amendment to the Constitution. Georgia was the first to reject it. Both States permit the wide use of juvenile labor. According to the last census 18.5 per cent of the children of Arkansas between the ages of 10 and 15 years were gainfully employed. In Georgia the proportion was 20.8. It is hard to decide why the Legislature in Arkansas should approve the restriction and regulation of child labor while the solons of Georgia oppose the same measure. The presumption is that the Georgians are greater sticklers for State rights and object to Federal interference.

ITALY ON HER OWN

Although taxes are high and the government is not paying much on its debt, Italy is richer now by many millions than she was before the war. This is the judgment of financiers and economists. She acquired some provinces of value in the settlement and hard work has done the rest. It must be admitted that as a stabilizer Mussolini has been a success. When they are playing or fighting the Italians are piling up nothing but trouble, but when they all go to work the results quickly count. The Italians are still heavily taxed and are paying high prices for their essentials, but they strive to keep busy and can thereby meet most demands.

MAKING THE WORLD SAFE

Lots of the Rockefeller dollars are enlisted in the fight for humanity. The Rockefeller Foundation last year spent nearly $8,500,000 in coping with disease in all parts of the earth. The fund is used in sending scientists and specialists into every urgent field. They extend practical knowledge and meet every plague or epidemic with the intelligent purpose of the conqueror. Much research work is carried on in connection with the treatment of cancer, tuberculosis and other ailments. Yellow fever has virtually been banished from the earth. Plagues of malaria, the hookworm and sleeping sickness have been met and overcome in out-of-the-way corners of the world. While nations are spending billions on the impedimenta of war a few Rockefeller millions are doing wonders toward making the world safe for mankind. Here we have one of the most comprehensive and efficient services humanity has ever known.

OUR FUTURE DEPENDS ON IT

Forest fires made Palestine a desert. In fact, all over the Old World there are desolate waste places that once were luxuriant gardens—until the forests were burned off.

If our forests are burned away this age-old tragedy will be repeated here. This is inevitable. It is just as inevitable as the coming of winter and summer. Water is conserved on the water sheds by vegetation. Without vegetation the rain water runs off in roaring torrents. It not only goes to waste, but it wreaks untold damage in the way of winter floods.

Some of the worst forest fires in the history of California have been reducing the timber to cinders in the mountains in various parts of California.

Even though these fires be conquered, as they doubtless will be, it would be a miracle if there were not others to follow this summer. The most disquieting feature of these particular conflagrations is the season. They have come several weeks before the normal period of fire danger.

It seems to be a warning of which we should take notice; that as our population grows the fire danger will extend over a longer period of time.

With a due sense of this growing peril and the full knowledge that it is becoming more acute and realizing fully from the examples of history what must happen if we do not provide some adequate defense, then what is to be done about it?

There are obvious measures that suggest themselves, such as closing the forest areas to campers; increasing the number of forest rangers; devising airplane controls; increasing the physical apparatus for fighting the fires.

But, after all, these are only pitifully inadequate devices. The government of this State, assisted by the Federal government, could assemble the mightiest fire-fighting force the world ever heard of. They could mobilize half the male population of California for the purpose. Still it would not smother the danger.

The only remedy is in the hands of the man with the cigarette and the camper with the matches.

In other words, the only way this State can fight forest fires is by stopping them before they start, so to speak.

The only hope of preventing these annual tragedies, which yearly grow more terrible, is in the growth of a public realization.

The public will never be insured against these terrific losses until the wandering camper is made to understand what it means to himself, personally, when he takes chances with matches.

As long as the camper is careful only when he thinks a policeman may get him, then the case is hopeless. There aren't enough forest rangers or constables or policemen in the world to watch all the matches in the mountains.

The mountain forests could easily be made safe; that's the pity of it. But they can only attain this degree of safety when every person who goes into the mountains thinks of himself as a fire warden for the protection of his own home, his own city and his own interests.

If the camper fully realized that he might as well throw a cigar butt into a powder magazine as into a forest, then there could be no fires.

To expect the careless, thoughtless public-at-large to so regard this danger and to take such voluntary precautions is perhaps visionary. But it can be expected, with some reason, if the time ever comes when every mountain visitor fully realizes the direct connection between the tree growing there and his own home and his own private property.

There will be some hope of stopping mountain fires when every person going into the forest reserves realizes that the trees mean not only water for his lawn, water for his drinking, but also the prosperity and even the existence of the city wherein he makes a living.

If you find one who does not know, tell him.

Spread around the knowledge and save the forests.

And in saving the forests save Southern California from going back to the desert.

THE ART OF ALL ARTS

In the conduct of his Presidential campaign, in so far as he may be said to be conducting it, Calvin Coolidge is displaying what even his opponents must admit is rare tact. Unlike many other Presidential candidates, he never talks too much. In his refusal to be led into any situation where others may be able to assume even the least dictatorship over him or his political acts, in his cool detachment from alliances that might smack of political bargaining, in his intuitive appreciation of what is fit, proper and right for him to say or do and just when to say or do it, he has made it evident that he possesses in its highest degree that happy faculty of address which, in the Emersonian phrase, is "the art of all arts."

This has been shown particularly in the shrewd though inoffensive way in which he has discountenanced the formation of a regular Presidential advisory committee, in his definitions of the terms "progressive" and "reactionary" and in his expressed resolution not to reply in his speech answering his notification of nomination to anything in the address which Davis will have made on a similar occasion. In these and in many other ways he has fully demonstrated not only that he has a mind of his own, but that he has tact enough to unload what is on that mind without loss of political equilibrium or prestige.

With men like Coolidge tact is inbred, but with most people it is an acquired virtue born of dear experience, including many mistakes. Tact is not exemplified by what it conceals so much as by what it discloses. The voluble rarely have it, the violent never. It does not necessarily consist in speaking or acting in a way unlikely to offend or disturb, as many of the prudent seem to think. You shall not earn a reputation for tact by that dissemblance and ambiguity so dear to a certain order of minds—minds that are too weak and too meek to face the world and its opinions. For tact is not negative, it is positive. It has no earmarks of Miss Nancyism, but only those of sterling nature. Tact does not evade the issue—it meets and answers it in a practical manner.

By his quiet display of tact Coolidge sets a fine example for the young people of this country. They may learn from him to be both receptive and responsive and to acquire that sense of humor which will cause them to be not too readily wounded in what they fancy to be their dignity, nor too quick with the caustic, the satiric or the violent thrust in return; but to await occasions, to ponder their replies to insolence or arrogance or to brush it away with a good-natured remark. For it is only by tact that one may show one's facility in dealing with men and emergencies, and the more one studies it, cultivates, acquires and practices it the greater will be one's success and the fewer one's regrets.

MORE BALKAN TROUBLES

Before the Rumanian oil field was discovered our government had only a humanitarian interest in what was taking place in the Balkans. But during the last two or three years American nationalists have invested a great deal of money in the development of Rumanian oil. As long as the money was going in there was no protest. But when the wells began to produce and liquid wealth was flowing out beyond Rumanian borders, the Rumanian government stepped in and passed laws which are equivalent to confiscation of the American interests.

Now our government is asked to interfere. For 100 years it has been an American policy to protect the lives and property of Americans from wilful destruction, regardless of their temporary place of residence. Acting on reports from the American Minister, our State Department recently protested against the passage of confiscatory laws by the Rumanian government. It appears that the protest was unheeded, and Minister Jay has been called back to Washington for a conference.

Relations between the two governments are strained, apparently almost to the breaking point. And the Rumanian press is asking with some effrontery, "What are you going to do about it?"

Just what we should do about it is a difficult problem to solve. The American oil interests went into the Balkans knowing full well the unsettled conditions there. If they made a profit our government would have no share, except what might be collected in the form of surtaxes. But the very fact that we do exact surtaxes on incomes of American citizens earned in foreign countries gives to these citizens a certain right to demand protection of their property from confiscation. Otherwise, it would be a case of taxation without an equivalent.

Peaceful reprisals would probably be justified. But, by reason of its poverty and isolation Rumania is practically immune. These things were apparent when the American interests invested their capital in Rumania. Viewing the situation from this distance it looks as though they gambled and lost. Our government has not been able to collect the money due it from France, Italy and some smaller nations. It is not likely to make any extraordinary effort to force the collection of debts owed to its nationals in far-away Rumania. Americans who invest in foreign lands must realize that there are limitations to the protection they will receive from their home government.

SUNSHINE OR VAMPS?

After spending two delightful weeks in Hollywood William Jennings Bryan announced on Saturday before departing for his Florida home that he expected to pack up and come back to establish a permanent residence here before the snow flies.

Bryan in Hollywood—what an anomaly! Is it that he found this widely advertised suburb of Los Angeles more homelike than any of the other places he has visited? Or is it that he has been seduced by what has been termed the "gentle vices" of Hollywood?

Can it be that the "Great Commoner" has been vamped? Or is this the final proof that Hollywood as a Bohemia exists in name only?

Just two years ago the press of the East was running columns of sensational nonsense about the profligacy of Hollywood, the home of the cinema stars. At that time Los Angeles protested vigorously about the persistent misrepresentation of life in Hollywood. The Times then pointed out that the so-called dens of vice existed only in the minds and hearts of Hollywood's detractors.

Hollywood has its attractions for others than those who are interested in the painted and photographed screen. It is one of the garden spots of the universe. The movie colony is there. But those who live here know that the greater part of the colony, almost the whole of it, is composed of virtue-loving, law-abiding people who, off location, are just folks.

Bryan came to spend a fortnight's vacation here after the strenuous Democratic convention. Perhaps he sought relaxation in the follies of the movie world. But he was won by the lure that has held hundreds of thousands before him, once they have yielded to the charms of sunny Southern California.

There is plainly no political motive in Bryan's change of residence. He bears the scars of many political battles; and is probably content to abandon his chase for the Presidency and sit down under his vine and orange tree in a Hollywood garden to watch the world go by.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Parsi Says "England Will Get Out"

"England will have to get out of India within ten years," says a Baltimore business man upon his return to this country after spending six months in the Far East. His observations coincide with those of Bahman Peetonji Wadia, distinguished Parsi journalist. In a letter to this writer Mr. Wadia says: "The title deeds of the Indian Empire are not held in Whitehall. That conception is a thing of the past. I do not think Britain will continue her mad policy, but will bow before the will of the people of India and grant this nation complete autonomy as in the case of Canada and Australia. Until this is done there will be friction," he writes. The most significant part of Wadia's letter is his assertion: "We will win out in the end, anyway."

Getting Them Young

"Thou shalt not be a patriot, for a patriot is a national blackleg," is one of the new ten commandments taught to thousands of children in the Communist Sunday-schools of Great Britain, according to revelations made in the House of Lords recently. It is proposed to curb the activities of these institutions by a "seditious and blasphemous teaching to children bill." In Canada also these Sunday-schools flourish to a surprising extent, especially among Ruthenian and Ukrainian immigrants. This writer, assigned to investigate and report on Communist Sunday-schools in Canada two years ago by a Canadian newspaper, found that the Ukrainians, unable to learn the language and the customs of the new country at the same rate as their children, lost contact with their own offspring. Parental authority lacking, thousands of Ukrainian girls found their way to the bright lights of the cities, where they were lost in the way of moths hovering around a flame. The boys, willing enough to continue in the old national groups and surroundings, looked for congenial places of meeting. These places were provided by imported Bolshevist agitators. In twelve cities it was found that not a single patriotic or church organization had gone out to meet and work for the assimilation of the young Ukrainians, with the result that the Reds grasped at this welcome opportunity for propaganda.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE MOSSBACK

The mossback stands with upraised hands, beshrewing and complaining; old ways are spurned, old landmarks burned and anarchy is reigning. Ah, every change is sad and strange and argues deep demolition; with brains unsound we all are bound to worse and worse condition. All things he views give him the blues and make his trilbys chilly; the books we read are punk, indeed, the songs we sing are silly. The females fair now bob their hair and look much like their brothers; in all our grads are joy-ride dads and pleasure-chasing mothers. The moss-back keeps his watch and weeps, the grand old days bewailing, and all he sees invites a wheeze that's full of bitter railing. Alas, for age and futile rage and eyes that look behind us; for wintry care and snowy hair and dotard tears that blind us. I, too, am old and oft would scold at things I see around me; the modern curves get on my nerves, disturb me and confound me. I'd voice my scorn of things new-born and boost the things forsaken; but Horse Sense sighs,
"If you are wise, from this hop-dream you'll waken. The gay world hears with scoffs and jeers the voice of bleak December; you advertise, by groans and sighs, that you're a has-been member." WALT MASON.

FLYING CHIPS

BY ALMA WHITAKER

One of the most unpleasantly disturbing remarks made by this pastor of the Church of Cosmic Truth, who has been monopolizing the front page lately, is that "Making love to women is the best way to get their money." And it is a "cosmic truth" he and various other exploiters have pretty well proved.

Alas, what poor, weak creatures we women are.

Men, of course, are never susceptible to this form of blandishment. Certainly not. Er—anyway, hardly ever. Which is why professional sirens and "pretty ladies" and women like that are almost unknown—or, aren't they?

Oh, we simply must try to be as sensible and practical as the men.

Yet somehow my baker has been able to assure me that bread just had to be maintained at war prices—and it certainly has been—because—oh, well, just because.

There is probably such a very simple explanation for that—if only I could understand.

MOST IMPORTANT TEXT IN EXISTENCE

BY RANSOME SUTTON

Reginald Haselden, who is cataloguing the ancient manuscripts Henry Huntington has given the State, knows manuscripts as well as jewelers know diamonds—better, because he has spent his life deciphering obsolete writings. I asked him what is the most valuable manuscript in existence and he replied: "The Codex Sinaiticus, written about A.D. 350."

It is a Greek version of the whole Bible and is called "Codex Sinaiticus" because it was found in the monastery of St. Catherine, on Mt. Sinai, by C. Tischendorf, a German biblical student, in 1844. The story of this great text, the most authentic and complete in existence, reads like a romance. It was written by four scribes, in uncial letters—an obsolete form of Greek. Of course, the scribes had access to earlier writings. In addition to the books contained in our Bibles, this version contains parts of two other books, one entitled "The Epistles of Barnabus" and the other "Shepherd of Hermas." It was carried from place to place and used as the basis for subsequent translations and shows signs of corrections made by later scribes. Thereafter, the whole collection of laws, letters and sacred writings was lost and remained lost until 1844.

Then the German student, Tischendorf, visited the monastery on Mt. Sinai and from a pile of waste papers used for lighting the monastery fires happened to pick up a time-worn sheet of vellum and, being an expert palaeographer, recognized it as a fragment of the lost text. Carefully assorting the entire pile of papers he recovered forty-three leaves; but all his labors to find the rest of the manuscript proved futile. These priceless forty-three leaves were taken to Leipzig, where he was a lecturer on theology and where they are now preserved.

Lamenting the loss of so many books of untold value, Tischendorf went back to Mt. Sinai in 1853 and again searched high and low, without success. After leaving he recalled nooks and crannies which he had not explored and six years later, in 1859, he returned a third time and left nothing unturned.

"Just before his departure," says Haselden, "he talked with the steward of the monastery, expressing great sorrow on account of the futility of his search. The steward then remembered saving some rolls from the waste-paper pile, among which was found the remainder of the manuscript, including both the Old and the New Testament, complete—except for a few missing pages."

As Tischendorf had been aided in his search by the Russian government, he took the manuscript to Petrograd, where it was republished, by order of the Czar, in 1862, in four folio volumes—complete except for the missing chapters and the forty-three leaves in Leipzig.

Christians, who happen to know this original text is now in the keeping of the soviet government, which has shown little reverence for ancient and holy things, should be thankful to the memory of the Czar for presenting a few other governments with Russian reprints.

The original writing was done in clean-cut, bold letters, four columns to the page, with forty-eight lines in each column.

The corrections are considered important by biblical students, as they are based (according to a note by the scribe who made the corrections, at the end of the book of Esther) on an earlier copy, which had been corrected by Pamphilus, a friend of the founder of the library at Caesarea. The same scribe took the liberty of re-inking some of the faded letters.

The story of the translation of the Old Testament from Hebrew into Greek (not including the New Testament) is told in the Encyclopedia Britannica as follows: Ptolemy Philometrius of Pharaoh, [illegible] Alexandria Library, [illegible] King Ptolemy II, Philadelphus, 247 B.C.) to have a Greek translation of the Jewish law [illegible] the library. The King [illegible] and, after releasing [illegible] captives in his kingdom, [illegible] embassy with rich presents [illegible] high priest, Eleazar, [illegible] asking him to send six [illegible] worthy and learned men [illegible] of the twelve tribes to [illegible] the law for him at [illegible]. Eleazar readily sent [illegible] men with a precious [illegible] law. They were honorably [illegible] at the court of Alexandria [illegible] ducted to the island [illegible] they might work undisturbed [illegible] isolated. When they had [illegible] an agreement upon a [illegible] metrius wrote down the [illegible] the whole translation was [illegible] in seventy-two days. The [illegible] community of Alexandria [illegible] lowed to have a copy [illegible] the version officially [illegible] curse was laid upon the [illegible] tion of any change in it.

This translation, [illegible] tant, is probably the [illegible] which the four scribes [illegible] by Tischendorf, copied [illegible] tament and, from some other [illegible] ly authentic source, the [illegible] New Testament. Besides [illegible] dex Sinaiticus is, [illegible] important manuscript [illegible] mankind. Mr. [illegible] $50,000 for a work only [illegible] tion) of one of [illegible]. The children's hour brought Prof. Walter Sylvester Hertzog in one of his vivid talks on American history. Tuesday always means the weekly visit of the Sandman and Queen Titania.

SANDMAN ON HAND

Fairyland sprung another of its pleasant surprises on us last evening. When the Sandman arrived at the studio, Queen Titania was not with him. The Sandman told Uncle John that the Fairy Queen had decided to grant Uncle John's next wish. He immediately wished that all of Radioland might see more of the country of the Fairies.

Hardly were the words uttered than the lights in the studio grew dim and a golden haze enveloped everything. Out of this haze a beautiful ship gradually took form and from its deck stepped little Queen Titania. She said that it was her wishing ship and that she had come to grant Uncle John's wish.

Stepping aboard the wishing ship, the fairy microphone tightly clasped in his hand, Uncle John and the fairy visitors were wafted across Slumber Sea, headed for Fairyland. Soon they passed the Isles of Enchantment which glittered in the moonlight like jewels.

Within a very few minutes they reached the Port of Content and at once disembarked on Fairyland's shore. Here they mounted on the back of butterflies and were carried to the Castle of Dreams. It is here that the golden sand banks are located from which comes the Sandman's dream sand and out of which rises Dream River.

The Sandman told the history of Dream River and Queen Titania informed Uncle John that she planned to take him and all of Radioland for a trip down this stream next Tuesday evening.

Inasmuch as Uncle John felt that he must get back to the studio, Queen Titania sent him back in the care of the Sandman, explaining that she must remain there to greet the visitors from earth when they arrived in their dreams. She said that she would send for him next Tuesday evening so that they might make the journey down Dream River.

Beth Dimmick, 9-year-old singer, gave of her baby voice as generously as a birdling. She was accompanied by her mother. The hour ended happily with a bedtime story by Uncle John.

On the matinee program through the courtesy of the Hollywood Bowl Association, Bess Daniels showed her ever-increasing audience the manifold beauties of Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite."

SCOTT WILL INSPECT FIRE HEADQUARTERS

Fire Chief Scott this morning will inspect the new $175,000 fire headquarters building at 217 South Hill street and the apparatus which will be placed there will be on hand to work out for the first time from the new station. It will be several days before Chief Scott and his headquarters staff have moved their desks and equipment from the temporary headquarters on Figueroa street and the apparatus completely in operation from the new building. A formal "housewarming" in which Mayor Cryer and members of the fire commission and the City Council will participate will be conducted next week. The new building which is now completed is four stories in height and is built of brick and concrete on the site of the former fire headquarters building.

Former Realty Man Indicted in Oil Fraud Case

C. A. Briggs, former salesman for a local real estate firm, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on four counts charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. In the past three years, it is asserted, Briggs has sold approximately $500,000 in oil leases and royalty lands to Southern California investors, the majority of them being men and women who came here to retire.

The specific charges against the ex-salesman are that he misrepresented the value of lands he sold to investors. In one instance, it is charged, he sold a well which he said was producing 1800 barrels of oil daily and the buyer found that the well was producing but a little more than 400 barrels a day. The complainants against Briggs are A. J. Wells, from whom he is said to have obtained $2500; Tom Quintell, who contributed $1375; Roy M. Leed and Mrs. Agnes Hime, who invested $2500 each in land which was later proven to be almost worthless. The indictment was returned in Judge Vicini's department of the Superior Court and bail fixed at $10,000. The case was presented to the grand jury by Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Bonner Richardson.

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

One of the most beautifully planned affairs of the week will be the wedding at sundown this afternoon of Miss Louise Frances Ludlow, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ludlow of Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, and David Stone Phelphs, formerly of Detroit, Mich., which will take place in the beautiful gardens of the home of the bride's parents at 5 o'clock, Rev. M. H. Fagan of Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church officiating. The bridal party will enter the gardens through a small gate of flowers and ferns and will proceed to the altar arranged at the end of a wide pathway with arches of cypress and ferns forming a floral arbor. The altar at the end of the path will be made of garden blossoms and ferns, pink and blue predominating, gladioli, delphinium with sweet peas and roses. The wedding music will be played by Miss Lucile Folsom, harpist. Mr. Ludlow will give his daughter in marriage. The bridal gown will be of white chiffon, the skirt made bouffant with pointed basque, and trimmings of rose point lace, caps of the rich old lace forming the sleeves, and orange blossoms will mark the waist line. A large picture hat of pink maline will complete the costume, a large pink rose and foliage adorning the hat, and the bride will carry white orchids, pink roses and lilies of the valley shower. Miss Irma Bewyer of Kansas City, Mo., will assist as maid of honor, her costume being of blue georgette over pink satin with trimmings of clipped ostrich. A large hat of deeper pink than that of the bride's will be worn and she will carry an arm bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium. Two little flower girls, Beverly Jean Douglass and Marylin Braun in delicate pink tulle, will scatter rose petals in the pathway of the bride. Carl Meilstrup will serve Mr. Phelps as best man. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner for seventy-five guests will be served, the tables being arranged in the gardens under great umbrellas, the centerpiece being huge bouquets of garden flowers tied to the pole by wide tulle ribbons. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps will leave for a brief wedding trip, motoring through the north and after their return they will be met by Miss Bewyer and Mr. Meilstrup and the four will sail over to Catalina for the week-end. They will be at home in Beverly Hills after August 1. Miss Ludlow, whose home was formerly in Kansas City, Mo., is graduated from a fashionable girls' school there and also from the University of Missouri, and she is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Alice Soule of 226 New Hampshire avenue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Esther Soule, to L. T. Babcock, the news being told at a charmingly arranged tea given in honor of Miss Gladys Helm, whose wedding with James Dunbar of Berkeley will be one of the events of the near future. Miss Soule, who attended Mariboro School, was also graduated from the University of California. Mr. Babcock also attended University of Southern California. No date is given as yet for the wedding.

College Night

Mrs. Charles Jeffras entertained with a delightful party in the Ambassador Cocoanut Grove Friday evening, College Night; those included being Miss Polly Wright of Philadelphia, Miss Eleanor Cole, Miss Dorothy Green Miss Virginia Bishop, Miss Katherine Keith, Miss Alma Barman, Miss Katherine Jones of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruddle, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Jeffras, Stewart McKenzie, Marshall Garland, Neil Cole, Whitelaw Bond, John Williams of Memphis, Tenn., Albert Parker and Clark Rayburn.

Motor Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Nordlinger of 3411 Country Club Drive left Sunday on an extended motor trip north, going by the coast to Seattle and then on through the Columbia Highway to Bozeman, Mont., where they will be the guests of Mrs. Nordlinger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Benepe, on their beautiful estate, visiting also with her two brothers and their families, and returning to Los Angeles the latter part of September.

Church Wedding

The marriage of Miss Irene Henrietta Brauer, elder daughter of Mrs. Adolph Karl Brauer of West Twenty-first street, to Edward Everett Robbins of Detroit, Mich., will be solemnized this evening in the Church of the Messiah, Wilshire Boulevard, Rev. Edward Gaylord officiating. Miss Ruth Brauer will assist her sister, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Brauer will give her daughter in marriage at the altar. Mrs. Andrew Crowell and Miss Dorothy Gerdt of San Francisco, cousin of the bride, will be the other attendants. Albert C. Robbins, Jr., whose marriage to Miss Margaret Leitch was solemnized on the 12th inst., returned last evening to serve Mr. Robbins as best man, and the ushers will include Andrew Crowell and Donald Robbins. A reception and supper will follow the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother and Mr. Robbins and his bride will leave later by boat for the north and east, visiting in his home town before going to their future home, 1308 East Twelfth street, Tulsa, Okla., where they will be at home after September 1.

Home Again

Mrs. Charles H. McFarland of 2659 Ellendale Place returned last week after an enjoyable trip to Honolulu. Mrs. McFarland is planning to pass the remainder of the summer at Catalina and with her son, Hugh McFarland and his family, at Montecito, where they have a summer home. The two young daughters of the Hugh McFarlands, who make their home in Pasadena, are both devoted to out-of-door sports, especially Miss Louise, who won the silver cup at the tennis tournament several months ago at the Midwick Country Club, and who is also quite active in tennis games on the courts of the Montecito Country Club. Miss Virginia McFarland is also an out-of-door sports enthusiast. Miss Virginia is a student at the Polytechnic elementary school while Miss Louise attends the Westridge school, and they are counting on attending some eastern college when they have graduated from their various studies here.

Lunch-Picnic.

Members of the Mu Phi Epsilon sorority are planning an all day picnic and luncheon on the beach at Long Beach today, the occasion celebrating the return of their delegate to the national convention, Mrs. Roger Knorpp, who brings the message to them from the convention which met in Minneapolis recently.

At La Jolla

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Young of Elmwood avenue and their attractive young daughter, Miss Elizabeth Young, are enjoying a delightful vacation at the Casa del Manana at La Jolla. Mrs. Norman Holt Morrison of Bronson avenue and her daughter, Miss Catherine, joined them there and passed the week-end with them. Mr. and Mrs. Young will be away for an indefinite visit.

Garden Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Owna Weed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman G. Weed of Orange Drive, Hollywood to Roger Forkner Neal will be solemnized this evening, the ceremony taking place at candle light in the sunken gardens of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood in Idaring street, Rev. Dr. James Lash officiating. The service will be read beneath an acacia tree which is in full blossom and nearby a fountain, surrounded by growing blossoming flowers and shrubs. The bride will wear a gown of lingerie and filet lace with tulle veil held in place by lillies of the valley, and she will carry an arm shower of lillies of the valley and maidenhair ferns. Miss Katherine Van Tilburgh, in orchid georgette carrying orchid and pink sweet peas, will be the maid of honor. Miss Marjorie Kratz, in green georgette and Miss Ila Doyle in pink georgette, will be the bridesmaids. They will all wear picture hats to match their gowns and carry sweet peas in orchid and pink shades. Paul Neal will serve his brother as best man and the ushers will include Alton Graves and Wilbur Ottenmulen. Joan Rexford and Tinkie Wood will be the flower girls and Betty Krebs will carry the bride's veil. They will wear rainbow dresses of pink orchid and blue tulle. After a brief wedding trip Mr. Neal and his bride will return to Los Angeles and as soon as their new home in Brentwood Park is completed, will make their home there. Miss Weed was graduated from Hollywood High and later from Broadoakes, Pasadena, while Mr. Neal was graduated from University of California, Southern Branch. He is the son of the Walter Neals of Indiana.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

"Dear Dr. Peters: Have been following your Diet and Health column and think it is wonderful. I weighed 325 pounds when I started to diet and have lost eighty-one pounds. I now weigh 144 pounds and I certainly do feel splendid. Before reducing I had dizzy and staggering spells. I felt as if I were getting hardening of the arteries; and it was hard for me to go up and down the stairs. But since reducing all those ailments have left me. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me. MRS. B."

The life of a person who has the strength of will and character to reduce eighty-one pounds is certainly worth saving, so it makes me very happy that I have saved you, Mrs. B. With your symptoms, you undoubtedly would not have lived long. I am grateful to you for writing and letting us know about it. Will you write again, telling us how old you are, how long it took you to reduce so much, what special exercises you took, and all other details?

"Dr. Lulu Pete Hunters. Dear Doctor: I am a boy of 17. From the front view I look almost perfect, but my back is very disfiguring because I am round shouldered. I would greatly appreciate it if you would send me directions as to proper exercises and any other information which you think will be of help in overcoming this disfiguration. Thanking you very much for your attention to my case, "HARRY."

If you can, Harry, it would be best to go to an orthopedic surgeon and he will give you special instructions for exercising.

You must have some corrective exercises, hanging on horizontal bars, dumb-bells, Indian clubs and the like. Swimming and rowing are especially good. You must have a correct posture. Sleep with a pillow under your shoulders and none under your head part of the night. Be careful of your sitting position when you are studying. Don't lose enthusiasm because now is the time when you can really obtain results, if you will take the trouble. We hope you will soon look as perfect from the rear as you do from the front. As you are only 17 now, I am sure you can accomplish much.

You must have the right diet so that you will have the elements your tissues and muscles and all your organs need. Are you having the following foundation diet every day?

Protective foods—Three glasses of milk, at least, each day. One full cupful of vegetables (especially green leaf vegetables) part of them raw. One full cupful of fruit, fresh.

Energy foods—Cereals, including whole grain breads. Two [illegible] of butter, cream, [illegible] nuts.

P. S.—I have been called [illegible] kinds of names, Harry, but I have given me a new one.

"Can appendicitis cause constipation? I know constipation will bring on appendicitis. I get an attack every year or two and am in bed for a couple of weeks." "Miss F."

If you get liberal amounts of green vegetables and other bulky foods and if you exercise your abdominal muscles, go to the toilet at a regular time, and if you have included agar and mineral oil faithfully and still you are constipated, I believe that your appendicitis is the cause of your constipation. Appendicitis can cause constipation. Why don't you have the [illegible] Sometimes, when you have one of these acute attacks it may be serious for you. See a [illegible] or a couple of good surgeons and abide by their decision.

"Madge,

What do you do on Sundays?"

"Harry got up last Sunday with a burning desire to spend the afternoon walking. I thought he would forget it after church but no sir, he was determined to walk. So of course we walked. Fortunately, I suggested the GATES HOTEL CAFE, before we started and that made it pleasant enough. We ate a substantial meal, not too heavy; cream of celery soup, (and it was delightful,) a vegetable plate that tasted as though the vegetables had just come from the garden an hour before, then dessert, and a cup of really good coffee. Our hike was a decided success, thanks to the Luncheon at the GATES before starting.

Have the butcher leave the kidney in a loin of veal, roll, tie, season with pepper and salt and place in a baking pan covered with one sliced onion, one sliced carrot, one bay leaf, two whole cloves and two tablespoonfuls of butter; place in a hot oven for ten minutes and reduce heat to moderate oven and finish baking, baste often. When done remove the meat to a hot platter, add half a cupful of boiling water to the pan, simmer five minutes and strain over the roast.

RUSSIAN DRESSING

Mix half a cupful of mayonnaise with four tablespoonfuls of chili sauce, one tablespoonful of chopped celery, one tablespoonful of chopped pimiento, one tablespoonful of chopped green pepper and, if like, two teaspoonfuls of caviar.

PEACH COBBLER

Fill a shallow baking pan with sliced peaches, sprinkle with sugar, dot with bits of butter, cover with a short biscuit, cut two gashes in the crust and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with a peach custard sauce.

LUTHER SUIT IS READY TO GO ON TRIAL

Order on Film Producer to Show Cause Stricken at Plaintiff's Request

An order to show cause why J. F. White, mining man and motion-picture producer, failed to answer questions propounded during the course of his examination for a deposition in connection with the suit for $100,000 damages brought against him by Ann Luther, screen actress, was ordered off the calendar yesterday by Judge Shaw of the Superior Court.

This action was taken by the court at the telephonic request of Ray Howard, attorney for Miss Luther, who said White had satisfactorily answered queries last week before a notary public. The questions, according to Attorney Howard, had to do with the injecting of the names of several prominent film folk into the case.

Miss Luther, wife of Ed Gallagher of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean, sued White on the ground that he failed to keep the terms of an asserted contract whereby he was said to have agreed to use Miss Luther in four motion-picture productions to cost $100,000 or more. White filed an answer and cross-complaint, in which he declared Miss Luther had misrepresented her character to him. He asked the return of $16,000 he said he advanced her on various occasions.

The case now is in a position to go on trial before Judge Valentine on August 4.

EMBARRASSED WIFE FILES DIVORCE SUIT

To have her husband say, "don't talk so much" in front of company was very embarrasing, Yvonne June Pearce declared yesterday in a divorce suit filed against Asa J. Pearce of 4620 Finley avenue. It also was embarrasing, she asserted, when he called one of her friends on the telephone and remarked he hoped she would drop dead before morning. Mrs. Pearce also accuses her husband of entertaining women friends in their home while she was away on a visit. She said her husband has property worth $150,000 and is capable of earning a good income in business. Louis R. Russill is her attorney.

PAVING FIGHT SEEN

Specifications Submitted Permit New Patented Materials

Complete new specifications for all classes of street paving to be undertaken within the next two years under the city's $50,000,000 street paving program were submitted to the City Council yesterday by the Board of Public Works and City Engineer Griffin. The board and the City Engineer have been working on the report for many months.

It is expected that the first public hearings on the report will be conducted by the Council next week. The hearings are expected to develop long delays and much wrangling, with the possibility that the report may not be adopted for some months. A feature of the report is that other patented pavements beside Warrenite are made available for use on the streets here. Heretofore Warrenite has been used almost exclusively but the report submitted yesterday also permits the use of National, Willite and Chapmanite pavements if the property owners desire them.

LOCAL AIR MAIL TAKES TWO DAYS TO GO EAST

Airplane mail service across the continent makes it possible to transport mail from Los Angeles to New York in fifty-one hours and fifteen minutes, according to T. C. Peck, general passenger agent of the Union Pacific Railroad. Although the route of the mail planes is from San Francisco to New York, Southern California mail, Mr. Peck said, is picked up at Salt Lake City.

In order to make connection at Salt Lake City, mail from Southern California is carried from Los Angeles on the fast Los Angeles Limited of the Union Pacific System, leaving here at 10:50 a.m. each day, arriving at Salt Lake City at 2:15 p.m., the next day. The mail is transferred to planes there and arrives in Chicago at 7:30 a.m., and at New York at 5:05 p.m., on the third day out of Los Angeles. Mail from the East leaves New York at 10 a.m., Chicago at 6:30 p.m., and arrives in Los Angeles on the Los Angeles Limited at 2:40 p.m., on the third day out of New York.

SHUTTLE CAR PLANNED

Permit Is Sought to Operate on Highland Avenue

Application has been made to the Board of Public Utilities by the Pacific Electric Railroad Company for permission to operate a shuttle street-car service on Highland avenue in Hollywood. This was announced yesterday by O. A. Smith, passenger traffic manager for the Pacific Electric. It is proposed to run smaller cars on the present schedule between Highland and Santa Monica Boulevard to the top of Cahuenga Pass and return.

This measure is proposed to conserve power. Mr. Smith asserted that the company could save at least two-thirds of the power now used on that line under this plan. Passengers would be transferred from the shuttle car to larger cars at the Santa Monica-Highland junction.

NEW JURYROOM ADDED

Addition of another jury department to Superior Court will result from the remodeling of Department Five, formerly presided over by Judge Valentine. Judge Valentine, who is now sitting in Department Eleven, will return to Department Five when the juryroom is completed.

Knocked Out by Gas!

While standing on a busy street corner, just after partaking of a hearty meal, a middle-aged man suddenly collapsed and fell upon the sidewalk. At the emergency hospital he was found to be suffering from an acute attack of stomach gas, which had pressed against the heart and seriously disturbed its action.

Pain around the heart, palpitation, shortness of breath, faintness and dizzy spells are often due entirely to a nervous, gassy stomach. To obtain complete relief in such cases, it is only necessary to get rid of the gas.

Bell-ans Gas Tablets, taken before and after meals, will soon put an end to the disagreeable effects of stomach gas. They usually give prompt relief from that tense, nervous feeling, burning in the stomach or other annoying symptoms. Guaranteed to be perfectly harmless. A generous package costs but $1.00. Sold in Los Angeles by the Sun Drug Stores and all leading druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co., Mfrs., San Francisco.—[Advertisement.

MANN ACT VIOLATION ADMITTED

Court Withholds Sentence to Check Up Report That Rascoria Was Divorced

Selecting the easiest way out, W. T. Rascoria, alias Fay Kelly, pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Bledsoe yesterday to a charge of violating the Mann White Slave Act. Sentence will be imposed when the court has learned whether Rascoria obtained a divorce from a woman he married six years ago in Gunnison, Colo.

A more recent wife, whom Rascoria married a year ago in Los Angeles, also is interested in reports from Gunnison, according to D. G. Taylor, counsel for Rascoria. So much interest in his affairs complicated the case for Rascoria especially when reference to his first wife and the possibility of his having failed to get a divorce caused Mildred Young, of Azusa, a friend of the defendant, to interrupt the court proceedings by fainting.

The Mann Act charge was filed against Rascoria on information that he paid Miss Young's transportation from Salt Lake City to San Bernardino in October, 1922, and that later the two lived together at Azusa until a year ago when Rascoria came to Los Angeles where he is asserted to have married Eulah Adair.

According to the defendant, he intended to marry Mildred Young but when she met him at San Bernardino, he said, she surprised him by showing him a baby and announcing that she was married. In a plea for leniency Attorney Taylor argued the case was one properly belonging in the State court rather than in the Federal Court.

Rascoria said he had acted in good faith when he promised to marry Mildred Young if she would meet him at San Bernardino. He explained he thought he had obtained a divorce from his first wife.

WORK IN EUROPE

PARAMOUNT TO MAKE ONE A YEAR ABROAD

By Grace Kingsley

Many interesting things are to be done at the Paramount Studios, both east and west; and one of the most important announcements was that made yesterday to the effect that at least one picture a year produced by the Famous Players-Lasky people, will be made abroad.

This announcement was made over the wire from New York by Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president in charge of production, who has just returned from Europe.

Gloria Swanson will be the first star to be sent abroad to make a picture, when she goes over in September to make a film version of the old stage play, "Madame Sans Gene."

"Our decision to make this production in France in the very scenes where the story is laid," said Mr. Lasky, "is a result of the great enthusiasm I found in Europe for American motion pictures. The production of 'Mme. Sans Gene' in Paris is an example of a broader production policy which we purpose to inaugurate. It is our intention to produce pictures in the principal capitals of Europe, and next fall we shall send one of our most popular paramount stars to London for the production of a picture in our studio at Islington."

Foreign actors will, however, be seen in supporting roles, says Mr. Lasky.

Another important announcement given out by the Lasky people yesterday was to the effect that Betty Compson is to star in a picture, adapted from Leon Gordon's play, "A Garden of Weeds," with James Cruze directing.

"A Garden of Weeds" is to be made one of the big productions of the year, and an all-star cast will support Miss Compson.

IRENE RICH TELLS OF TRAVELS ABROAD

Looking as blooming as a rose, Irene Rich has come home from Europe, where, in London, she appeared in an independently produced English picture.

Of course her great experience was meeting Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales. She met them informally and charmingly, too, at a garden party given by Her Majesty.

She told about her European experiences at a luncheon given by Warner Brothers at the Biltmore, yesterday, celebrating her return.

"The Prince of Wales," she explained, "is a delightful youth, as the whole world knows. He is so eagerly interested in everything—except being a king. I suppose he is interested in that, too, but he surely has a catholic curiosity.

"Her Majesty is deeply interested in pictures, also, and wanted to know everything about them down to the most minute detail. That was really about all we talked of.

"No, I wasn't a bit nervous at being presented to the Queen, she was so gracious and charming."

Miss Rich was very ill while in London, having taken a severe cold while horseback riding one day. She spent a few days in Paris, and managed to see a good deal, she says, inasmuch as she scorned to sleep more than three hours a night.

Edith Roberts Signs

Just hold the thought long enough, and you get your wish. Anyhow you can't persuade Edith Roberts that it isn't that way. Because, having long desired to play opposite Harry Carey, fate or something has now arranged that she shall do so.

To be specific, Miss Roberts has been signed to appear opposite Harry Carey in "Roaring Rails," his fourth Hunt Stromberg production, which Tom Forman is directing.

Three years ago Harry Carey and Edith Roberts were starred individually by Universal. Their pictures were often made under the same roof, but although each greatly admired the other's screen work, conditions were such that they could not appear in the same picture.

Recently when Carey signed to star in a series of pictures for Hunt Stromberg, he sought Miss Roberts for leading woman in his first picture. But Miss Roberts was in the East appearing with George Arliss. Previous contracts kept her from appearing in the Carey pictures until "Roaring Rails" was put into production.

Wallace MacDonald is playing a leading role in the picture, and from location at Victorville and on the desert, where the company is now working, Wally writes us an entertaining letter:

"Here we are, surrounded by heat and desert and melting grease paint," writes Wally. "Hot is hardly the word. I think the sun rises an hour after it sets. I am representing the vile city interests in this story of the great West, and as a sideline have Doris (Mrs. MacDonald) along on a rest and vacation. We came up in our own car and took it easy. It was a beautiful trip up here, great roads and nice stop-offs. Doris is recuperating nicely.

"The ice plant has put in a swimming pool in their back yard here. At two bits a throw we wallow in the overflow nightly. The picture show here is crowded when it opens, viz., Tuesdays and Thursdays. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays we spend our dimes at the local shooting gallery.

"I almost forgot the nickel spot dance last night. It was a big success. You stand on the winning spot and win a prize. I won four pairs of suspenders.

"After tomorrow we are off to Big Bear for the final forest fire scenes. We couldn't go to Oregon to make the scenes on account of the fire scare up there.

"Great excitement! Edith Roberts's husband is coming up for a visit tomorrow!"

Sara Sothern Departs

Sara Sothern, who has been visiting her parents here, has been called back to New York by Channing Pollock and Chamberlain Brown, the latter her business manager.

The London production of "The Fool" seems to be emulating the famous tradition of the Flannigan episode, being "off again, on again, gone again." The Channing Pollock play is now in the "off again" era, but expects to be "gone again" about Christmas time or thereabouts. The difficulty seems to be to find a leading man capable of playing the leading role sufficiently well to impress London playgoers.

But though Miss Sothern is naturally eager to play in London the role of the little lame girl which she created here, she isn't going to stay idle any longer, but is to read three new plays as soon as she reaches New York, with a view to signing up for the lead in one of them. Later, or whenever Channing Pollock's new play is ready, she is to do the lead in that.

Marguerite Zander Here

Marguerite Zander, whom we remember as the star of "Mary," when it played at the Mason here, is among us. She has come west for a rest and vacation, and if any picture directors long to get in touch with her, she will not be angry. She is staying at the Parkway Hotel. The little star has been playing in musical comedy in the East, in Chicago, Boston, New York and on the road ever since her former visit here in "Mary."

Ince Buys Noted Story

Thomas H. Ince has acquired the motion-picture rights to "Enticement," by Clive Arden, the English novelist, and plans to make a brilliant production of it in the near future.

Although the novel has not yet been published in this country, it has attracted wide attention here and in England by reason of its compelling theme, and the author's engrossing treatment of it.

Pauline Curley's Narrow Escape

A narrow escape from drowning was the experience of Pauline Curley, who was playing a lead in a picture being made up in Seattle, and who has just returned.

It was during the making of scenes on the Cowlitz River that Miss Curley, incumbered by heavy clothing, was supposed to fall into the water, but to save herself by swimming ashore. The scenes were taken near the rapids, and apparently the force of the current was underestimated. Miss Curley was swept from her feet and into the rapids. Only prompt action of a cameraman connected with the company saved her life.

LOUIS MACLOON ON WAY TO NEW YORK

Louis O. Macloon, lessee and manager of the Playhouse, left on a flying trip to New York yesterday to confer with his business associates, A. H. Woods and Arch Selwyn.

Macloon departed from San Francisco, where he had gone for the opening of Pauline Frederick in "Spring Cleaning."

Bowl Concert Has Glamour of Rarest

Symphonic music presented in a digestible amount is the rule at the Hollywood Bowl this summer. Last night three pretentious compositions made up the evening's program. Rimsky-Korsakov's Suite, "Scheherazade," received its second hearing of the season, and Tschaikowsky's Symphonic Poem, "Romeo and Juliet" and the Overture to "Tannhauser" by Wagner were presented.

Soloists of fame are not infrequently used as a bait to bring large audiences to concerts, and it was gratifying to note that thousands were present to hear these important works of the Russian and German composers.

The Rimsky-Korsakoff Suite is a kaleidoscopic affair, with brilliant, vivid harmonies, plaintive lyrics, tempestuous climaxes. Last evening it received perhaps even a better rendition than the first presentation.

The symphonic poem represents Tschaikowsky in one of his graceful and charming compositions in which his inevitable counterpoint balances beautifully with his fine melodies and strong harmonies.

The orchestra, under the masterly baton of Conductor Alfred Hertz, is acquiring a fine sweep and sway in the rhythmic phrasing of their larger numbers.

The evening closed with a splendid hearing of the "Tannhauser" Overture, a work in which Mr. Hertz excels.

PATRONS MISSING BITS OF PROLOGUE

Owing to the late arrival of many patrons, who thereby miss attractive portions of the prologue, "The City of Dreams," the management of Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater urges its guests to be seated early. Large crowds are being attracted to the current picture, Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad."

The prologue, considered the most elaborate of Sid Grauman spectacles, consists of several terpsichorean numbers, most of which have been specially imported for this occasion. In addition to the dancing features there are several score musicians and artists interpreting in the flesh the more conspicuous characters from the Fairbanks opus.

"The Thief of Bagdad" is based on the thousand and one Arabian Nights tales and introduces for the first time on the screen such familiar and beloved visions as the magic rope, the flying carpet, the magic apple, castles hung in mid-air, a phantom army springing up from the ground, and other things heretofore unknown in the realm of stage or screen.

SOUVENIR MATINEE AT PANTAGES TODAY

Pantages Theater will hold a souvenir matinee this afternoon in honor of Laura LaPlante, Universal's blonde star, and each blonde in attendance will receive an autographed souvenir photograph of Miss LaPlante. This is the third of the special matinees arranged by Manager Walker for "blondes' week."

Tomorrow afternoon Miss LaPlante will appear in person at the matinee and will hold a reception in the foyer of the theater after the performance. For Friday "blonde daddies' matinee" is announced, when any blonde bringing a "blonde daddy" will be admitted free to the theater and no questions asked.

NEIL HAMILTON IS RECENT DISCOVERY

Neil Hamilton, who plays an important role in "The Side Show of Life," featuring Ernest Torrence and Anna Q. Nilsson this week at the Metropolitan, is one of the most recent screen discoveries.

Hamilton had his first big screen role in "The White Sister," under the direction of D. W. Griffith. He played the role so well that he was signed to a long-term contract. Next came his role of Nathan Holden in "America." Herbert Brenon saw him in that role and arranged with Mr. Griffith to have him play in "The Side Show of Life."

FANCHON AND MARCO STAGE CINEMA REVUE

Frank Lloyd has engaged Fanchon and Marco to produce a series of theatrical dancing numbers for the theater sequences of his newest picture, "The Silent Watcher," which features Glenn Hunter and Bessie Love.

The Morosco Theater will be used for a number of interior scenes showing a revue on stage and the back-stage sequences are to be filmed at the United Studios. Alma Bennett will lead the girls of the revue and Mlle. Susette and David Murray will also have a prominent part in the "on stage" action.

MARY PICKFORD AS TESS AT MISSION

It is as Tess, in a picturization of Grace Miller White's "Tess of the Storm Country," that Mary Pickford is said to be at her best. Because of many requests from admirers of Miss Pickford to see her once again in this charming production the management of the Mission Theater has included "Tess" in the revival-week program as the feature attraction for today. The cast includes Lloyd Hughes, Gloria Hope, David Terrence and Forrest Robinson. Tomorrow D. W. Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm" will be the attraction.

BEACH BALLROOM TO OPEN DOORS TONIGHT

La Monica Ballroom, conceded to be one of the finest structures devoted exclusively to dancing in the West, designed by T. H. Ealick, amusement engineer, will be open to the public this evening. Don Clark, nationally known orchestra leader, with his band of twenty, will furnish the inspiration for the thousands expected to throng the pavillion.

The members of the La Monica orchestra are all soloists and the ensemble is delightfully pleasing.

Santa Monica's gala event will be a notable one inasmuch as the elite of the city together with a large number of those socially prominent in Los Angeles, will participate.

A MESSAGE TO THE CINDERELLA ROOF

"In the Cinderella Roof a famous dance orchestra was created in Herb Wiedoeft's organization. My enthusiasm and admiration for Herb Wiedoeft's band knows no bounds. I think it is one of the greatest recording orchestras today, and I believe you have created another famous orchestra in Glen Oswald's. Their rhythm is perfect, both in melodic fox-trots and waltzes.

"I think the Cinderella Roof is one of the finest ballrooms in America and I am anticipating the opportunity to again play there."

CONVICTIONS NOT EXPECTED

Belief Expressed Dynamite Jury Will Disagree

Acquittal of Taylor Downs is Anticipated

Arguments Will Not Close Before Thursday

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, July 22.—The McGuire murder trial will not go to the jury before Thursday morning, it was believed at the courthouse early today, when Asst. Dist.-Atty. Westwick opened the arguments for the prosecution. Westwick's argument, beginning early this morning, was not ended tonight and following his lengthy statement, it is expected Joseph Ford for the defense will begin an argument of similar length.

Characterizing the slaying of McGuire at Los Olivos on December 23, last, as the most dastardly crime in the history of the country, the prosecution spent most of the morning outlining the probable arguments of the defense.

Westwick stated that every possible attempt had been made by the defense to drag the name of the Ku Klux Klan into the investigation, but that the accused were not being tried on any matter connected with the investigation and alleged third degree; but were being heard on the charge of murder only.

"No amount of abuse heaped upon the office of the District Attorney will purge the black hearts of the defendants, nor purge their dirty souls," said the assistant prosecutor, "and we ask for a verdict of murder in the first degree."

The matter of the participation of W. W. Kemp, known to be a Klan kleagle in connection with the investigation following the killing of the aged blacksmith by a heavy dynamite bomb, was gone into and it was asked why the defense had stopped Kemp's appearance on the stand if he had subjected the defendants to inhuman treatment as had been claimed.

Though the defense had not opened its argument late tonight, the belief about the courtroom was to the effect that Taylor Downs, the oldest of the trio on trial, will be acquitted and that the jury will not be able to reach a verdict on William Downs, his son, and W. H. Crawford.

DISCUSS RIVER PROJECT

Enlarged Facilities Necessary at Santa Ana

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SANTA ANA, July 22.—Santa Ana is face to face with a problem of providing additional and adequate storage for its water supply, Walter Wray, City Water Superintendent, told members of the City Board of Trustees here last night, in presenting a project calling for a storage reservoir of 50,000,000 gallons capacity and big enough to supply a city of 100,000.

During the discussion by Council members, they were advised to "keep an eagle eye" on a larger project—that of bringing water from Colorado River sources in quantities sufficient to supply virtually all Southland cities. In the event this plan matures, Santa Ana city officials undoubtedly will give entrance of the city into such a joint enterprise careful and likely favorable consideration.

In the event the large reservoir project is put through, Santa Ana could divert its share of Colorado River water to the big storage plant, the Council discussion brought out.

Wray, in presenting his subject, said he would not leave the impression that Santa Ana was facing a water shortage. He impressed the fact, however, that the present pumping system depends for its successful operation upon machinery, that might break down, and upon electric power, which might not be of permanent nature.

COUNCILMAN DIGS UP OLD ORDINANCE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 22.—Charges that the power and telephone companies of Bakersfield have been violating their franchises and a city ordinance since 1901, were hurled by Councilman O. T. Austin at City Council meeting last night. The Councilman declared that an ordinance passed in 1901 provided that all power lines must be placed in underground conduits in certain districts of Bakersfield. This, he says, has not been complied with.

Other Councilmen and City Manager James Ogden were inclined to question the charges. If they are proved it may mean the removal of numerous power line poles and the installation of underground conduits, it was said.

NAUGHTY DANCER SHOCKED POMONA

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

POMONA, July 22.—J. W. Gibbs of Los Angeles, district manager for the Woodmen of the World, who on February 13 was arraigned before Judge Bowen on the charge of having brought to Pomona a woman who put on an objectionable dance before the local lodge, will be given a jury trial Friday morning before Judge Bowen of the local police court. The charge grew out of an entertainment put on before the local Woodmen by Gibbs on January 15.

START WORK ON PARK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, July 22. — Work will be started next week on the city's twenty-two-acre recreation park east of Shamrock avenue. Plans will be received here early next week from the office of Cook & Hall, Los Angeles landscape engineers, for the work. After the grading is completed the first unit of the buildings will be undertaken. The sum of $80,000 was voted by the city at a bond election last fall for the recreation park.

SEND OUT FRUIT IN CARLOADS

Kern County Ships Large Quantities of Grapes and Melons

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 22.—Increase of 174 carloads of fresh produce shipped from Kern county during the last week as compared with the previous week, is shown in the reports made by district inspectors to Harold L. Pomeroy, County Horticultural Commissioner, the increase being divided between grapes, cantaloupes and watermelons.

Potato shipments dropped from forty-two to four cars, the season being practicaly ended. The greatest increase in carload shipments was in grapes, the season being on the rise.

Last week there were 124 carloads of grapes shipped, while in the previous week there were only fifteen cars. Arvin shipped thirty-one carloads of grapes last week, as compared with one car in the pervious seven-day period. DiGiorgio shipped nineteen carloads of grapes last week and reported no carload shipments the previous week. Magunden shipped twenty-six carloads. Lerdo, ten; Bakersfield, nine; Shafter, twenty-two; Famoso, two; Delano, five carloads. Cantaloupes continued to lead in carloads shipped, with 263 cars last week, as compared to 195 cars during the previous seven days. Wasco shipped 150 cars of cantaloupes, Arvin, twenty-one; DiGiorgio, thirty-one; Delano, forty-one; Magunden, one; McFarland, nineteen.

Watermelon shipments totaled 169 carloads during the week, which was twenty-seven cars more than were reported in previous seven days. Delano led with shipment of fifty-six cars. Other carlot shipments of watermelons were Wasco, forty-four cars; McFarland, twenty-six; DiGiorgio, eight; Magunden, seventeen, and Lerdo, eighteen.

AMBITIOUS LA HABRA

Starts Movement to Establish Local Government

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LA HABRA, July 22.—Election of officers and the first steps toward another attempt toward incorporation for La Habra made the meeting last night of the La Habra Chamber of Commerce an important one. James E. Howard and L. M. Hopper were re-elected president and secretary, respectively. L. J. Webster was elected vice-president and George Gordon treasurer. The committee on incorporation presented a petition all ready for circulation. Hopper, Howard and B. F. Harp will have charge of securing signatures.

The chamber also indorsed the proposed additional $75,000 bond issue as asked by the trustees of the sanitary district to complete a sanitary sewer system from La Habra to the outfall main at Anaheim.

FAIL TO LOCATE MISSING BANKER

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, July 22.—The whereabouts of Rubin R. Bailey, former cashier of the First National Bank of Venice, who left the 11th inst. for a trip to the mountains and who is being sought by authorities following discrepancies found by bank examiners, still remains a mystery. W. D. Newcombe, Jr., president of the bank, stated this morning that the amount of the shortage has not been determined but that it would be fully covered by a bonding company.

Bailey left following an attack of influenza to spend a few days in the mountains in an effort to regain his health. He came to Venice in 1918 from Imperial Valley and had made rapid strides to promotion in the local institution.

The day following Bailey's disappearance he communicated with his wife here from Los Angeles stating that the effects of his recent illness made it necessary for him to go to the mountains for a rest. Since that time Mrs. Bailey has received no word as to the whereabouts of her husband.

CHAIN STORE TO OPEN OFFICE HERE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

OXNARD, July 22.—After twenty-two years of successful business in this city, during which time branch stores were opened in seven other towns of Southern California, the Wineman Company, Inc., has moved its headquarters to the Grayco Building, Los Angeles. The local department store is one of the oldest establishments in this city, having been started when Oxnard was a city of tents.

The store enlarged until it became one of the largest here. During the last few years branch stores have been opened until the Wineman Company now has a location in Oxnard, Ventura, Santa Paula, Fillmore, Santa Maria, Visalia, Dinuba and Inglewood. Inglewood is the latest to be added to the chain and will be formally opened in a short time.

GAS COMPANY PLANS NEW SERVICE LINES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ROSCOE, July 22.—Surveys have been completed and stakes set for the installation by the Southern California Gas Company of gas mains to supply Tujunga, La Crescenta and Sunland. From here an eight-inch main will be run along Hansen Road and for the full length of Michigan avenue. Connection here will be made with the main that brings the gas into the valley from the Midway fields. The estimated cost of the improvement is $250,000. Work will be started immediately upon the arrivals of the piping and it is expected that a force of 150 men will be engaged in the work, which will require in all thirty-nine miles of pipe.

ASKS CITY TO PAY FOR GERMS

Typhoid Victim Demands Money for Illness

Says Drinking Water Caused His Trouble

Charges Officials With Being Negligent

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, July 22.—Damages amounting to $615 were demanded of the city of Pasadena today by Robert Richardson, 501 El Centro street, South Pasadena, as a result of water contamination evidenced last April and from which Richardson asserted he contracted typhoid fever.

The Pasadena water department supplies a part of South Pasadena's water users and several months ago typhoid germs were found in the drinking water. Mr. Richardson was one of a number to contract the disease.

Today Mr. Richardson presented the Pasadena Board of Directors with a claim for $30 doctor bill, $150 as nurse's fees, $15 worth of medicine and $420, representing seven weeks' loss of pay. Richardson stated he became ill April 28, last, and did not recover until June 15.

After considerable discussion had taken place in regard to the claim the Board of Directors voted to deny Richardson his claim for damages. It was intimated that court action to recover the sum might be instituted.

In part, Richardson's claim reads: "That on or about April 20, 1924, the city of Pasadena permitted the water furnished to residents of South Pasadena to come in contact with the sewerage of said city, all of which made the water foul and unfit for domestic use."

Richardson further charged that the infection was caused by negligence and carelessness on the part of city officials, that the officials knew of the condition and failed to inform him, so that he and his family used the water while it was in a foul condition.

For more than a month after the contamination in the water was discovered by water officials, residents were notified and requested to boil all water used for drinking purposes, the directors aver.

Police Still Hunt for Missing Mexican

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, July 22.—Although no further trace of H. A. Sanchez, one of the Mexicans alleged to have been caught robbing the Duarte store on the Foothill Boulevard Sunday night, and who escaped the police, was found, a search of his home at Azusa revealed, what the police believe to be stolen loot. According to Constable James Quiggle, cigars and other things were identified by A. S. Wilson, proprietor of the Duarte store as coming from his store. It is believed that they were taken from the Wilson store several months ago when about $2000 worth of merchandise were stolen.

Two new bicycles and two second-hand ones, eight flashlights and many other articles were identified, it is alleged by the police, as having been stolen from a sporting goods store in Azusa.

Rosilio Romo, the other Mexican caught in the Duarte store by the police Sunday night, is still in jail in Azusa. He has considerable real estate in Azusa and a merchandise store.

Sanchez has a wife and a 5-months-old baby in Azusa. Nothing has been heard of him since Sunday night. He was employed with the county road gang.

BUSINESS MEN BOOST NEW PAVING PLAN

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN FERNANDO, July 22.—The valley paving program was given enthusiastic indorsement tonight at the monthly banquet and meeting of the delegations from seventeen communities whose civic organizations are affiliated with the Associated Chambers of Commerce of San Fernando Valley. From highways and boulevards the discussions revolved around public parks and playgrounds. The suggestion that the washes be utilized for this purpose was reviewed, but no definite conclusion was reached, as it was not shown clearly just how so pretentious an undertaking could be financed. The need for parks was demonstrated and all agreed that now is the time to secure them, before improvements are made that would necessarily be wrecked at great cost in the creation of the desired playgrounds.

CALEXICO ASKS FOR NEW RAIL STATION

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

CALEXICO, July 22.—Complaint has been made to the State Railroad Commission against the present conditions around the Southern Pacific depot in Calexico. For several years it has been understood here that the company intended constructing a new passenger station in a location considered safer to the public than the present one. When the company officials recently announced that financial conditions would not permit the construction of a new depot this year, considerable protest was raised among members of the Calexico Chamber of Commerce. The complaint to the Railroad Commission was made by the Chamber of Commerce and argued that the location of the present depot in the middle of a switching yard has become dangerous.

Let Mill Burn in Attempt to Save Big Trees

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

THREE RIVERS, July 22.—Probably the kiln fire became too hot and spread over materials in that building, thus starting the fire which broke out late Sunday at the Oriole Lodge Mill, east of Oak Grove on the Mineral King Road, destroying the mill, bunk houses, finished timber and standing timber with loss of about $100,000, according to employees.

This mill was owned by Pratt & Warner Lumber Co., of Los Angeles. It had been in operation all summer with a crew of twenty-five men most of whom were dismissed Saturday as the work was about completed.

The mill was not running Sunday and only a few workmen were in camp when the fire broke out, flames gaining such headway that it was impossible to save the mill and surroundings and efforts were concentrated toward saving standing timber.

The fire gained considerable headway before being checked, but is reported to be safely under control now.

SAND NOT SMOKE

Alarm Over Forest Fire Is Unwarranted

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CALIFORNIA HOT SPRINGS, July 22.—What was at first thought to be a smoke screen hanging over Sequoia Forest and which caused Supervisor F. P. Cunningham to add a six-man mounted and motor patrol to augment work of the lookouts is now believed to have been sand from a storm which visited the valley during the last few days, according to word from forest headquarters here.

There are no fires in Sequoia Forest now, except the last smoldering stumps of the Bull Run fire which are fast turning into ash. However as precaution, the additional patrol will be retained for a few days.

DISABLED VETERAN IN SEARCH OF DOPE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SOUTH PASADENA, July 22.—Police today are searching for Henry Thompson, shell-shocked ex-service man and former patient of the Los Angeles General Hospital, who endeavored to purchase morphine at the Burrhus Drug Store here this morning on a bogus prescription.

Thompson entered the pharmacy at an early hour and asked for the narcotic named in a prescription which bore the signature of Dr. Albert James Supple. The clerk compared the signature presented with others on file and found a discrepancy. He notified Dr. Supple who denied having authorized the purchase of the drug. Chief of Police Higgins declared.

Suspicious of the delay Thompson left the store before the police arrived.

ARREST SERVICE MEN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 22.—Disappearance of government property, much of which was said to have been recovered from several San Diego stores, has resulted in an investigation of asserted thefts from the North Island aviation station, and the arrest of several service men, who are now awaiting court-martial on charges of attempting to remove a complete airplane motor from the reservation.

Automobiles visiting the aviation grounds are now subjected to search. Aviation equipment, tools and lumber are among the articles taken recently.

AGED PHYSICIAN SAFE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 22.—Dr. John E. Scher, aged San Diego physician, who disappeared in the Cuyamaca Mountains Sunday and for whom search was made by forest rangers, was found this morning, safe and well in a mountain cabin where he had taken refuge.

Mexican Court Returns Land to Old Estate

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

CALEXICO, July 22.—After ten years of litigation in the Mexican courts, 12,000 acres of rich farming land in the Algedones district of Lower California has finally been awarded to the Martinez estate. Adolfo L. Verdugo of Yuma, representing the estate, has taken charge of the big acreage of land, following a recent decision of the Mexican Supreme Court, awarding the property to the Martinez heirs.

Nearly fifty years ago this land was granted to the Martinez family by the Mexican government and also title was later given to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. The railroad company sold the land in small farms and it has been under cultivation for several years. The Martinez heirs brought suit ten years ago to recover title to the land by virtue of its Federal grant, but throughout the litigation the new owners held control until recently, when Verdugo took charge.

The value of the land is more than $500,000 and the Southern Pacific was compelled to set aside funds to reimburse the persons who bought the land from the company. Verdugo announced that arrangements are being made to sell the land now in possession of those who purchased it from the Southern Pacific Company to those owners. According to railroad officials, attempts will be made to retain title of the company to the land, despite the Supreme Court's decision.

TO IRRIGATE MANY MEXICAN RANCHES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MEXICALI, July 22.—Equipment for the new irrigation water system at Colonia Zaragosa, near Mexicali, has arrived and is being installed under the direction of G. Romero, City Engineer of Mexicali. A large water pump, a 100-horse power engine and several large tanks are included in the equipment. Gov. A. Rodriguez of the Northern District of Lower California, has taken personal interest in the development of this new irrigation project, which is intended to benefit Mexican settlers only. It is proposed to irrigate at least 5000 acres of rich farm land in this district, the water being provided from the Cerro Prieto canal of the Imperial Irrigation District.

Because of the silting up of the canals in the vicinity of the new project, it was found necessary to provide the pumping system in order to assure a plentiful supply of water. The cost of the new equipment necessary for the pumping plant and water system is about $20,000.

TEN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 22.—Ten persons were more or less seriously injured late last night in a series of automobile accidents, the most serious of which was a crash between a street car and an automobile at the approach to the Mission Bay bridge. Six persons in the machine were thrown clear of the wreckage, three of them suffering severe injuries. Three other accidents brought the night's casualties up to ten.

BRIDGE PLANS COMPLETE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 22.—Following the instructions of the California Highway Commission, which were made upon the request of the Kern County Board of Supervisors, plans for a concrete girder bridge over Cottonwood Creek on the new State highway route up Kern Canyon have been completed, according to advices by Engineer J. B. Woodson at the Supervisors' meeting late yesterday.

On June 16 the Supervisors appropriated $45,000 for the building of this bridge, and requested the highway commission to draw up plans for it.

File Petition for Recall of City Officials

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, July 22. — With approximately 100 more signatures than were needed, petitions were formally presented to the City Commission last night asking for the recall from office of City Commissioners Charles C. Garrison and William P. Battelle. City Clerk Wallace in his report to the commission stated that the signatures, numbering 351 in each case, had been checked and found to be registered voters.

The city charter provides that the Commissioners who are facing a recall election have five days in which to resign if they so desire, following the presentation of the certificate by the City Clerk. The two officials have made no intimation that they intend to give up their offices by resignation.

The board last night took no action on the matter, and did not discuss a probable date for holding the election. The petitioners asked that it be held at the same time as the primaries, August 26.

PICKS NEWSPAPER MAN

Chamber of Commerce to Elect New Secretary

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 22. — Leigh H. Irvine, formerly a local newspaper-man, will be secretary of the Kern County Chamber of Commerce if the board of Supervisors elects him upon the recommendation made at a special session of the directors and if Mr. Irvine accepts the appointment.

Mr. Irvine was unanimously accepted for recommendation to the board of supervisors for the secretaryship by the directors after several hours spent in considering a large number of applications received from various parts of California. Mr. Irvine was called into conference with the directors at the time the selection was made.

The advisory board of fifteen members, three to be selected by each director, is to be announced on July 24.

OFFICIALS CONSIDER NEW AIR MAIL ROUTE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 22.—An air-mail route, with San Diego and Seattle as terminals, is being given serious consideration by postal authorities at Washington, with the probability that the service will be established in the near future, according to Postmaster E. W. Dort of San Diego.

Luther K. Kell, traffic manager of the air-mail service of the Postoffice Department, is planning to come to San Diego early next month, Dort said, to look into the various phases of the problem.

The proposed air-mail service would take on and deposit mail at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento and Portland and at the proposed terminals.

FAMILY TROUBLES CAUSE OF ARREST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, July 22.—Warrant for the arrest of E. H. Post, wealthy real-estate dealer, was issued today, the complainant being his son-in-law, B. F. Mahoney, who charges Post with assault with a deadly weapon.

In the background of the case is a story of asserted domestic difficulties between Mahoney and his wife and of unfriendliness between Mahoney and his father-in-law.

Post, Mahoney says, objected to the marriage of his daughter four years ago, and there has been friction ever since. The specific charge against Post is that he pursued Mahoney out of the Mahoney house and fired an automatic pistol four or five times, one bullet passing within a foot of Mahoney's head and shattering the windshield of his automobile.

HUNT FOR SNAKE IN THE GRASS

Ranchers Blame Huge Reptile for Recent Invasions of Poultry Pens

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, July 22.—Wanted, a snake charmer.

A boa constrictor or other large snake is believed to be at large in the southwestern section of the city and residents in the vicinity of South San Antonio and Cypress avenues are more than anxious that the reptile be taken into custody.

Mystery of the strange disappearance in the night during the last week of small rabbits and chickens belonging to ranchers of the district was believed solved today when Miss Dorothy Kaufman discovered the tracks of what was apparently a huge snake through the peach orchard of her father, J. J. Kaufman, to a rabbit hutch at the rear of their home, 1002 South San Antonio avenue.

Others who examined the tracks this afternoon declared them unquestionably to have been made by a huge reptile. They were followed through the Kaufman orchard and across a dirt road into a stubble field to the north, where they were lost.

Others who have recently lost poultry and rabbits in the neighborhood and who have observed the tracks of the supposed snake on their premises are Delbert S. Marble, 900 South San Antonio avenue, and Isaac Weed, Cypress avenue rancher. Miss Kaufman's discovery has thrown the entire district into a mild panic and housewives and children fear to wander from their own doorsteps. The theory has been advanced that a boa constrictor may have escaped from some transient show, while others declare that the tracks might have been made by a huge rattlesnake. Traps have been set and every effort is being made to capture the reptile.

FOREST FIRE DOES BUT SMALL DAMAGE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, July 22.—After having burned for more than three weeks the forest fire in the Bull Run Basin has burned itself out and only small patches of smouldering brush remain to be extinguished, according to George David, fire fighter who went to the district three weeks ago and who just returned to Bakersfield today.

Only a saddle horse patrol is being maintained and all of the drafted fire fighters have been released. The patrol is made up entirely of volunteer fire fighters who are familiar with that section of the country. According to Mr. Davis, the fire did not greatly damage the tall timber, burning lower down in the brush and small trees.

UNEQUAL ACCIDENT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, July 22.—Donald Fitzpatrick of North Olive avenue is threatened with the loss of the sight of one eye as the result of a peculiar accident. While working at home repairing an automobile a sliver of steel flew into his eye, after piercing the eyelid. The sharp point penetrated the eyeball causing intense suffering. Through the use of a giant magnet the foreign substance was extracted, but it is not yet assured that the optic nerve was not injured.

TAXI DRIVER BANDIT VICTIM

Officers Unable to Find Workable Clew

Highwaymen Steal and Escape

Throw Injured Man Into Open Ditch

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.

LONG BEACH, July 23.—Although the entire Orange County Sheriff's force, as well as local Long Beach detectives, are working on the case no definite clew has yet been uncovered which would lead to the arrest of the two men who brutally assaulted Meyer Rosenmer, Los Angeles taxicab driver, near this city late Monday night, took $85 from him and escaped in his taxicab after throwing him into a ditch half filled with water.

Van Warmer, who maintains an independent cab stand at the Hotel Rosslyn, was approached by two men who wished to go from Los Angeles to Ana, via Long Beach, in the evening.

After the party had stopped at an apartment in the eastern portion of the city for a few minutes the trip continued. Two miles west of Westminster one of the men slugged Van Warmer into semiconsciousness, stopped the car into a field at the roadside and then proceeded to rob him.

The two thugs debated for what should be done with their victim, finally throwing him into a ditch partially full of water and hitting him another blow on the head as he lay in the trench.

The bandits then climbed into the taxi and escaped toward Huntington Beach. Van Warmer managed his way to a near-by service station and was brought to the Seaside Hospital, Long Beach, where he was found to be suffering from nine lacerations about the head.

Van Warmer expressed little relief, when taken to police headquarters, that the assault had not been the work of rival taxi drivers, several of whom have threatened him in the past.

EXPLOSION RESULTS IN FRACTURED SKULL

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

BAKERSFIELD, July 23.—With his skull fractured and both arms broken as the result of an explosion which occurred at his place of business, Gus Erickson is in Mercy Hospital in a serious condition. Proprietor of the Electric Welding Shop, Erickson was engaged in repairing the exhaust vulcanizer when the explosion occurred as the flames ignited gasoline in the vulcanizer. The force with which the injured man was thrown against the ceiling was thrown against his head with such force that a severe skull-fracture and fractured skull resulted.

HEALTH BUREAU ASKS FOR FUNDS

Requests Survey of Needs of Department

Adjustment of Salaries is Sought by Chief

Quarters for Clinics Are Called Inadequate

Incorporated in the annual report of the City Health Department, submitted to the City Council yesterday by Health Commissioner Powers, is a request that a committee be appointed to make an immediate survey of needs of the Health Department with the object of placing it on a basis where it can be operated successfully by obtaining help and the adjustment of salaries.

The report also asks the Council to authorize a bond issue suitable for equipping the department with accommodations, including a clinic headquarters, a quarantine hospital and a public disinfecting station and laundry—a request which is made each year in the report.

Dr. Powers declares the department is unable to operate successfully because of insufficient help and the "periodically disturbed" salaries. The salaries should be put on a basis commensurate with the duties and the required proficiency of positions and not by arbitrary preference, the report states.

QUARTERS INADEQUATE

Present quarters of the department's clinics are inadequate and insanitary, according to the report. The quarantine hospital is inadequate and necessitates sending of male patients to the jails. Dr. Powers asks that a new position for the hospital be secured away from congested districts.

"It is with chagrin that I consider the past year's work in trying to control the communicable diseases of the city," the commissioner writes. "We have been unable to apply the well-known means of preventive medicine because of financial limitations in giving salaries adequate to retain competent employees."

The inspection of schools is under the Board of Education, the report also points out, which does not provide for inspection of communicable diseases. Chief Quarantine Inspector Peterson declares in the report that 90 per cent of the cases of one disease alone occurred because the department is unable to enter public schools for the purpose of vaccination.

BENEFITS CITED

The counterpart of this is cited by Dr. J. D. Dunshee in charge of the Division of Child Welfare. He declares that during the past four years all children entering two of the largest orphanages in the city have been vaccinated and not a case has developed in consequence. Before the practice was started, according to the doctor, the same orphanages were under quarantine at least one-quarter of each year.

Statistical figures included in the report show that Los Angeles's birth rate for the year ending June 30, last, is decidedly higher than the mortality tabulation. More than eighteen children were born for each 1000 of population. The total for the year shows 18,425 children, an increase of 3522 births over 1922-1923.

Erwin H. Miller, chief chemist of the department, reports that there has been no appearance of infectious disease traceable to the water supply. He appends the statement, however, with the recommendation that the water be subjected to a filtration and chlorinating process to forestall the possibility of any questionable conditions in the water.

RUM CAR LIBEL CASES LOST

Decision in Federal Court Regarded Important to Innocent Owners of Seized Cars

Evidence of illegal possession or transportation of intoxicating liquor in an automobile is not sufficient ground for institution of libel proceedings against the automobile under the Internal Revenue Law, Federal Judge Bledsoe held yesterday.

The decision has particular reference to three cases in which innocent owners of seized cars protested forfeiture of the cars under action instituted by United States Attorney Joe Burke following conviction of parties using the cars in violation of the law. Each libel action was brought under Section 3450, Revised Statutes. In two of the cases, the preceding criminal action, in which convictions were obtained, were brought for violation of the Volstead Act. In the third case, a conviction had been obtained for smuggling intoxicating liquor across the Mexican border in violation of Section 593 of the 1922 Tariff Act.

Judge Bledsoe dismissed the libel proceedings in the two prohibition law cases on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence upon which the court could indulge the inference that there was an intent to defraud the United States of taxes due on liquor concealed and transported in the automobiles.

In the third case, on which there had been a conviction for smuggling, Judge Bledsoe held for the government on the grounds that the evidence showed clearly a violation of the law requiring payment of duties.

Much importance is attached to the ruling in view of the fact that courts generally have favored innocent owners of seized automobiles in efforts to recover their property as against libel proceedings under the prohibition law, which provides for the forfeiture of vehicles used in the unlawful transportation of liquor, "unless good cause to the contrary is shown."

In the two cases dismissed by Judge Bledsoe, one car was owned by an automobile rental concern and possession of the other remained with a San Francisco automobile dealer who had sold it on conditional sales contract to the person convicted of illegally transporting intoxicating liquor.

Dismissal of the two cases was made without prejudice so that the United States Attorney may institute further libel action under Section 26 of the prohibition law, if he sees fit to do so.

YOUTH HELD AS GUNMAN IS WEALTHY

Police Say it Will be Years Ere He Will be Able to Enjoy Million

Thomas R. "Red" Martin, asserted gunman held at the City Jail on charges of robbery and assault with a deadly weapon, yesterday was revealed as a near-millionaire. The suspect, who is 20 years of age, has a fortune of $187,500 in his own name at present and will come into possession of another $750,000 when he attains his twenty-first birthday, police learned.

Investigation by Detective-Lieutenant Mayer disclosed that Martin's grandfather is F. M. Lanham of Dodd City, Tex., a millionaire. The latter is now on his way to this city to deposit bail for his grandson's release.

Martin was arrested about three weeks ago in a gun battle at Twelfth street and Central avenue during which Patrolman Potter was wounded. Three charges of robbery and one of assault with a deadly weapon were booked against the youth. They indicated yesterday that it will be many years before Martin will be able to enjoy his fortune as the case against him is believed virtually impregnable.

Detectives stated that Martin was a gangster with a reputation. Two of his asserted associates in crime, Paul Couchman and Joe Green, are under arrest at Oakland, they said and other members of the gang are being sought.

RESPITE IS GRANTED TO WOLFGANG

Court Postpones Case of Man Doomed for Murder in Milk Theft

Isaac Wolfgang, twice sentenced to be hanged for the murder of a Los Angeles policeman after having been arrested for stealing a bottle of milk and who was to go to his death at San Quentin early tomorrow morning, yesterday was given a little longer time to live.

The State Supreme Court in session here yesterday postponed consideration of the last effort to save Wolfgang's life until August 12, when the court will convene in San Francisco. This will automatically defer the carrying out of the death sentence.

The continuance of the case was granted yesterday following receipt of a telegram from Wolfgang's attorneys in San Francisco confirming the report that an application for a writ of error has been forwarded to the United States Supreme Court at Washington by air mail. It is understood the court here did not wish to consider the case before the high tribunal at Washington takes action on the application made to it.

Wolfgang's appeal to the California Supreme Court is based on an asserted error of Superior Court here in pronouncing sentence upon him when he was not present.

The Supreme Court yesterday also continued hearing the appeal of 17-year-old William A. Hard until August 12. Hard is under life sentence for the death of a Siskiyou county rancher.

The criminal cases against Casade, Collin and McGann were postponed until the court convenes in Los Angeles in September.

Today's calendar of the high tribunal will bring up for discussion the validity of the Los Angeles zoning ordinances in the cases of Ross and Zahn, and Miller against the Board of Public Works.

PORT POLICE NAB WOBBLY AS PLOTTER

Authorities Believe They Have Balked Conspiracy in Seizing Irish Agitator

Police of Los Angeles Harbor believe they took the first step yesterday in breaking up an international Wobbly conspiracy by arresting N. J. McKenna, Irish revolutionist and I.W.W. organizer, and holding him for deportation. It is charged he entered the United States illegally and he will be turned over to the immigration authorities.

According to Officers Swindle and Jackson, who arrested McKenna, he carried credentials from an I.W.W. organization in Dublin and another in Fall River, Mass., and boasted openly that he had been assigned to Los Angeles Harbor to supervise a Wobbly drive for members on the Pacific Coast and particularly in California. They said McKenna, shipping as a seaman, came to this port about a week or ten days ago on an oil tanker.

McKenna showed the police several wounds he said he had received in fighting in Ireland and said he had joined the I.W.W. eight years ago in Australia. If McKenna is not deported, the police said, he will be prosecuted under the criminal syndicalism law.

The police are still looking for Tom Gallegher, who escaped from the United American liner Kermit by forging a pass and caused the vessel to be fined $1000. They declare Gallegher represented the Civil Liberties Union in Germany and he is suspected of I.W.W. affiliations.

JOINS ADVERTISING STAFF

Lawrence Compton, local newspaper man, has joined the staff of the Hammel, Sutphen & Co., Inc., advertising agency, Merchants' National Bank Building, according to announcement yesterday. Compton, who was in charge of the real estate advertising section of one of the local newspapers for many years, will direct several campaigns now being prepared.

BURGLAR TAKES DOPE ONLY

A drug addict broke into offices of Dr. F. D. Leech and Dr. G. D. Clevery at 6404 Hollywood Boulevard, early yesterday morning, and made away with a large quantity of narcotics, according to a report to the police. The thief disturbed nothing else in the two offices.

PERMANENT BAN PLACED UPON HAYES

Missing Broker Loses State License; Books of Others Ordered Seized

Baron Hayes, reported as mysteriously missing from his home and brokerage office since the 14th inst., and who has been named defendant in a divorce action brought by his wife and held liable for wage claims filed against him by former stenographers and book-keepers, was prohibited permanently from doing business as a broker hereafter in California by the State Commissioner of Corporations yesterday.

The brokerage license given Hayes April 30, last, by the State Department was permanently revoked. The Corporation Commission found that Hayes had violated the Corporate Securities Act, having carried on his brokerage business before he was properly licensed by the department.

Hayes appeared before Commissioner Daugherty several weeks ago to defend charges made against him by J. A. McDonnell, a former client, who alleged Hayes, with his ertswhile partner, M. R. Kauffman, had sold him $4690 worth of stock previous to the time the commission granted the permit.

In line with the campaign the commission is carrying on to wipe out bucket shops in California it was understood yesterday that Deputy Commissioner Praul, in charge of the investigation, ordered the books of several local brokerage houses seized.

CAR ACCESSORIES STOLEN

More than $200 worth of automobile accessories were stolen yesterday from the car of Neigfried Goetz of 2041 North Cahuenga avenue, according to a report made by him to the Hollywood police. Mr. Goetz told the officers he had parked his car there for about two hours and when he returned practically everything that could be taken off had disappeared.

MARSHMALLOW POPULAR

Marshmallow week, which opened Monday, is extensively observed, according to officials of Bishop & Co. The firm is turning out its best marshmallows for the week, and with hundreds of stores cooperating the city is consuming the white cubes at a tremendous rate, it was stated.

Man of 74 Made Young in Three Weeks By Simple Method

Former Kansas Contractor Tells of Wonderful Results From Testing Korex Compound.

THOMAS J. GLASCOCK

Thomas J. Glascock, 74, well-known old time Kansas contractor, declares he has virtually been made young again by the recently discovered korex compound, which by many users is pronounced superior to "gland treatments," as an invigorator and revitalizer.

"I feel like I did at 35," says Mr. Glascock, "and seem to be getting stronger every day. During my three weeks' use of the new discovery, pains and weaknesses of many years' standing disappeared almost magically. Today I am as vigorous and supple as I was in the prime of life. Furthermore, when I began using the compound, my memory was virtually gone and I was almost blind. Now my mind is clear and active and I can read the finest print without difficulty."

In order to find out whether the results were lasting, Mr. Glascock waited six months before reporting on his test of the discovery. On this point he says:

"Every passing day strengthens my conviction that my restoration is not only complete but permanent. I can't express the happiness this great discovery has brought to me. It has made me 'young' again."

Similar reports are being made almost daily. For instance, D. W. Wood of New Orleans, past 60 years of age, says: "The compound has brought me back to as good, healthy physical condition as I enjoyed at 35. I am apparently as supple as at 25 and my eyesight is better than for years. I would not take $5,000 for what the discovery has done for me."

The compound referred to by Mr. Glascock and Mr. Wood is put up in tablets for easy use at home by anyone. It has won the praise of thousands who suffered from nervous exhaustion, diminished or depleted vigor, neurasthenia, premature age and lack of animation and vital force. Elderly people have pronounced it a "fountain of youth."

Prepared especially for acting directly on lower spinal nerve centers and blood vessels, gratifying benefits are known usually in a few days, according to thousands who have used it. Enthusiastic reports from users acclaim the compound as giving speedy satisfaction in obstinate cases that had defied all other treatments previously used.

Realizing that thousands of enfeebled, half-alive folks may consider such news "too good to be true," the American distributors of korex compound, the Melton Laboratories, have arranged for korex compound to be placed on sale in Los Angeles at McKay & Monkman, 900 So. Broadway, and other leading druggists. Just ask for korex.—[Advertisement.

Regarding your Aristo Motor Oils—I have a 490 Chevrolet and have always used Aristo Medium. This car has gone nearly 28,000 miles and I have never had same in a repair shop, doing same myself. The motor shows little wear, the crank shaft bearings show two to four one thousandths of an inch, the cylinders are smooth and have not been rebored or ground.

Had no trouble with carbon only cleaning motor once a year when overhauling and adjusting same.

Without "Carbon" Interference?

MERELY read from time to time in these announcements that we publish regularly, of the thousands of extra "carbon"-free miles that Aristo users get.

Let these men who use this oil tell you what their motors do.

Try it in your motor on their say so.

What You'll Find

You'll find that Aristo deposits a certain amount of residue, as do all motor oils without exception.

But you'll find it to be soft and fluffy —not the hard, gritty "carbon" that you may know.

You'll find, too, that most of it blows out with the exhaust.

You may see 10,000—20,000—and even greater mileages perhaps, registering on your speedometer with no "carbon" effect upon your motor—no layups for removal, no lost time and no expense.

Letter after letter comes from users saying they are getting these results.

A Scientific Oil

Aristo is an oil that stands up under all conditions to protect each moving part.

A scientific lubricant of the very highest grade.

Use it unmixed with other kinds and see what it will do. Make a mileage test with the motor that you drive. Learn how much longer you can put off "carbon" troubles with Aristo Motor Oil.

Let this test decide you on the oil you want to use thereafter.

That is all we ask.

For sale at all first class garages and service stations.

AIRPORT FUNDS ASKED OF CITY

Council Appealed to for $10,000 Appropriation

Amount Required to Install Government Equipment

Griffith Park Mail Station to Get $250,000

The Community Development Association and the Chamber of Commerce yesterday joined in an appeal to the City Council to contribute $10,000 for the improvement of a municipal airport at Griffith Park, which will be a station in the trans continental air mail service and also will be headquarters for a divisional air service unit of the California National Guard.

The joint communication called attention to the fact that the Council already has designated the Griffith Park location as an airport and that the Federal government is prepared to supply free of cost to Los Angeles $250,000 worth of equipment. The Council's $10,000 appropriation would be required, the letter stated, to install the government equipment.

Of the advantages accruing to Los Angeles by the establishment of the Griffith Park airport, the letter, which was signed by Secretary Zack J. Farmer of the Community Development Association and Ford A. Carpenter of the department of Meterology and Aeronautics of the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"This will definitely place Los Angeles on the air map of America, and seems to be an extraordinary opportunity to accomplish a very great improvement in behalf of Los Angeles at an expense which, when compared to the value of the equipment received in return as well as intrinsic benefits of the entire proposition, appears very small."

WIFE SAYS HUSBAND "HINTED" FOR DIVORCE

ASSERTED RUSES TO GAIN HIS FREEDOM TOLD IN COMPLAINT

A real expert in breaking bad news was William T. Clower, according to Mrs. D. Edna Clower who filed suit against him yesterday for divorce. A year ago he suggested her taking a trip to Los Angeles—they were living in Savannah, Ga.

Soon after her arrival he suggested she lengthen her stay to three months. At the end of that time he said he was making efforts to sell their Savannah home and would join her here.

Then she got a letter advising her to "learn some trade or profession—it might come in handy" and the next epistle said: "I have found a real pal and she is all I could ask for."

Mrs. Clower hurried back to Savannah, she said, but Clower met her at the train with another one-way ticket to California and shipped her back.

Presently he wrote he would marry the other girl as soon as he was free and Mrs. Clower took the hint.

CONVERSE IS DENIED CHILD

Habeas Corpus Writ Refused and Grandmother Is Awarded Boy's Custody; Appeal Likely

Through an opinion handed down yesterday by Judge Archbald of Juvenile Court, David Warren Converse, 3 years of age, was declared a ward of the court and released in the custody of his grandmother, Mrs. Ida May McDonald McLain of Sunland.

The decision marked the end, so far as Superior Court is concerned, of a bitter contest for the child's custody between Linton K. Converse, father of the child, and Mrs. McLain.

Converse sued out a writ of habeas corpus asking that Mrs. McLain be compelled to relinquish the boy to himself. He stated the child had been awarded to his wife, the late Addie May Converse, pending action on a contested divorce case brought by Mrs. Converse. Mrs. Converse died before the case could be brought to trial and she was said to have made a dying statement requesting that her son be placed in the care of her mother, Mrs. McLain.

FATHER ACCUSED

In his cross-complaint to his wife's divorce suit, Converse accused his wife of being unduly friendly with a minister of Santa Monica. Mrs. Converse and the minister filed answers denying these allegations.

Mrs. McLain sought to retain the child's custody by filing a petition in the court in which she stated the boy had no parent capable of exercising proper control over him. In the trial of the case, testimony was offered by Mrs. McLain that Converse had rented a bungalow apartment in Sawtelle and that he had been visited there by a woman.

OPEN TO APPEAL

Judge Archbald explained that his decision was governed primarily by the child's interests. If he had granted Converse's petition for a writ of habeas corpus, he said, Mrs. McLain would have been precluded from the right of appeal, and, due to the legal questions entering into the case, the court said it was his desire that the case be so decided that it might be appealed to a higher court for a ruling.

The judge said he did not wish arbitrarily to deprive the grandmother of her claim to the child without giving her the privilege of presenting the case to a higher court. The child has been with his grandmother for several years, and Judge Archbald pointed out his decision merely meant the continuing of the case in status quo.

WORK TO START SATURDAY

Heroes of Past Wars to Be Honored When Ground is Broken for Home and Memorial

Heroes of past wars will be honored at the formal ground breaking of Patriotic Hall Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the presence of officials of the county and city and representatives of the American Legion, the Grand Army of the Republic, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Spanish War Veterans, the formal ceremony will begin the actual construction work on this building at 1816 South Figueroa street.

The program, in charge of the Veterans includes speeches and military demonstrations.

TO FILL TWO NEEDS

Supervisor Bean has determined that this building shall fulfill two needs, a fitting memorial to the soldiers and sailors of the county and a practical home for them all. Patriotic Hall, as a consequence, has been planned as a home for the living heroes, a memorial to those who have died and a foundation for the ideals and standards of liberty to be perpetuated.

Here will be treasured the records and mementos of the past and every military organization will find quarters and facilities at its disposal. There are ample meeting places and offices, and, for assemblies and conventions, an auditorium which will be the forum of the veterans. A trophy room, a banquet hall, dining-rooms, a library and complete equipment will make this building of practical use.

It has been considered important to furnish a place for athletics in which the out-of-town posts can meet in contest and, for this purpose a large gymnasium with galleries and space for basket ball is included in the layout.

ARCHITECTS CO-OPERATE

The board of supervisors conceived the memorial and the objects sought were attained through architects of the Allied Architects Association who have worked in a friendly spirit of competition in the designing of Patriotic Hall. Their collective service follows the example of the soldiers and sailors serving together in past wars.

The men entrusted with the carrying out of the plans were the members of the board of supervisors, R. F. McLellan, J. H. Bean, Prescott Cogswell, F. E. Wadley and Henry Wright; board of directors of the architects' association of Los Angeles, Edwin Bergstrom, Myron Hunt, A. M. Edelman, Sumner Hunt and David Allison, and friendly members of the Los Angeles County Veterans' Memorial Building Committee, Buron Fitts and Mendle Silberberg of the American Legion, C. F. Derby, W. S. Daubenspeck and J. W. Auburg of the Grand Army of the Republic, Judge John W. Shenk and John T. Curtin and R. Morgan Galbraith of the United Spanish War Veterans.

EVOLUTION OF PLANS

In planning Patriotic Hall the Supervisors, veterans and architects have met in innumerable conferences and committee sessions. The design of the building was decided on after each of the sixty-eight members of the Architects' Association had been asked to submit ideas in the form of sketches and had as a body met and discussed the work of each individual.

This is the procedure of the Allied Architects' Association of Los Angeles, which has been followed since its incorporation in July, 1921. At that time a small number of men enlisted in a group for the purpose of lending their efforts to the improvement of art and architecture.

Patriotic Hall will be approximately 100 feet wide by 155 feet deep, with six main floors, a basement and four intermediate floors. The basement includes a foyer, a banquet hall for 750, and a dining hall for 150 with ladies' parlor and men's smoking room, toilets and kitchen quarters.

On the main floor is the Memorial Hall and Trophy Room, the assembly hall seating more than 700, and the library and meeting hall for affiliated organizations.

On the second, third, fourth and fifth floors are the quarters for the veterans' organizations, including their auxiliaries.

On the intermediate floors are committee rooms and special offices. On the sixth floor is the gymnasium with space afforded for basketball. There are two passenger elevators and complete service equipment.

MAKE JOKES ORIGINAL TO GRAB PRIZES

Use the Old Noodle and Get Your Own Stuff on "Local Laughs" Film

Have you a sense of humor that craves expression?

Through the medium of The Times' "Local Laughs" film, readers of this newspaper are telling funny stories to thousands of theater-goers each week throughout Southern California, and they are getting paid for it beside.

"Local Laughs" is a reel made up entirely of jokes and witticisms contributed by readers, and the appearance of a new reel weekly at Loew's State Theater, Los Angeles, and subsequently at many other theaters in neighboring cities and towns, requires a continuous supply of the best humor.

If you know a joke that will get a laugh, send it in on the coupon printed elsewhere. It may win the place of honor on the next "Local Laughs" film, with your name and address, and a $5 check.

The second best contribution of humor each week is awarded a prize of $3, and third best, $2, while twelve others receive $1 each.

Original humor is given the preference, and the best way to be original is to manufacture your joke from the ground up. It may be based on some real occurrence; some odd character; an odd saying overheard on the street or in the office, an odd or embarrassing situation—using care to see that it is genuinely funny. Such facts may be elaborated, twisted about, and developed until one has a real joke of whose authenticity he is certain.

There is but one rule to observe, but it is important: keep your joke within thirty words. The shorter, the better.

There is no limit to the number or frequency of contributions.

17'S WASHINGTON STREET
Fifty feet on Washington street, between Arlington and Gramercy, that is 150 feet depth. New brick buildings to be built in this block will greatly enhance present values. It is $3500 underpriced right now and is a bargain because it has to sell. $9000 cash, balance first mortgage 7%. Contract awarded last week to widen Washington from Culver City to the ocean 100 feet and pave from curb to curb. Contract awarded for ornamental lights on Washington from main street to the ocean. Council ordered Washington street straightened from Hoover to connect with Broadway at Tenth street, making a direct line from the heart of the business district to the city limits. Can you visualize what this will do to increase values on Washington? We expect to see values increase 50% in this district within a year. The lot mentioned is this of is the heart of Washington's greatest activity. Buy it. We will pay a good price in cash for an option for one year to make you some real profit on the investment.

Screenland Fashions

Pretty Ruth Clifford wears this Beckman wrap of clever lines, fashioned of cocoa ermine trimmed with cocoa fox. An original Beckman creation.

Selected and posed by PEGGY HAMILTON

Walter Wilkinson, little screen celebrity now appearing in "The Sea Hawk," is shown here wearing a linen crash flapper suit and a linen wash hat from Mullen & Bluett.

Ahoy! It's stripes or clox in sox, and sea-dogs and landsmen alike are sailing a straight course to the Wetherby-Kayser Shops. There they get, rest assured, those exclusive effects that "pep" up the tout ensemble!

GENIUS sometimes reveals itself in a mere glance, a look, a gesture.

It was the single glance of contemptuous scorn that he gave Fannie Ward in "The Cheat" that made the fame of Sessue Hayakawa.

As they discovered to their grief and pain, later on, it also made "The Cheat." When they tried to make the picture again, with Pola Negri, they found that the story consisted chiefly of Sessue's superb acting.

From that day until "Babbitt" was made into a picture play I have seen nothing as revealing or as subtle as Hayakawa's artistry.

But in "Babbitt" Mary Alden did something just as adroit and as fine.

It was in the scene at the breakfast table after Babbitt has sown his wild oat and returned to the bosom of his family. When she passes him the banana fritters, Babbitt takes his wife's hand and smacks it with a kiss.

And oh, the look that she gave him!

There was wifely love in it; but there was pity and contempt, too. It was the look of a disillusioned wife who has looked into the bottom of her husband's soul and has seen what she has seen.

You know, after that look, that nothing fat old George Babbitt does thenceforth can ever wring her soul again. She has his number.

THERE IS DRAMATIC GENIUS GALORE ON OUR POLICE FORCE IF IT IS THE LOOK THAT COUNTS.

No actress could ever be taught to do that. That bit of artistry had to come from the soul of a woman with brains and finesse—a woman who has seen life and knows just how much per ton it assays.

A Case of Luck

The case of Mary Alden shows what a high percentage of luck there is in most screen careers.

She has been in pictures from the very first days. She dubbed along without ever getting anywhere in particular until Griffith cast her for the part of the octoroon mistress of the big political boss in "Birth of the Nation." She made it one of the great characters of screen history. Then the waters of commonplace parts, commonplace plays and commonplace directors closed over her and she virtually disappeared.

As "Babbitt" does not seem to have been an especially popular picture—at least in the estimation of most of the critics—she will probably benefit very little by this really remarkable performance—all the more remarkable in that she does not fit the part as it was written.

Sam Wood's Find

Sam Wood, the director, thinks he has found one of the great stars of the world in Dorothy Mackaill.

She is a little English girl who has been in Hollywood two or three years. Sam says she has everything but experience. He has chosen her for his lead in the Harold Bell Wright production he is now filming in Arizona near Tucson.

Dorothy Devore Steps Along

Dorothy Devore, who has just abandoned comedy for drama, is so much like Alice Lake of a few years ago that it startles you.

She looks exactly like her; talks like her and has the same fearless frankness.

Hugo Ballin, with whom she is making Arthur Stringer's "The Prairie Wife," thinks she has a very great and a very real talent that will carry her far.

All from Texas

Miss Devore is another Texas girl. Down in that State they must bring up babies with movie make-up sets instead of rattles.

As far as I can discover every girl ever born in Texas finally got into the movies. If there are any exceptions I haven't happened to hear of, it is doubtless due to the fact that they were born lame or something and haven't as yet been able to get to Hollywood. But eventually they will all be here.

In Miss Devore's case she had a whack at vaudeville, first. One of the Christie brothers saw her on the stage and signed her up for his comedies.

She was a hit in comedies and stuck there for three years. If she does not happen to get away with a whoop the first time in serious drama it will be because she tries too hard. I never remember seeing any other girl who pulled so hard in the collar as she.

She is lucky in getting a calm, self-possessed gentleman like Hugo Ballin as her first dramatic director. Ballin has a background of culture, education and experience that would be a tower of strength to any girl just breaking her way in.

Von Stroheim's Troubles

Erich Von Stroheim, they say, is having a life-and-death struggle trying to make a dramatic story out of "The Merry Widow," which he is to make with Mae Murray.

Von Stroheim is one of those intense artists who takes everything hard.

He used up a year of his life while he was making "Greed" in trying to persuade an actor to let some one throw a bowie knife at him. You would have thought that his chances of salvation and the life hereafter depended upon that knife gag. But when you saw it in pictures, you realized that it didn't have the slightest consequence.

And that's the reason why he is perhaps the greatest director in the world. There is a kind of agony inside of him that is tortured by slipshod work.

When they were making "Foolish Wives" he horrified the producers by having a complete electric-bell system put up in the Monte Carlo Hotel office. Nobody could see it. Nobody ever knew it was there. Except Von Stroheim. He knew it was there. He couldn't have made the scene unless it was there.

The Game of "Pretend"

I have a respect that amounts to veneration for this quality in Von Stroheim. It marks him as the great creative artist.

I know just how he felt about those bells.

When I was a little boy I was captain of a torpedo-boat destroyer. I was in the middle of a dangerous mission, which had as its object the blowing up of a battleship.

Right at the most critical point of the fight, somebody's little girl came to call. Out of politeness I had to let her be the captain of the torpedo boat.

Not until she sniffed at it did I realize that my torpedo boat was an old ladder suspended between two packing boxes, and the battleship I was sneaking up on was the family barn. Until then I did not realize that the controls with which I signaled the engine-room were two sticks fastened on with a nail.

That woman has since become a famous society belle and a great leader of politics; but I give you my word that to this day I hate her with a venomous hatred. She turned my torpedo boat which was battling the tossing billows of a terrible sea into a ladder in the back yard.

I know that this is just exactly the reason why Von Stroheim so fiercely resents the attempts of the producers to make him "practical."

That's why he is sick and nervous and overwrought. He is blindly and frantically struggling to keep clod minds from showing him that this handle is only a bit of stick and not a signal that runs down into an engine-room where men on a mission of death are stripped to the waist stoking the red-hot boilers.

Honor to Lubitsch

Everybody in motion pictures is waiting with lively interest to see what Ernst Lubitsch will do by way of directing Pola Negri again.

Lubitsch came to Hollywood in the most difficult circumstances that any director ever had to face.

The war was still fresh in everybody's mind. He couldn't speak a word of the language. He didn't know the customs of the country. He didn't know a thing in the world about the actors. He had to stake his whole future on a game in which he couldn't see the cards.

Some of the picture people wanted him to advertise himself as a Pole or a Rumanian. But Lubitsch absolutely refused to sail under false colors or to begin his life in this country with a lie.

Concerning Piffle

No doubt I will be blackballed, expelled from membership, have my dues doubled, or be stoned out of the city; but I am going to make some remarks about the Writers' Club and their monthly play nights.

They started out giving one-act plays that meant something. For instance like "The Field Marshal," by Ferenc Molnar.

One play night, I recall that they had a really extraordinary little dramatic study of a Russian spy. Another night they had a Grand Guignol play. It was grewsome and horrible; but it was interesting and profitable to an audience supposedly of professional writers in that it reflected something of the dramatic thought of the day.

But lately the monthly play nights have slipped gracefully into the sisterhood of "good entertainment." In other words, piffle.

MEMBERS OF THE WRITERS' CLUB SLIDING INTO THE PIFFLE.

The theater of the Writers' Club should be the laboratory of the American drama.

It has, for the asking, some of the finest actors in the world, willing to work for nothing; it should be influenced only by considerations of dramatic art.

The writers have an opportunity given to no other collection of dramatists in the world. And in return for that opportunity the play room has a responsibility to the world.

IN AND OUT OF CHARACTER

PATTERSON DIAL is as yet a somewhat undefined personality in pictures, but she has been surprisingly successful in a number of lesser roles. Chiefly these have been characters, and in her assuming of them she has very often succeeded in completely capturing individual scenes. In "Secrets—particularly—and "The Lady of Quality" and several other comparatively recent productions her work has really been astonishingly clever. In "Secrets" she played the maid who aided Norma as the heroine in her romantic elopement.

This first fluttering leaf from autumn's modes in overcoats for women expresses how Hart Schaffner & Marx designers have done wonderful things with the definite Scotch trend in fabrics, for Silverwoods, Inc. The Belle of Hollywood

THE belle of the town! And she's only been in Hollywood a year!

But if one knows Norma Shearer, somehow this doesn't seem to be an achievement, but merely a natural sequence of events. She has had from the first, notably in her work, calm self-possession, a quiet finesse. Undeniably prized attributes—attributes which many an actress has taken years of experience to acquire.

These qualities, of course, in themselves, do not make a great actress. Whether Miss Shearer will add to them dramatic intensity and emotional comprehension remains for her to demonstrate. At least, she has the eyes of many a discerning person on her while she makes the attempt.

Her inherent naturalness and sensitiveness also distinguish her manner off-stage. There is delightful savoir faire, a degree of wit in her conversation. Well read, alert, nimble in her opinions, she has developed her repartee to the point of art. She lacks any hint of exoticism, she is not a blooming night flower—yet she seems to adapt herself to any setting.

GENIUS sometimes reveals itself in a mere glance, a look, a gesture.

It was the single glance of contemptuous scorn that he gave Fannie Ward in "The Cheat" that made the fame of Sessue Hayakawa.

Hugo Ballin, with whom she is making Arthur Stringer's "The Prairie Wife," thinks she has a very great and a very real talent that will carry her far.

Charles Meredith, who recently returned to Hollywood, was cast as a motion-picture director in "Potash and Perlmutter."

NOT all the honors go to the established western heroes now. Quite a few of them are fast coming Fred Thomson's way. His pictures may not be familiar to the audiences at the big downtown theaters, but judging from the reports of exhibitors that I have seen printed, they are making a clean-up elsewhere. For these reports are in many instances more enthusiastic than any I have read for a long time.

Thomson started as a serial star, doing daring feats in airplanes, and automobiles, and on horseback. He is an all-around athlete who has won first honors in international contests. His physique and his training have peculiarly fitted him for the sort of outdoor roles that he portrays.

Of late he has gone into features, built along the same general lines as the serials. That is, they have been filled with thrilling stunts virtually all of which Thomson himself performs. They have been productions of tremendous appeal for youthful filmgoers, particularly for boys. They have reflected a strong spirit of American chivalry that possesses a very large interest for those who enjoy the cleaner sort of plays.

CHARLES MEREDITH is through with sojourning in Europe, and is once again working in the pictures. His most recent role has been in "Potash and Perlmutter," in which he played the part of a motion-picture director. Everything to the rolled-back collar, short pants and leather leggings was used to give the proper conventionality to the part, though like many of the roles that Meredith has played it has just a touch of character.

Primarily Meredith is recalled by theatergoers hereabouts from his appearance on the stage. He has at various times been leading man in stock as well as road companies. He has played on the screen in a number of films, including "Beyond" and "The Cradle," made by Paramount, and "Hail the Woman" and "The Cave Girl," of First National release.

BLANCHE MEHAFFEY is tripping merrily through a series of two-reel comedies now. She is the Follies girl—and a real Follies girl she is, too—who was engaged by Hal Roach, and she has made two six-reel features since the beginning of the contract. In these Glenn Tryon also shares honors with her, just as he does in the new short subjects.

Miss Mehaffey is different in appearance from the traditional screen type. She photographs attractively, but she is even more striking personally. Her hair is decidedly auburn. The exact shade is very rare.

I feel that there is a strong likelihood that she will make progress, because she has poise, a share of talent and the ability to wear clothes very alluringly.

They come in pairs, in groups of four and five, and singly, the picture stars, making of the path a fashionable promenade, a California Bois de Boulogne.

They may ride 'em cowboy on the screen, but on the bridle path it's another story. There decorum is the watchword. Individuality confines itself to conventional attire. Also there's a strong inclination towards the strictly English type of saddles. Some, and Laurette Taylor is a fair example, may even prefer the side-saddle of our grandmother's time. But that is only for screen plays, as it happens. With this goes, of course, the corollary of long-skirted habits.

Aside from the novelty of the subject, "The Sky Plumber" gives the picture-going public its initial glimpse of Arthur Stone, one of vaudeville's most popular comedians. Mr. Stone has much in his favor as a film funster. Mother Nature, in this respect, was kind to him. He is of that particular class, all too rare in filmdom, that draw laughs before they do anything.

As for the story, it amounts to a conglomeration of slapstickish gags built around the idea of cheating the weather man at his own game. Stone is the hapless hired man whose meddling with fireworks results in a superabundance of wet weather and a couple of tornadoes.

Katherine Grant, as the leading lady, hasn't much to do, but she serves to relieve the drabness of the farmyard to some extent.

Robert McKenzie, James Finlayson and Ben Howe contribute bits and help along the general pandemonium.

"THE LAST ROSE OF SUMMER"
(I. W. Irving)

"THE Last Rose of Summer" is the first of a series of twelve one-reel pictures which are to be independently produced by I. W. Irving, from old-time songs and poems. The first picture is, however, little more than a progression of poses.

The story, or what little there is of it, is taken from Tom Moore's famous song.

June Norton plays the part of the girl in a rose garden and Carlton King the man who went away and promised to return, before "The Last Rose of Summer."

The action is slow and forced, the picture's only saving grace being the beautiful setting and, at times, attractive photography.—[W. W.

is remarkably registered. All of it, every glimpse, is unforgettable. In fact, I know of few things as great that have ever been done on the screen.

There are only a few other performances that stand out individually in this picture. The principal one outside of the star is that of Stuart Holmes as the man who had first been responsible for her unhappiness, and who later marries her. It is much better than a typical villain role, for Holmes makes the portrayal rarely convincing.

It would have been a great interpretation, were it not for the absurd overdoing of emotion in one or two of his scenes, and I do not blame him so seriously for this as Mr. Neilan for allowing these grotesquely foolish shots to go through.

George Fawcett and Victory Bateman are excellent, and Courtenay Foote and Joseph J. Dowling have other important roles. The scenario by Dorothy Farnum seems much above the average, and the photography by David Kesson, and the settings are notable for the'r atmosphere.—[Edwin Schallert.

LIZZIE paused to consider the relative merits of ice cream and lemon ice as a companion traveler in her system with c'nnamon toast, and caught sight just then of Symona Boniface, the pretty actress from New York who has of late been playing in Thomas H. Wilkes shows.

"I met her at a party, the other night," said Lizzie, "and it turned out that my mother had known her mother, back in early Los Angeles days, when they were children. I mean, of course," corrected Lizzie hastily, "around 1887. Miss Boniface told me a funny one about her mother, who was a great beauty in those days, and who went back to New York and married George C. Boniface, the Broadway actor.

You see, out in Los Angeles in those days, a street-car driver would willingly hold his horses for you while you went into a store to get a spool of thread—that is, if you weren't gone too long! Well, when she went back to New York, she thought everybody was going to be just as courteous. So when she stepped out with a friend to catch an elevated train, she was moving along with a stately step. 'Hurry, or we'll miss the train!' exclaimed the friend.

"'Why?' asked Symona's mother, 'The driver sees us, doesn't he?'

"Symona is a Vassar girl. She has done a lot of writing, but no acting in pictures at all; but she is going to try for them, and she is so pretty and clever she certainly should have her chance. Remember her as the vampire in 'Captain Applejack?'"

WE had remained so long that our remaining drops of tea had become cold and bitter, when in came Lottie Pickford and Allan Forrest, her husband.

Lottie came over and said they had been golfing, and both had beaten their own records—but they didn't say what those were. Lottie looked blooming and pretty in a dark blue sport suit of some new kind of woolen goods, with white collar and cuffs. She does look awfully well these days and would like to go back into pictures, only her husband won't let her.

Then she showed us a letter she had just got from Mary, her sister. Mary said she had danced with King Alphonso in Spain, and that she had been "horribly scared for fear she might trip up or something, but got through all right!" Doesn't that sound just like Mary? Mary also said that she and Doug talked to the King for quite a long time, and that he asked about Roscoe Arbuckle, saying that he always liked Arbuckle, because he was one of the few comedians who really made him laugh.

Two authors of stories seem to stand out pre-eminently in furnishing of picture stories that have real meat in them. One is Rafael Sabatini and the other Vicente Blasco Ibanes. To Sabatini's inspiration are credited now two big productions—one "Scaramouche," the other "The Sea Hawk." "Captain Blood" is now being made. Ibanez is known for his "Four Horsemen" and "Blood and Sand." The latest of his contributions is "Circe," which Mae Murray recently finished.

One of the greatest favorites is an actress whose powers of emotion have always been widely applauded. You could guess in a moment who she is, but it will be more interesting to catch a glimpse of her in her latest production in the next issue of The Pre-View.

This same issue will contain some advance views of a new costume feature, "Captain Blood," adapted from a novel by Rafael Sabatini, who also wrote "Scaramouche" and "The Sea Hawk," as well as some flashing glimpses of the favorites of the hour engaging in their favorite pursuits and pastimes.

In addition to this there will also be lots of trenchant comment by Harry Carr, and the other staff writers on the newest films and on the players.

Hello Hawaii!

Disillusioning as it may be, Lily Gibson, a native Hawaiian girl, is responsible for most of the hula dances which are seen in pictures, doubling for the players.

YAKA hoola, hicka doola—Hollywood is airing its new summer crop of grass skirts. There's a swish of the leis and a strumming of the ukuleles, both off the set and on. It may be a far call from the temples of King Kalakaua to the Kleig lights of the Boulevard—but who cares, as long as filmdom's fairest provide the necessary seductive atmosphere.

Legend has it that the hula dance was first devised solely for the benefit of the high priests of Hawaii, but with laudable impartiality some American tourist brought it to this country. Its adoption into vaudeville was immediate. The films have been slower to take it up.

One reason is because its rythmical sway requires a certain adeptness found only in the professional dancers. But since Betty Compson displayed her ability in "The White Flower" there has been more interest in the dance. Blanche Mehaffey and Virginia Brown Faire, among others, have added it to their accomplishments.

Blanche Mehaffey's Irish disposition doesn't interfere with her interpretation of the hula.

Jimmie Adams's latest fun-fest has everything in it that a good comedy should have—including slapstick. Vera Steadman, Jimmie Harrison and Earl Rodney render conventional portrayals, but the star throws propriety to the winds after he has been made to look like a Borneo anti-vegetarian.

"BRIGHT LIGHTS"
(Bobby Vernon Comedies)

When a boob comes to the Great White Way there's usually a lot of mirth at his expense, but when a city sheik impersonates his country cousin and comes to the big city the resultant fun is fast and furious—and everybody laughs out of turn. Bobby Vernon is the gay deceiver, and he is ably assisted in this gloom-chaser by Ann Cornwall, Evelyn Francisco and Jay Belasco.

LIKE most young comedians in search of a gag, Bobby Vernon and his picture chum, Jay Belasco, started out blandly and without preconceived malice. But after the tire blew out and Speedy Sam proved that old age is nothing to a trick camera, they realized that almost anything might happen—and it did.

Subsequently, after the barn dance episode, they return to the city, where, to borrow a phrase, a good time was had by all. Cabarets are admittedly excellent places in which to forget one's cares; excellent, that is, unless you happen to look like a country hick and have an undue fondness for the queen of the chorus girls.

"Bright Lights," made at the Christie studios under the direction of Walter Graham, has as many laughs packed into its two reels as anyone could comfortably desire. The action is well sustained throughout. Bobby Vernon demonstrates his versatility by portraying a humorous rustic character and then by appearing as a dancer in the ballet.

Vera Steadman and Earl Rodney are among the principals in the support in "Savage Love."

Most of the footage is devoted to the cabaret sequence and it is here, on one of the most elaborate sets ever erected for a two-reel comedy, that most of the laughs accumulate. Mr. Graham overlooks no comedy bets. Even an innocent platter of butter is brought into play with unusual effectiveness; every patty gets a tumble. The chorus, while not anything for Mr. Zeigfeld to worry about, is nevertheless a pleasing background for the hilarious action of the White Way episode. There's nothing subtle about it, but what slapstick it does contain has been applied with an understanding hand.

Ann Cornwall, his new leading lady, together with Evelyn Francisco, provide some pleasant pulchritude, while Jay Belasco, as Bobby's chum, does his bit without actually getting mixed up in the general skirmish—until the end of the picture.—[Herbert Moulton.

Bobby Vernon imitates a hick trying to do the big city, and his adventure comes near doing up not only him, but also Jay Belasco, as this glimpse shows.

THE SEASON OF BIG RETURNS—

Chaney's Hour Strikes Again

A figure of power, always—Chaney.

Norma Shearer has unusual role of a circus bareback rider in "He Who Gets Slapped." Chaney, right.

Marc McDermott (left) and Tully Marshall interpret two other leading characters.

THE name of Lon Chaney is one to conjure with. Indeed, it is almost talismanic.

More than any other character actor he seems noted for his grotesque and ofttimes repellant characterizations. Each impersonation of his is a thing to be awaited.

Chaney has done nothing noteworthy since Quasimodo in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." That was a role of feverish if grewsome dynamic power not soon to be forgotten.

He is to reach a height again in an adaptation of Leonid Andreyev's ironic Russian drama, "He Who Gets Slapped," tragic story of a circus clown, which Victor Seastrom, who made "Name the Man," is directing.

Early Steps Toward Celebrity

We dare you to recognize Raymond McKee's youthful zip under this comedy make-up, in which he appeared for two years on the vaudeville stage.

A TRAGIC TRIUMPH

"TESS OF THE D'URBERVILLES"
(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

While "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" may not elevate Blanche Sweet to the nth power of popular prominence, this picture will certainly establish her with the discriminating as one of the greatest tragic actresses of the day. It is her personal triumph through and through. Aside from this, it is a superior achievement in many aspects, if not in all, and one that will perhaps redound tremendously to the credit of the director, Marshall Neilan.

IT is rather extraordinary, in view of Mr. Neilan's recent undertakings in the cinema, to find that in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" he has unrelentingly committed himself to a story of fateful bitterness, and at moments unqualified gloom. The adaptation is from the Thomas Hardy novel. And even as the light of happiness seldom glints through any page of Hardy's, so does this picturization of one of his most famous stories unwaveringly convey a sequence of pitiful and poignant circumstances that finally culminate in the death by hanging of the title character.

Many people will doubtless find the sullen panorama of demolished hopes and of evil cause turning into even more ill effect very forbidding. They were meant to be when the story was written, and they are still meant to be to a very unusual extent as treated on the screen. Life to Thomas Hardy was mostly broken hearts and disaster, and life is nearly that as told of by Neilan on the screen. He gives way, though, a trifle in the suggestion of hope, whereas the novelist was adamant.

The plot is known perhaps to many. It is the story of the daughter of a family that once was famous, but whose fortunes have fallen into decay. Her father is the village drunkard, and her mother a woman struggling to hold a numerous family of children intact.

The father instigates the situation that really starts the story on sending his daughter to the historic home of the D'Urbervilles to work. Of the D'Urberville family tree he presumes himself to be a descendant, and he hopes by having his daughter go there that it may add something to his own advantages.

The thing doesn't work out that way—naturally. The girl is employed, but only because she interests the peer who occupies the estate personally.

The eventual result of the experience is that she becomes a mother, and after a spell of sickness the child that is born to her dies. Once more she is forced to go out to seek a livelihood for her family.

It is then that she encounters a young man of well-to-do family, whom she had met as a girl. They fall in love, and he wants to marry her. She decides that the only thing for her to do in consideration of his unworldly viewpoint is to tell of her experience. She writes this in a letter to him and slips the missive under his door, but instead of coming into his hands, as she expected, it is covered by the rug on the floor.

She believes that he has accepted the condition when next they meet, and weds him, but on the night of the wedding discovers from what he tells her about himself that he knows nothing of the happening.

When she tells him he leaves her to go to South America, and remains there while she and the family sink to destitution. Only after a long illness does he finally decide to return to Tess, but in the meanwhile she has accepted the offer of marriage from the peer who had previously brought her unhappiness. She does not love him, but the contract is literally forced upon her through considerations of the welfare of her family.

So much for the plot. It is not popular stuff, but it is strong stuff and interesting as few pictures are, for anyone can enjoy the weight of its seriousness. Technically and dramatically, the fault of the treatment is chiefly that it is too sketchy at times, even jumpy, and that some of the best scenes are not as forcibly sustained as they should be, although this criticism does not in any sense apply to Miss Sweet.

There is one moment in this feature that is outstanding—one moment that will be remembered for months and even years by those who see it, because it is the greatest acting moment that has been viewed in ages on the screen. That is the place where Blanche Sweet kills the man who had been her persecutor, and to whom she was finally wed. It is the climax, and it offers the greatest acting that has been seen in ages—as great if not greater than that of the Griffith stars when they were at their height. I do not believe that even they have accomplished anything finer or emotionally more vivid than what Miss Sweet has done in this tense and stirring moment.

There is not one flash of the blow that is struck with the knife that kills. One only sees the changing expressions on the star's face, as by degrees she is goaded to do the deed by the husband's bitter, biting, ironic words, answering her threat that she will leave him. Like a caged lioness she appears when she finds the doors are closed, and over her face, approaching in a huge close-up, gleams a fearful flame-like red.

I defy anybody during this scene to think of aught except what is transpiring on the screen. The theater seems to vanish, and one's eyes are literally drawn into the yawning chasm of black wherein flares the countenance of the woman on which is written mingled hate and horror and an unearthly sort of ecstasy.

The aftermath is to me even more remarkable as far as Blanche herself is concerned. Almost hysterical, she leaves the room where the murdered man lies, but immediately she begins to master herself. Every detail of her pitiful fight to regain self-con-

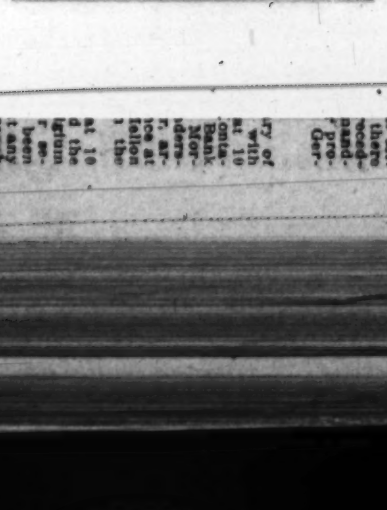
Just a younger edition of the piquant Mae Busch as she was when she was doing the ingenue lead with Eddie Foy in musical comedy.

Kathleen Clifford was an entertaining little individual, even as now, when she used to play opposite Joseph Santley. This is a scene from "A Pair of Queens."

Those who saw William Gillette's presentation of "Dear Brutus" will never forget Madge Bellamy as the dream child.



No doubt Robert Frazer disturbed many a feminine heart as he toured the country as the classic hero, Ben Hur.

THIS evidence sends another theory crashing; namely, the too-oft-repeated chant that beauty of feature is the only passport to screen fame. There are a dozen who can point—and proudly, too—to real dramatic training. In fact, it's becoming a marked characteristic of the present-day screen aspirants. Some have been stars of their own company. Several have been included in Ziegfeld's famous beauty choruses. And others have studied first-hand the artistic technique of world-famous comedians and tragedians through associations with them in the same cast.

In many cases these first steps toward fame are not along the paths now being trod. Take, for instance, Mae Busch, who is now doing many sympathetic dramatic roles. She began on the musical comedy stage with Eddie Foy.

Gloria Grey at the age of 4 toured on the Orpheum circuit as a child dancer, and later interspersed her dances with singing. On the screen she is quite serious.

Robert Frazer, the pet of domestic dramas, was just as capable of fluttering the feminine hearts as the classic hero, Ben Hur. Raymond McKee's stage experience is marked by its versatility. For he rotated from clown and leading juvenile to highly emotional roles. His screen work runs in an even tenor of juvenile roles.

The eventual result of the experience is that she becomes a mother, and after a spell of sickness the child is born to her dies. Once more she is forced to go out to seek a livelihood for her family.

"DEAR, dear! It doesn't seem to me the film stars are any of them stepping out with their certified admirers today, does it? I suppose it's the picture conventions in town. Some of these men you see the actresses with are producers, some are exhibitors, some are angels, but in any case they've simply got to be paid attention to.

"Of course, some of these film backers are mere babes in the woods—babes in the Hollywoods, you might say, which makes it much more intricate, doesn't it?"

Lizzie fixed the waiter with her glittering eye, and he came over to take our order, though at first seemingly inclined to bolt in favor of Constance Talmadge and her escort, a substantial-looking man.

"Hum, hum! Looks as if he would keep a girl waiting neither at the church nor at the bank," commented Lizzie, as she took her eyes from the menu to look at Connie, who was glancing around to see whether Buster Collier was there to see her.

"CONNIE'S men simply take the veil when she pungs them out, don't they? And Connie keeps all the jewels for all the trouble the men were to her! Remember how Irving Berlin retired to his Long Island estate and refused to eat when Connie gave him the air? And he had just written a song about the constancy of Constance, too. It was awfully touching.

"THERE'S Shirley Mason, too—pouring for another outlander! Her body may be drinking tea with a visiting exhibitor, but her heart is in the highlands of Kansas City, where Harlan Fengler is racing!

"And there's another movie martyr, Mildred Harris! Doesn't she look perfectly lovely? I'll bet he's telling her how the Odd Fellows have just built a new hall, and of the way the Ku Klux carries on in Podunk, and how folks back there don't think so much of Sinclair Lewis, and all that sort of chatter that would be just fascinating to Mildred, don't you? And can't you just hear Mildred answering absently, 'Isn't that just grand,' while she peeks into her mirror and then around the room to see if Norman Kerry or any of her gang is around.

Mildred Harris remains as always an attractive presence in the film social whirl.

"They do say," Lizzie went on, taking a glance at her own mirror, as she saw Ralph Graves come in, "that one picture actor made a bet with another that he could tell Mildred his brother had just died, and that if he said it in an ordinary tone, Mildred would say, 'Isn't that grand?' And he won, too!"

LIZZIE paused to peep into the teapot to see whether I was being properly braced up, glanced up at the ageless cherries on the thirstless cherry tree which decorates the tearoom, and then went on:

"Betty Blythe and another picture man! And Alice Terry and Raoul Walsh. That's quite a combination, isn't it? But I'll bet that Betty didn't let that guy bite the last grape off her candy earrings! They've all been down to the beach today, and in swimming. Betty swims like a mermaid, you know. And she doesn't wear one of those bathing suits that are merely dry-cleaned once in a while, either.

"How Betty does love to vamp! I'll bet she has that picture man believing he's the only bottle in the cellar. And tea! Say, Betty cares for tea like a lion loves apple sauce! But you'd think it was an ambrosial highball she was drinking, wouldn't you? I'll bet that film man will go home and throw his grandmother in the fire."

RONALD COLMAN and Lois Wilson, with May McAvoy and Bobby Agnew, came within range of Lizzie's vision just then, and Lizzie began telling me how Ronald had told Lois just what places in London to visit if she gets a chance. Though it looks as though all Lois will have time for will be British banquets and mornings after.

"It's a good thing that Lois doesn't drink," said Lizzie. "But what will the Britishers think of her, dear old beans? Ronald, I understand, gave Lois a note to his mother—and, my dear, doesn't that look serious? I'll say it does!

"Oh, did you hear about Jackie Saunders? There she is, vamping that millionaire whom Elaine Hammerstein is supposed to have staked out. I told Jackie about Elaine, the other day, and she said, 'Oh, yes, he's the man I was to have met and vamped. Well, dearie, he might like two girls,' who knows?' And it seems that he does! She has moved over to the Ambassador, where he's staying, by the way.

"YOU simply have to keep burglar's office hours to keep a man nowadays, don't you? There are Samuel Goldwyn and Thelma Morgan Converse, for instance. He seems awfully devoted, but just think of the gells who are smiling on Sammy!

"But Miss Converse is awfully independent, of course—maybe that's what keeps Sammy busy dangling. She is lovely, isn't she? I saw her in a party with Charlie Chaplin, the other night, too. She has such a sweet smile, and is so vivacious. Charlie, you know, usually likes them 'icily regular, splendidly null.'"

Allan Forrest does not seem to favor the definite return of his wife, Lottie Pickford, to pictures, although she does occasionally take part in Sister Mary's productions.

"THERE are Pat O'Malley and his oldest daughter, 7 years of age. He is brave to face the world with that big child, isn't he? He is the roughneck Valentino. Does he get love letters? I'll say he does! When Pat became a father for the first time seven years ago, he thought the news would put an end to the flood of mash notes he had been receiving—but not so that you could notice it! Then came another child, but the love letters still came along. With the birth of his third daugh-

Jane Winton is yet another of the Follies brighteners who has felt the lure of the camera. She obtained a contract recently with Famous Players for work in "Monsieur Beaucaire."

Hazel Newman's success in finding parts is record-breaking. She was only in Hollywood two weeks before she obtained her first in a small independent film. She has done several others since then.

Edna Hanam, like Lila Lee, came from the Gus Edwards Revue. She has been doing leads in a series of college comedies. She is sprightly and ingenuish.

As Zinida, lion-tamer, in "He Who Gets Slapped," Paulette Duval has an opportunity that should be exciting, if it is not also impressive She registers as a very different type.

Vivien Oakland has recently arrived from the vaudeville stage, and does an important role in "The Madonna of the Streets."
